Bay Commissioners Approve Dredging Of Saucelito Canal

Army Engineers' Consent Still Needed Before Project Can Start

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The long-sought dredging of Saucelito Canal won unanimous approval yesterday from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

The $945,000 project was proposed by the County of Marin, City of Mill Valley and property owners to provide access to small craft facilities planned in the upper reach of Richardson Bay.

The proposal that the canal be dredged first appeared on state planning maps in 1870, noted commissioner F. J. Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission.

Commissioners, meeting in the State Building, were told by their executive director, Joseph E. Bodovitz, that the dredging and disposal of the 700,000 cubic yards of mud spoils near Alcatraz was "fully consistent with the (BCDC) bay plan's call for water related recreation."

"It will be a substantial improvement of Richardson Bay" said Sonoma County Supervisor Leigh S. Shoemaker, a member of the commission.

Several commissioners suggested at the March 6 hearing on the application that the spoils be dumped only during ebb tides, but the suggestion was discarded on the ground it would not be feasible.

The canal dredging is to extend for 2.5 miles from the Army Corps of Engineers turning basin to Mill Valley's $200,000 small craft harbor, now under construction. The cost is to be shared by the corps with the city and property owners along the canal, who formed the Richardson Bay Channel Dredging District to assess themselves for the project.

The county still must get one more permit before it can go ahead with the dredging. Army regulations require a

School Fire Insurance Rates Up

A 40 per cent raise in fire insurance rates for all types of school buildings in California, to take effect April 1, was announced today by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau.

Most Marin Schools will not be affected at this time, however, according to Kenneth M. Proctor, president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Marin.

Proctor said, "Most school fire insurance policies have two to three years left to run, and others are written with companies that are not making changes at this time."

The bureau blamed violence, vandalism and arson as well as inflation for the boost, which comes at a time when school boards are preparing for bond elections and working on next year's budgets under pressure of mounting demands for higher teachers' pay and

CHP Officer, Volunteer Fireman's Heroism Lauded

A California Highway Patrolman and a Novato volunteer fireman who braved walls of flame to save lives have been named Marin County Policeman and Fireman of the Year by the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Marin.

Patrolman Robert A. Espagnolle and volunteer fireman Robert Busher, both of Novato, will receive plaques at a luncheon of the association at noon Wednesday at Lyons Restaurant in Greenbrae.

Espagnolle, 50, was cited for rescuing San Rafael construction worker Henry Penning from a flaming drainage tunnel under Highway 101 in Terra Linda last July 19. Penning had been trapped by an explosion at the site of the widening of the highway in Terra Linda.

Espagnolle raced across the highway from his station at the truck scale stop on the northbound side of the highway, entered the blazing tunnel and pulled Penning out. The patrolman, who suffered slight burns in the rescue, later was awarded the Medal of Valor by the California Highway Patrol for his heroism.

Busher's heroic act came the same day. He was credited with saving the live of Novato Fire Capt. Richard Beyer when Beyer was trapped by flames in a brush and grass fire in the Marinwood area.

Busher, who also suffered slight burns, dashed through the flames to Beyer, who had rolled down a hill, and led the captain through a half-mile of flames to safety.

Kenneth M. Proctor, president of the agents association, said Espagnolle and Busher made the "most outstanding" efforts of 1968 among Marin's fire and policemen but added "they are merely indicative of the fine service provided by their departments . . . each day of the year."

THE THIEVES AREN'T HAPPY

Marin Sheriff's Lt. Guido Battaglia smiles as he counts $1,526 in cash and money orders which the thieves of this battered safe didn't get — although they tried hard. The safe, its dial and hinges missing, was found covered with branches yesterday morning in the opening of a tree near Stafford Lake dam by an employee of the North Marin County Water District. The thieves apparently had abandoned the safe after failing to smash it open. Once in the sheriff's office in San Rafael, however, the safe was quickly popped open with a pry bar. The safe was taken from the Greyhound Bus Depot in Petaluma March 10, deputies said.

WHICH BUTTON TO PUSH?

Senators Stage Drama To Test Utility Of Safeguard Missiles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Situation: Russian missiles approaching over northern horizon. Urgent call to the White House. More missiles appear.

"We have three minutes left, Mr. President," says the military commander. "Which button do I press: The antiballistic missile or our 1,054 Minuteman ICBMs?"

"The panic button," came a low voice from the committee table. It was Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., muttering behind a green eyeshade.

Laughter from the spectators' gallery — and from Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., too.

The TV cameras panned in on a grim Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, his eyes narrowed to gray slits after a two-day Senate inquisition under glaring lights.

"This is a deadly serious question, Mr. chairman," the ex-congressman snapped. "It is not any laughing matter. It gets right down to the heart of the matter. If I were sitting in the position of the President, I would like to be able to have an ABM to launch and not have to push the button for an offensive strike."

Gore, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations' Disarmament Subcommittee, which conducted the antiballistic missile system (ABM) hearing on national television, posed the hypothetical situation to Laird.

With that exchange, one of scores in a five-hour session that alternated between high comedy and deadly seriousness, the latest issue in the Senate debate over the ABM was joined.

Laird's argument was a new one. He said the Safeguard system not only would protect the American power to retaliate against a surprise attack but would give the President "flexibility" in determining how to respond.

Gore ridiculed the argument. "No President would push the ABM button rather than the Minuteman button once the missiles started falling," he contended.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said there would be more than adequate time to put U.S. ICBMs into the air after U.S. radar picked up the incoming missiles, and thus there was no need to protect the U.S. deterrent.

Gore said the United States should let the Soviet Union know in no uncertain terms that "if they launch a missile against us, we're launching a massive attack against them."

Saigon Defenders Battle Three-Pronged Red Attack

SAIGON (AP) — The enemy seized the initiative today with attacks on three sides of Saigon, and the U.S. military analysts said Viet Cong and North Vietnam action may be nearing a peak.

Orders went out to field commanders to be ready for "a high point" of enemy activity around the capital over the weekend, but it appeared Saigon itself would not be attacked, unless by rockets.

U.S. officers said main force North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units still did not appear to be coordinated for a major attack on Saigon, although there was an enemy buildup to the south.

Intelligence sources said the Viet Cong has 1,500 men within five miles of Saigon and these could launch an attack at any time against U.S. 9th Infantry Division soldiers guarding the southern approaches.

The 9th Division was involved in some of today's heaviest fighting but this was farther south near the provincial capital of Ben Tre. Ben Tre is 40 miles south of Saigon.

Viet Cong of unknown strength attacked night positions of a 150-man unit of the 9th Division shortly after midnight. The enemy was dispersed after a four-hour battle, in which artillery and helicopter gunships were summoned.

U.S. officers said 42 enemy bodies were found at daybreak. U.S. casualties were given as one killed and nine wounded.

North Vietnamese attacked on the outskirts of Tay Ninh, 51 miles northwest of Saigon, and were repulsed in a two-hour battle by South Vietnamese paratroopers. The paratroopers reported killing 40 of the enemy while losing five killed and 20 wounded.

A unit of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division ran into North Vietnamese troops 47 miles northwest of Saigon and with the help of helicopter gunships killed 10 of the enemy. There were no U.S. casualties.

Marijuana Spices In Birthday Cake?

Six Adults, Two Children Taken In Accidental Raid

A birthday party for a 14-year-old last night featuring a cake believed to be marijuana-spiced and some too-nervous guests led to the arrest of six adults and two juveniles at a "hippie pad" in San Rafael.

The six adults were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possession of marijuana and the two juveniles were cited to Juvenile Hall.

The interrupted birthday soiree took place at 140 Auburn Street, sheriff's deputies said.

Released on their own recognizance for appearances in Marin Municipal Court Monday at 2 p.m. were Robert Patrick Hallatt, 18, of the Auburn Street address; Pamela Ann Sickles, 18, of Portola Valley; Anthony George Evans, 19, 632 Northern Avenue, Mill Valley; Christopher Alexander Blum, 18, 202 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield, and Michael Milton Huffman, 18, of the Auburn Street address.

Jerry Leonard Lane, 28, 106 Baltimore Avenue, Larkspur, was booked on suspicion of being in a place where narcotics were being used. Hallatt was also under suspicion of possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

NOT A RAID

The marijuana bust was not intended as a raid, authorities said. They said Sausalito police wanted to check the address on another matter and requested assistance from the San Rafael police department and the county's drug abuse bureau.

When officers knocked on the front door, they said, one of the occupants of the house bolted out the back door and the others ran for a bedroom.

FOUND WEED

Officers said they found five "lids" of marijuana worth about $50, authorities said.

The Auburn Street house was described by authorities as a "communal pad where all kinds of people live." Five or six other persons showed up at the house while officers were making the arrests but were advised to leave, authorities said.

Ike's Heart Worrying Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army doctors, revealing for the first time that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered serious temporary congestive heart failure one week ago, say "he may well have less reserve strength than previously."

The physicians acknowledged yesterday they were more concerned than ever about the chronic heart condition of the 78-year-old general who is recovering from intestinal surgery.

In answer to questions they said it's conceivable Eisenhower could have further major coronary heart attacks like the seven he has suffered since 1955, the most recent last August.

Despite this concern, a medical bulletin late yesterday from Walter Reed General Hospital said "the general's condition today is favorable . . . he is resting comfortably and his spirits are good."

Word of the congestive heart failure episode came in response to questions as a result of off-the-cuff remarks by Mrs. Eisenhower and a little-noticed Wednesday medical bulletin from the hospital.

Mrs. Eisenhower commented at a fashion show that her husband has "good days and bad" and that last Saturday was a prticularly bad one. It was so bad, she said, that "I didn't take my clothes off for 30 hours" while keeping watch

Nixon Orders Campus Dissent Funds Pinch

Student Violence Decried In Report From California

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — President Nixon denounced campus disorders today as a threat to intellectual freedom and civilization itself. But he limited federal retaliation to withholding financial help from students convicted of violating the law.

FIRST STAND

In his first major statement on the wave of violence that has swept over colleges and universities, Nixon soft pedaled any federal action beyond launching "new initiatives toward easing tensions in our educational community."

He said he had directed Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch to start these initiatives.

Nixon spoke out in a formal statement issued during a weekend sojourn at an oceanside villa near this sunny Southern California town some 50 miles south of Los Angeles.

ORDER ISSUED

Simultaneously, a letter was released in which Finch told college and university administrators that the law on cutting off financial aid must be enforced while fully protecting "the rights of legitimate and responsible dissent."

"Under this legislation," Finch said, "the burden of administration falls upon the institutions. We in HEW will do our best to work with you in this difficult area."

The President called the new regulations moderate and justified and said withdrawal of

U.C. APPOINTMENT SHAKEUP DELAYED

Regents Oppose Reagan On Taking Power Of Filling Jobs Away From Chancellors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — University of California regents won't decide for at least a month whether to take back the power they gave campus chancellors over top level faculty jobs.

The nine-campus university's governing board debated for an hour yesterday at UCLA on a proposal by Regent Edwin Pauley which U.C. administrators called threatening and potentially disastrous.

Then, opposing Gov. Ronald Reagan, the regents voted 14-8 for a one-month study of the move to give the board final authority over appointing professors and associate professors. Chancellors got the authority three years ago.

'ANOTHER VIEW'

"It would have shown the people of California there is another view," Reagan said in backing the Los Angeles regent's move for immediate action.

"I don't see how anyone can suggest it is a political issue."

U.C. President Charles J. Hitch, Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, and some other regents led the drive against immediate action.

Monagan first tried to shelve the whole issue. He failed on a 12-10 vote.

The final vote came after Pauley withdrew his proposal, promising to revise it next month. He failed to receive key support from Regent John E. Canaday of Burbank.

"By this action, we discredit the chancellors in an area where they are not at fault," Canaday said. Regents adopted his suggestion that the Educational Policy Committee study of hiring be broadened to include the role of campus academic senates.

MARCUSE TARGET

Hitch said the recent one-year rehiring of Prof. Herbert Marcuse at U.C. San Diego may have prompted Pauley's motion.

Marcuse is a professor of political philosophy under fire from some groups for his views on social change and his popularity among student radicals.

Hitch said Pauley's move would remove important power from chancellors, revert the policy to the centralized campus administration and create a burden for the regents themselves.

Chancellor Ivan Hinderaker of U.C. Riverside said educators would interpret the move "in its present context as no less than a disaster."

The only change Hitch said he was willing to accept would be regents' review of appointments—without any authority to change them.

Regents named James H. Merey, dean of the U.C. College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences, to succeed retiring Chancellor Emile M. Mark on the Davis campus.

The board took no action to oppose Berkeley campus plans to reduce slightly the number of Army ROTC courses that can count for undergraduate credit. Hitch said the purpose was to improve the educational quality of ROTC.

Her Majesty's Forces Try To Mollify Anguilla

ANGUILLA (AP) — Royal engineers are on their way to Anguilla to replace Britain's sunburned Red Devils and try to save face for the Union Jack.

The Defense Ministry announced last night an advance party of engineers would arrive today to decide what projects might best serve the tiny Caribbean island's 6,000 inhabitants and perhaps quell the mockery raised by Britain's Bay of Piglets invasion there Wednesday.

Improvement of the partially-paved airstrip and installation of a telephone system will begin when a reinforced troop of about 100 engineers arrive within a week or so, the ministry said.

The frigate Rothesay, used to land the British invasion force Wednesday morning, is to depart during the weekend, followed later by the two companies of Red Devil paratroopers who came ashore to reassert the crown's authority over the Anguillans.

Events on the island indicated Britain plans to maintain Her Majesty's grip on Anguilla.

Secessionist Acting President Ronald Webster was barred from his office in the island's administration building. British Commissioner Anthony Lee moved his papers and headquarters into the building and said he would govern the island with the aid of an advisory board of Anguillans, for several years if necessary.

British cargo planes shuttled back and forth yesterday, bringing military supplies and squad cars for a contingent of 40 London Bobbies who have replaced the local police.

Adding its voice to a chorus of foreign and domestic criticism heaped on Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government after the invasion, the U.N. Special Committee on Colonialism pronounced itself "gravely concerned" by the British occupation and resolved to send a team of investigators to Anguilla.

Britain, which boycotted the committee's meeting yesterday, was expected to bar the team from the island.

Opposition leaders on the neighboring island of Antigua, which the British used as a staging area for the Anguillan expedition, added their loud voices of protest.

They charged paratroopers encamped on the island as reinforcements for Anguilla were actually there to intimidate Antigua. Opposition spokesman warned there might be violence if the troops display arms on the streets.

George Walter, general secretary of the opposition Antigua Workers Union, said that the British troops were being used to instill fear in the political opposition. He rebuked Premier Vere Bird for allowing the island to be used as a logistics pipeline between London and Anguilla.

Cleaning Shop's Owner Released; No Charge Yet

No complaint — pending analysis of a substance thought to be LSD — was filed yesterday by the Marin district attorney's office against two of the men arrested in a raid on a Larkspur cleaning establishment Thursday.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest Zunino said that it would probably take about a week for the evidence to be analyzed.

Robert A. Cogswell, 23, of San Rafael, owner of the Larkspur Cleaners, was released from jail. A co-defendant, John Robert Thiele, 19, of San Rafael is already serving a term for a prior conviction of sale of marijuana.

The third man arrested in the raid, Stephen Cowan, 22, of Larkspur, is also in jail on a prior conviction and was indicted by the Grand Jury Thursday on a new charge of marijuana sale.

Thief Repents Taking Auto

The thief who took Phyllis Maley's car last night apparently repented overnight. Miss Maley, of 23 Grove Street, San Rafael, reported her car stolen from D and Ross streets at 10:15 p.m.

This morning, she told San Rafael police, an anonymous telephone caller told her the car was at a garage at Third and C streets.

Violence Flares In Denver School

DENVER (AP) — A demonstrator was stunned by a shotgun birdshot blast and a policeman felled by a flying rock yesterday during the second day of Mexican-American demonstrations at a Denver high school.

The injured man, identified as Joseph Vigil, 26, and the officer, Forrest W. Wagner, were both listed in satisfactory condition at a Denver hospital.

Police reported two arrests.

Centered around Denver West High School, the sporadic disturbances were ignited by calls for more Mexican-American instruction in the city's public schools. They began Thursday when charges of racism were leveled against a social science teacher.

By nightfall yesterday, demonstrators had moved from the area, leaving a trail of broken windows and streets strewn with bricks, pieces of cement and broken glass.

Rodolfo "Corky" Gonzales, leader of the Mexican-American Crusade for Justice, climbed the steps of a church near the school last night and called on his supporters to calm down.

"The West Side belongs to us," Gonzales said. "But we want no more people shot on the street."

Yesterday's trouble began early as some students left their classes and began taunting police. Principal Earl A. Paul told students there would be no reprimands if they would return to their classes but none returned.

In midafternoon, police arrested a man identified as Bennie Padilla, 43. Officers said he fired five shots that struck a nearby building. He was held for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon. Vigil was held for investigation of inciting to riot.

Police cars were pummeled with large chunks of cement and bricks.

Throughout the disturbances, police moved in quickly to prevent large-scale destruction of property and quelled demonstrators with tear gas. After each incident, police retreated to the perimeter of the immediate area.

Court Action Sought In Ship Loading Row

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a week that saw 400 dock workers fired and tons of container cargo piling up, union and management prepared today to battle in court in the West Coastwide longshore dispute.

A hearing was set for Monday morning on the request by the Pacific Maritime Association for an injunction to force dockers of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union to load and unload containerized cargo.

Since last Monday the stevedores have refused to handle container cargo in their claim that ILWU men, and not Teamsters Union workers, should pack the big vans as well as work them off and on ships. Some ILWU clerks also have been fired.

Two more longshore gangs were fired at Seattle yesterday, with smaller firings reported in the ports of Oakland, San Francisco and Portland. Earlier in the week, men were chopped at Stockton and Long Beach.

Container cargo reportedly amounts to about 10 per cent of the usual volume. Military supplies, mail and food in containers continues to be handled, however.

Students Donate $186 To Biafra Aid

San Rafael High School students have donated $186.67 to benefit the starving victims of the civil war in Biafra, according to Austin J. Thompson, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

Thompson, who forwarded the money to the Marin County chapter of the American National Red Cross, said the gift "demonstrates that, in spite of the widespread turmoil in our schools today, the majority of students have been instilled with the traditional American spirit of generosity and sympathy for those who cannot help themselves."

Pakistani Students Burn U.S. Flag Near Embassy

KARACHI (UPI)—A band of about 100 students burned a U.S. flag outside the American embassy today while others carrying red banners demonstrated before the West Pakistani governor's house just next door.

There was no violence, however.

The anti-American students brought the American flag with them. They dispersed peacefully after burning the flag.

Three truckloads of police were rushed to the embassy and remained there for several hours. A spokesman said U.S. embassy officials requested the police and four policemen were left behind to guard the front gate.

Earlier, leftist students staged an anti-government demonstration outside the governor's house. The students, waving red banners, blocked traffic but did not cause any incidents.

The demonstrations were the first since wealthy publisher-businessman Yusuf Haroon took over as governor of West Pakistan last Thursday. Haroon said he was confident he could restore calm.

President Mohammad Ayub Khan also named a new governor for East Pakistan in a move to restore law and order in the chaotic east wing.

He is M. N. Huda, East Pakistan's provincial finance minister. Huda will replace unpopular Gov. Monem Khan in Dacca, capital of the east wing.

SIX OUNCES OF GIN

Sirhan's Test In Jail Cell Produces 'A Wild Beast'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After drinking six ounces of gin in a jail cell test, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan became "like a wild beast" and began talking as if Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were still alive, a psychiatrist says.

"He never said he killed Kennedy," Dr. Eric Marcus told the jury yesterday trying Sirhan for Kennedy's murder. "He kept talking as though Kennedy were alive. He said 'that bastard isn't worth the bullet.' With all my prodding he never said he killed Kennedy."

There has been testimony that Sirhan had three Tom Collins before shooting the New York senator in the Ambassador Hotel last June 5. Sirhan says he doesn't remember the shooting but does recall buying several drinks.

The bartender's recipe for the gin mixture was duplicated in the drinks served Sirhan. Marcus described what happened next:

'WENT BERSERK'

"Psychologically he went berserk. He was extremely agitated and restless and cursing and had to be physically restrained.

"He kept grabbing at this throat. He said 'What the hell is going on here?' He thought he was choking. He said 'I'll get even with those Jews.'

"I think he thought he was back at the Ambassador Hotel. Then he started talking about how 20 years were enough for the Jews and Kennedy didn't help them . . .

"The alcohol triggered off some sort of an irritation. He became sort of like a wild beast."

The defense attempt to save Sirhan from the gas chamber is based on showing "diminished responsibility," that he was incapable of planning the slaying.

A second defense psychiatrist, Dr. Bernard Diamond tried to reawaken Sirhan's memories of that night under hypnosis. He had barely begun his testimony yesterday when the trial was adjourned for the weekend.

Marcus said Sirhan had thought about assassinations "for an awfully long period of time." He had been shown two books Sirhan used at a high school in Pasadena in 1964.

In one book, next to a passage about the assassination of President William McKinley, Sirhan had written: "Many more will come." In the second book, Sirhan had underlined a passage dealing with the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary, which touched off World War I.

Ray, Lawyer Huddle; Libel Suit Rather Than Plea Claimed Topic

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—James Earl Ray, seeking a new trial in the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., met in his prison cell today with attorney J. B. Stoner, long associated with the Ku Klux Klan.

The topic of the Ray-Stoner meeting reportedly concerned a libel suit which, Stoner said, Ray was considering filing "against some national magazines . . . which have accused him of a crime of which he is not guilty."

Arthur J. Hanes, former Mayor of Birmingham, Ala., and Ray's original lawyer in the King case, said yesterday he had received a letter from Ray and also might meet with him today.

"I'm not representing Mr. Ray in any criminal case," Stoner said when he stopped off in Chattanooga to visit an attorney friend, Robert Hill Jr.

When asked if he would represent Ray in a criminal proceeding if requested, Stoner replied, "Yes sir, I would if he asked me to."

"I don't think Mr. Ray is guilty," Stoner said. "That's one reason we plan to bring a libel suit. On the criminal matter, I'm not in a position to say anything about it now because I haven't reached the stages yet where I can.

"I think Mr. Ray is a victim of a conspiracy. Certainly certain magazines are part of a conspiracy to libel him and to deprive him of a fair trial. And they apparently did succeed with their libel into pressuring him into a plea when otherwise there was no apparent reason for it."

Ray pleaded guilty March 10 in Memphis to the rifle-slaying of King last April 4. He received a 99-year sentence agreed upon by the prosecution and defense.

Only three days later there were reports that Ray was showing regrets that he had agreed to plead guilty.

After several generations he has hens producing eggs in various shades of green.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two women convicted of spraying red paint in a Presidio court martial room as an antiwar protest were jailed here today after their arrest in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Sali McAllister, 33, and Charlene Pope, 20, both of Mountain View, disappeared before their scheduled Feb. 27 sentencing.

They wrote U.S. Dist. Judge George B. Harris they were failing to appear as a further protest against the military.

U.S. marshalls arrested the two women yesterday in Los Angeles and returned them to San Francisco County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

More Temblors

PASADENA (AP) — Earthquakes continued shaking a sparsely populated area of Mexico's Baja California peninsula intermittently today, but the frequency appears to be diminishing, the California Institute of Technology reports.

More than 40 tremors have been recorded at the site, 260 miles southeast of Los Angeles centered in an underwater area.

Caltech seismologists say the area is connected with California's San Andreas Fault.

They believe there is no threat to populated areas. There were no reports of injuries or damage in Mexico.

WOMEN VOTERS EYE UNIFICATION

Marin League Poses Questions On Tam Proposal's Timing, Impact On Budgets

The League of Women Voters of Southern Marin has raised a series of questions regarding the proposed three-district unification plan for the area which now includes Tamalpais High School District and 11 elementary school districts.

The league, which made a study of the proposal in an attempt to arrive at objective conclusions, presented the questions in a statement at the public hearing on the plan at Redwood High School Thursday night, and is to present them again at the hearing Tuesday night at Tamalpais High School.

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin, which includes Ross Valley territory in the school districts involved, has concurred in the objections.

They are, briefly:

1. Timing. The league points out that if a unification election is held next October, only eight months will remain for the reorganization of 12 school districts into three by July 1, 1970, when the new setup would take effect.

2. Finances. "At this time," says the statement, "almost every elementary school district in the area is facing a financial crisis. Tax rate increase elections have been held, or are planned, in several districts." Therefore, 1967-68 financial figures used in preparing the plan may no longer be vailid.

3. Legislation. Noting that various school finance measures have been introduced in the legislature, the league suggests: "It would seem more logical to restructure our school system after the state has clarified its role."

4. School board elections. Because the proposal was not announced until after filing closed, says the league, "it was not possible for people with a deep concern either for or against unification to choose to run for election on this issue."

5. New board election. The league cites difficulty of getting candidates for the boards of the proposed new districts.

As to finances, it raises these additional points:

A. "It becomes necessary to put teachers on a common salary scale . . . The pattern has been to raise all salaries to the high school scale." This would require increased taxes.

B. Neither the Redwood nor the Drake attendance area would have enough bonding capacity for needed elementary schools plus new high school construction.

C. It would be necessary to raise taxes in the new Redwood and Drake districts to meet expenses already current. Also, no method has been worked out for payment to the proposed Tamalpais and Drake districts of their share of the costs of new facilities at Redwood.

D. The Drake area, even with Bolinas-Stinson added, is almost 15 per cent below the Tamalpais district as a whole in assessed valuation per child.

E. Two of the three possible voting methods being considered would permit a minority to impose its will on the majority.

Duplex Hit By Flames

Fire raged through a Petaluma duplex today, causing extensive damage and injuring one of the occupants as he escaped his blazing home.

Firemen said Gary Woodard suffered second degree burns of the elbow and fingers as he left his apartment at 7 Howard Street, about 3:10 a.m. today.

The fire started in Woodard's apartment, possibly from a cigarette in a sofa, firemen said. Damage was heavy.

The adjoining apartment, occupied by John L. Stephens, had extensive smoke damage, firemen said. Stephens escaped without injury.

The duplex is owned by A. T. Moore of 9 Arlington Drive, Petaluma, firemen reported. A dollar estimate of the damage was not available today.

near the general's bedside at the hospital.

The medical bulletin, issued after President Nixon had visited Eisenhower for 20 minutes, said the former president has recovered from the immediate effects of Feb. 23 surgery for a gastrointestinal obstruction. But it also said Eisenhower "continues to be weak and his cardiovascular status remains a matter of concern to his physicians."

The doctors—through Brig. Gen Frederic Hughes Jr., the hospital's commanding general—said in reply to one question:

"Last Saturday, General Eisenhower manifested symptoms of congestive heart failure—such as he has done on occasions in the past.

"There has been no evidence of further infarction (damage to heart muscle such as occurred in at least six of his seven major heart attacks since 1955) or dangerous irregularity of the heart's action.

"His response to treatment measures for heart failure has been favorable but slow, indicating that he may well have less reserve strength than previously. This concern was reflected in the bulletin issued Wednesday."

Congestive heart failure occurs when one or more chambers of the heart fail to empty adequately during the heart's pumping action.

This can lead to an accumulation of fluids in blood vessels supplying the lungs, or other parts of the body, or both.

enlarged school facilities.

The bureau reported that insurance company operating costs and school fire losses from 1963 to 1967 had caused school insurers to pay out $124.50 for every $100 collected in premiums. That amounted, the bureau said, to a total deficit of $3,797,433 for the five-year period.

The changing character of school and college campuses was blamed in large measure for reversing a trend of the 1950s toward lower rates with special deductions for better-than-average-risk schools.

The board said that raises in school insurance rates in 1964 and 1966 had been largely due to rising cost of construction and repairs.

"Since 1966, however," the board said, "the combination of both inflation and violence has produced the sharpest upward surge in losses that has ever been experienced."

The board said, "School buildings are popular targets for fire bombings and other forms of arson." These arson losses plus fire losses normally accompanying school use have run into the millions, the board said.

While the bureau indicated doubt that insurers could continue to offer special school insurance plans that give rate reductions, it noted that its recommendations are for standard rates, from which companies may deviate up and down.

But the bureau concluded: "California taxpayers will certainly face much higher school fire insurance premiums . . . until both inflation and violence are curbed."

Two Youths Hear Charges Of Theft

David Maddox Luce, 21, of San Anselmo, and James Franklin Snow, 21, of San Rafael, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of petty theft stemming from an arrest last Saturday in Fairfax.

The two were allegedly carrying a freezer stolen from an apartment house in the back of a truck when arrested.

Their case was continued to April 11.

Flames Ruin Mill Valley Apartment

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a Mill Valley garage and the apartment above it last night and caused extensive damage to two neighboring homes, fire officials said today.

Asst. Chief Joseph Regalia said the blaze apparently started in the garage at 37 Bayview Avenue. Damage was tentatively estimated at $16,500.

The fire spread to a two-story house at 35 Bayview Avenue occupied by Joan Y. Rosales and Earl Grant in its two apartments. The side of the house, the attic and roof were extensively damaged, Regalia said.

He said the fire also scorched a house at 39 Bayview Avenue occupied by M. C. Scott.

CANAL

special permit to dump more than 100,000 cubic yards at Alcatraz from a project in one year. The dredging is to take from six months to a year.

The dredged channel will be 150 feet wide south of the Richardson Bay Bridge, and 100 feet wide north of the bridge. It will be eight feet deep at mean lower low water. The waterway is unnavigable now at low tides.

Asked if the corps has studied where spoils dumped at Alcatraz end up, Col. Frank C. Boerger, district engineer for the Army, said "it's hard to determine if even a couple of million cubic yards would affect the bay." Most of the mud spoils apparently settle into a deep cone on the floor of the ocean just outside the Golden Gate, he said.

Commissioners also heard, but took no action on an application by Edgewater Yacht Co. to fill one sixth of an acre on the Sausalito waterfront. The vote on the application will be held on April 3.

San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the applicants, appeared before commissioners wearing one of the "save the bay now" buttons passed out at the beginning of the meeting. The fill will be for a landscaped plaza with a public walkway, he said, but would be converted to a parking lot for 28 vehicles if the applicants lost their lease for nearby railroad property.

The parcel to be filled is adjacent to a 101-seat restaurant planned north of Turney Street. The fill, to cost up to $10,000, would take a year to complete, according to the application.

The only other person to speak on the application was Matthew Koppel, San Francisco attorney representing Sam Zakessian, owner of an adjacent restaurant.

Koppel urged rejection of the application on the ground that the new restaurant would depend on use of his client's parking lot.

In other business, commissioners decided not to consider amending their plan for the bay to ease restrictions to allow such development as the one recently rejected for the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera.

"It just confuses the issue to nibble at it," said Dr. William F. Upton of San Rafael, a member of the commission.

Chairman Melvin B. Lane of Menlo Park reported that another bill to extend the life of the commision is about to be introduced by Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-San Mateo. The commission is to go out of existence late this year under current law.

Motorcyclist's Leg Is Broken

Scott D. McComas, 20, of 7 Warner Court, San Rafael, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with a broken left leg and cut face and hands suffered when his motorcycle hit the Highway 101 center divider this morning on Alto hill, the California Highway Patrol said.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 7:45 a.m. when McComas was hit in the eye by a rock thrown up from the roadway.

Hospital officials said McComas may be released today.

NIXON

privileges from students violating rules is one of the oldest practices of universities and colleges.

"Congress has done no more," he said, "than to withdraw federal assistance from those students judged, not by university regulations, but by courts of law, to have violated criminal statutes.

"Almost by definition, given the present tactics of disruption, anyone so convicted may fairly be assumed to have been assaulting the processes of free inquiry which are the very life of learning.

Nixon said, though, that he and the nation are far more concerned with a second issue—preservation of the integrity, independence and creativity of institutions of higher learning.

That led him to declare: "Freedom — intellectual freedom — is in danger in America . . . Violence—physical violence, physical intimidation—is seemingly on its way to becoming an accepted, or at all events a normal and not-to-be-avoided, element in the clash of opinion within university confines."

After getting his campus-disorders pronouncement out of the way, the President enjoyed a let-up day on his first visit back to his home state since his inauguration.

He and Mrs. Nixon are thinking about acquiring a summer home in this coastal area.

This morning, Nixon went out for a drive, but with no immediate indication that it was for house hunting.

This was in advance of visiting the famed mission at San Juan Capistrano and the swallows that have just returned from a winter absence.

Later on, the U.S. ambassador to Vietnam, Ellsworth Bunker, and the deputy American military commander, Andrew J. Goodpaster, were due in by air for talks with the President and the war in Southeast Asia and chances for progress toward peace.

Marin City Youth Dies Of Gunshot

Stanley Curry, 17-year-old Marin City youth who was shot in the chest March 8, died yesterday at Marin General Hospital.

Curry, of 149 Drake Avenue, had been in the hospital's intensive care unit since the shooting. His condition had been listed as fair and on Thursday, the hospital reported he had shown some improvement.

The shooting, termed accidental by Curry and the man who had the gun, Willie Edward Grayson, 22, of 89 Cole Drive, took place at a gasoline service station at 100 Donahue Street in Marin City, according to sheriff's deputies.

Grayson, an attendant at the station, told deputies he was moving the gun from his pocket to a desk drawer in the office. Then Curry said something which caused him to look up to answer and the gun accidentally fired, Grayson told deputies.

A .22 caliber bullet lodged in Curry's right abdomen.

Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan said today the cause of death is pending an autopsy, scheduled for today at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Curry was the son of Alice Curry of Marin City and Preston Curry.

Neighbors Foil Burglary Attempt

An attempted burglary at a Greenbrae home Thursday night was foiled when neighbors summoned the authorities, sheriff's deputies said today.

Deputies said three suspects were picked up in the area of the house but were later released for lack of evidence. The house at 155 Almenar Drive had been ransacked, they said, but nothing was reported missing.

The home belongs to Norman O. Schwein.

OBITUARIES

Garrett Nisidio Dies At 34

Garrett D. Nisidio, a San Francisco fireman who lived in San Rafael, died yesterday, possibly of a heart attack, after fighting a fire in the Chinatown section. He was 34.

Nisidio, father of four children, collapsed in the dormitory of Engine Co. 28 on Stockton Street after returning with his mates from a smoky, predawn blaze in an apartment house at 711 Pacific Street.

A fire rescue squad tried for 15 minutes to revive him. He was then taken to Mission Emergency Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Nisidio, a native of San Francisco, had been a fireman for nearly nine years and was a member of the Widows and Orphans Aid Society of the fire department.

He lived at 44 Maplewood Drive in the Glenwood section of San Rafael.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Best Friends Added To List For Very Special Qualities

DEAR HELEN:

I would like to add something to your "What is A" collection:

WHAT IS A BEST FRIEND

A best friend is:

The one you exchange rings and clothes and books and things with.

The one and only person you let know who you secretly like because you know she'd never tell.

The one who fixes you up with the cutest boy when you're pretty sure he'd rather go with her.

The one you cry to when you and your guy break up or anything bad happens.

The one everybody compliments on her looks and personality, but she's modest about it. Even when she goes out with more boys and gets more babysitting jobs than you, it doesn't matter — most of the time.

The kid who gets mad at you when you get jealous of her.

The girl you pour out your problems to and she makes you forget them by telling you hers.

The true blue gal you find out later made everyone dance with you.

The girl you tell when you gain a size in the right place — or even in the wrong.

The one who tells you off when you need it.

She's the girl whose house you sleep over in more than vice-versa.

She's the kid who acts sweet to your brothers when they're really brats.

She's the one you scrimp and save to buy a nice present, and you don't care what it costs.

She's the one you feel lost without when she goes on vacation.

She's the greatest girl in the world, and you'll remember her all your life as your best school pal. — J. C.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm writing to answer "Shut Out." You could say I'm that "precious little teen-age girl" (he describes) whose mother won't let her date an "older man."

Everything "Shut Out" said is true. My boy friend is an older guy (almost 20) and he has a lot more manners and respect for me than the fellows of 16 and 17. But try to tell that to my over-protective Mama and Papa!

They are violently opposed to me and Gary going together because they say older guys only have one thing on their minds. The truth is just the opposite. It is the younger boys that get fresh, and I know from experience!

How can I get my parents to see the truth? — PLEASE HELP

DEAR P. H.:

Your only hope is Gary himself. If he'll come to your house, talk to your folks, show them he isn't sprouting horns and their angel is safe with him, they may change their minds.

Some parents react to "older men" the way other adults react to Beatle haircuts. They never look beyond the obvious to the real guy underneath. Pity! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Here are some more slang words:

"A" — a pretty girl.

"Funky" — good music.

"Bull boy" — a constant liar.

"Biddy" — a crabby person, (Note from H: That's so old it's new again.)

"Soul man" — a person in the groove.

"Delbert" or "Durfus" — a ding-a-ling. — TOD

Dramatic Reading Of Psalms Given By Alexander Scourby

By GRACE HENDERSON

ALEXANDER SCOURBY

"By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion." The resonant voice boomed out the Psalm 137 of the Bible, transporting listeners to the hills of ancient times, in an ancient land. Like magic they were back among early prophets and teachers of religions. Taking his audience to Zion was Alexander Scourby, lecturer and actor, well-known for his readings of the Bible.

Transported into the past by songs of Psalms, members of the morning audience at the Tamalpais Theater needed to only close their eyes yesterday to imagine the voice to be coming from a hilltop, the time five or six hundred years before Christ. The voice could be that of any number of men singing out their praises to their God — or beseeching Him for help.

DRAWING A parallel between the psalms and works of art, Mr. Scourby commented that the way to judge potential works is with the question, "Will it say something 50 or 100 years from now?" Lasting works remain forever, he said, but tracing the progress of modern art he noted that beginning with abstract art, the trend went to pop art followed by op art. He observed that modern art is not lasting and therefore is not great.

The 150 Psalms have come down through the ages since their writing, from 500-200 years B.C. Collected up to possibly 100 years B.C., the Psalms have remained true, he stated.

"The King James version of the Bible is most dramatic of all versions. It will never be supplanted by the new Revised Standard Version," he added.

The Psalms carry a complete story of humans. They are songs of thanksgiving, personal lament, historical songs (of Israel), songs of nature, pilgrim songs — on their way to Jerusalem, songs of personal meditation and reflection, and some are blends of several or all.

Mr. Scourby personally recommended Psalm 137 saying, "It is for people like you and me." Pausing for brief comments before giving the last three verses of the Psalm he explained this is the part that bothers most people in that it is cruel in nature.

Suggested for personal reading was "Psalms for the Common Reader," a book by Mary Ellen Chase. This and the "Book of Psalms," a special translation published in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1640, are the two most recommended by the speaker.

The "Book of Psalms" was the first book to be published by the new colony. Printed by the University of Chicago Press, the book utilizes Old World spelling and pronunciation, giving both charm and substance to the works.

Beginning with "The Lord to me a Shepherd is . . . the 23rd Psalm is done completely in rhyme by the author of the little book.

Then, reading his own version of the Psalms, Alexander Scourby fluctuated through the emotional flow, starting with the oneness of the Almighty, with nature and with God as one's protector, he carried the audience through the various emotions common to the Psalms. A small feeling comes and grows, he said, and a person feels abandoned by God. A feeling of despair comes, then pride followed by forgiveness and thankfulness and praise with the final emotion one of complete gratitude to one's God.

MR. SCOURBY recently portrayed Walt Whitman in the off-Broadway production of "A Whitman Portrait" and repeated a portion of the works at his San Anselmo appearance. He has also recorded the complete Bible on three separate occasions for the American Foundation For the Blind and the American Bible Society.

It was through this work that Mr. Scourby became deeply interested in the Psalms as a moving and emotional piece of drama. It was on this background that his talk, the fifth in a series of 6 a.m. programs, was based.

The final program, to be given on "Leonardo Da Vinci" by Dr. Richard McClanathan, will be at the Tamalpais Theater on April 18. The series is presented by the Family Service League of Marin.

Sewing For Crippled Children Made Easier By New Booklet

By EUNICE FARMER

Thank you for the many answers you sent me concerning self-help clothing for handicapped children. The most complete booklet I received came from the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. This booklet is available for 50 cents and may be obtained by writing to the National Society at 2023 W. Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60612. It is filled with marvelous ideas — not only clever but attractive clothing ideas — that would boost the morale of any handicapped person.

May I also mention that this question came up at a very appropriate time of the year with Easter, April 6, just around the corner. The Easter Seal drive for funds to provide services for the handicapped continues until that Sunday. It's a great time to remember those people who are less fortunate than ourselves with volunteer work as well as any donation we can afford.

MRS. D. McINVAILLE, Hartsville, S.C., is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion:

"I made my daughter happy when she wanted one of the new 'Swiss type' jumpers. She also wanted one of the new dirndl skirts and couldn't decide which to make from a piece of material I bought for her. Because she happened to say that she wished she could wear it one way one time and the other the next, I decided to make the straps, put a large snap on the ends to match a snap on the skirt and presto, she can change it as she pleases and does she love it!"

DEAR EUNICE,

Would it be all right to use a linen blouse with my new wool spring suit? Linen comes in such beautiful colors and it seems I could wear my suit longer in the season.

MRS. G. T. H.

DEAR MRS. G. T. H.:

Yes, you certainly may use linen with wool. One of the signatures of George Halley (Seventh Avenue's most expensive couturier) is linen combined with wool. He uses many wool coats and dress combinations and the Empire bodice is very frequently made of linen. Another of his signatures, which make his clothes unusual is the use of a jeweled belt or a band of jeweled trim on these garments at the place where the bodice joins the skirt. I saw his entire collection and found the same detail in tweeds as well as very dressy and heavy double woven gabardines.

DEAR EUNICE,

Are imported cottons actually any better than those made in this country? I actually wonder if the word "imported" isn't just a snob word instead of a word used to describe expensive fabrics?

MRS. E. E.

DEAR MRS. E. E.:

It all depends on the type of fabric you are using for comparison. If you use a good quality cotton that has been made in this country, and compare it with the same quality cotton that has been made in Switzerland, France, Italy or elsewhere, you would find the same basic quality.

The difference in the cost of the two is due to production. Naturally, in this country there is no mill that can afford to offer hundreds of patterns, each in small quantities. European mills are all small, and mostly family type operations and therefore their looms can be set up for smaller yardages and their operation looms can be set up for smaller cost is not the same. Because of this, you will find more individuality in patterns which is immediately important to designers and any of us who want something beautiful as well as different. The minute a product is produced for a few rather than for the masses, you must be prepared to pay more.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am 16 and a junior in high school. Last spring I made a turquoise satin formal with the Empire waistline and a band around it with a bow as well as short sleeves. I only wore the dress once and it's too good to throw away but I would like to change it. Please give me some suggestions.

TERRI C.

DEAR TERRI,

There are several ideas I could give you that perhaps will stir your imagination, (bet you'll come up with something that is even more attractive than the original dress).

You could sash it with a wide ribbon. These come in stripes; moires; old-fashioned, watery-type; printed flowers etc. If you don't wish to use the ribbons where the original belt and bow appeared on the dress, you may use them at the lower edge of the skirt and if it's a long skirt, use the same ribbon in a second row, several inches apart in a narrower width.

Another new idea would be to remove the sleeves, face the armhole and you will have the great jumper look that you see everywhere today. With your satin jumper you can add a lovely sheer, long-sleeved blouse. If the blouse is plain organdy or organza, you can sew several bands of these gorgeous ribbons around the sleeves for another couture look. Because you started with a plain colored fabric, you chances for creativity are unlimited.

For further ideas for what to do with those sleeves, send for Mrs. Farmer's booklet, "All About Sleeves." Enclose 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and mail to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Marin Toddlers To Search For Easter Eggs With 'Bunnies'

Pixie Parents will hold its 14th annual Easter Egg Hunt and Fair Wednesday and Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross and is inviting all Bay Area preschool children and their parents.

As in the past, all children will be given baskets to collect candy eggs, and they will be assisted by Pixie Parents mothers dressed as Easter bunnies.

Among the entertaining events will be a "Peter Rabbit" puppet show, colorful strolling clowns selling balloons and pinwheels, the Humpty Dumpty Houes where children fish for prizes, an amateur art show where the children create their own masterpieces, and a basket toss game.

"The Special Easter Egg," an original Marian Cain Hayes production, will be performed in the barn twice daily by a cast of adult pixies.

Three new attractions have been added this year to the program. You may arrive with a little pixie, but you'll most likely leave with a Peter Cottontail compliments of the artists at the bunny makeup booth. Follow the Footprints and Musical Chairs are the other new events.

Bunny Bag lunches will be served at the Bunny Buffet during the fair. Proceeds are used to help maintain and improve the gounds and equipment at Pixie Place.

Mrs. John Macdonald and Mrs. Willard Stump are co-chairmen of the fair and are being assisted by Mmes. David Adams, William Adams, George Austin, Earl Bailey, Richard Bower, Wendell Brown, Mervyn Burke, Wendell Butler, Joe Campbell, Tracy Cummings, Clark Curtis, Arlen Ellis, Richard Hollingsworth, George Howard, Edward Jahns, Siegfried Kohl, James Miller, Alfred Noble, Harold Oyen, Charles Prugh, George Richards, Thomas Robinson and Andreas Stavro.

PRECEDING THE opening of the Marin Music Chest's annual subscription drive for the summer concert series on April 7, a "kick-off" tea will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Raymond Thayer, 86 Culloden Park, San Rafael, at which time chairmen and workers in the drive will be given final instructions and work kits.

Mrs. John Toole of Ross is hospitality chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ragnar Thaning, reservations. Mrs. Boyd Stewart and Mrs. Eugene Lloyd will register guests. Others on the committee include Mmes. Peter Skaer, John Lesoine, John Weber, R. F. Grambow and Carl Riznik.

Receiving guests will be Mmes. Thayer, John Toole, Samuel D. Archibald and Emmet Rixford, president of the Music Chest. Presiding over the tea table will be Mmes. Carlos Freitas, Wallace Scott, Ernest Kirschner and Peter Palmer.

Following the business meeting a program will be given by two of last year's Music Chest scholarship winners, flutist John Tomlinson, and trumpeter Bert Truax. Members of the executive board, artistic council and board of directors are also invited.

ALL BICYCLE owners from Corte Madera can register their bicycles on Wednesday from 2-4 p.m. at the Neil Cummins School at Mohawk Avenue. A fee of one dollar covers a two-year period. The service is provided by the Peter Pan Chapter of Children's Home Society, a California adoption agency which maintains a file and 24-hour answering service available to all local police departments. For proper registration each bicycle must be brought, since all are listed by frame number, color, make and size.

SANDOR SALGO, conductor of the Marin symphony orchestra and professor of music at Stanford University, will speak Wednesday at the final concert preview given by the Marin Symphony Guild. The preview will be held at 11 a.m. at the San Geronimo Golf Club.

Mr. Salgo will discuss the all-Berlioz concert to be given on March 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the College of Marin gymnasium when he will conduct the "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, the Symphony No. 2, "Harold in Italy" and the song cycle "Nuit d'Ete."

Members of the Symphony Guild and their guests will have luncheon at the club following the preview.

THE SECOND in a series of four orientation programs will be held at Sunny Hills Wednesday at 10 a.m. Volunteers and all interested people in the community are invited.

This series has been planned to help volunteers understand the problems and the challenge of the child with social adjustment problems. Judge Samuel Gardiner, Marin County Juvenile Court Justice, will speak.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Richard E. Mittelstaedt or Sunny Hills.

A MOTHERLY woman who enjoys young children is needed to read to children who have multiple sight and speech problems. Scrapbooks, picture books, story books and paint are used by the teacher as learning aides in the classroom. The volunteer will be working with individual children two or more mornings each week until June. Call the Volunteer Bureau in San Rafael for an interview appointment.

Crittenton Home Girls Tell Fears, Hopes For Offspring

By BETTY FROST

The four young women could have been classmates recalling shared experiences of dormitory life. That they were all pregnant seemed a coincidence instead of the central reason which had brought them together at the Florence Crittenton Home in San Francisco.

In the sunny living room of the Tiburon home of Mrs. H. K. Laymon, they spoke frankly and informally to members of the Marin Circle of the Crittenton Home Tuesday afternoon. With Jean Bolton of Sausalito, director of the home, as moderator, they were the panelists, giving a first hand view of the work of the home for unwed mothers.

WHAT HAD they thought before they came to the home:

"I expected it to be bad, but I thought I was so bad I deserved it. Nobody helped me make plans. I came by myself."

"I thought it would be old, dark and full of people who were weird. Actually it is nice, modern, and the girls are like I am."

"I thought it would be like a prison, and that I'd be the only nice girl there."

"I had to leave my home town. It didn't matter to me where I went. My mom and I made arrangements to visit the home."

Their initial fears were similar, too. That they wouldn't be accepted by the Florence Crittenton administrators, that the cost would be beyond their means, that they would never be allowed to leave the premises, and that the other girls would be mean and pushy.

Elements of relaxation and a home-like atmosphere, a modern kitchen, cheerful rooms, and a large patio provided a reassuring background. A dog, "Flossie," and a canary are popular with the girls.

"Three months is a long time to live with 42 pregnant girls," said one. "We are glad for the freedom to go out in the day, to visit places of interest in San Francisco and feel a little bit normal."

They can go out in the daytime and stay until 4:30 p.m., Miss Bolton explained. "With permission they may go out in the evening, returning to the home at 10 p.m. The rules are not designed for punishment."

The routine at the home includes chores, such as setting the table, doing the dishes, and light cleaning. The girls organize these necessary duties themselves, and the head coordinator is an elective post. Other activities include crafts, and arranging for special events, such as their recent St. Patrick's Day party. They can sign up for special committees if they wish, and "most of the girls feel better if they contribute," a spokesman said.

Hovering over each of the girls is the problem of her coming baby. Their young faces were troubled as they discussed the biggest decision — to keep or relinquish the child. Group discussions and counseling by medical and social service experts help them to see the various aspects of the problem. The actual decision each young woman must make for herself, after the baby's birth.

"YOU HAVE to think about your family," said one girl, "and consider the burden on your parents and younger brothers and sisters. Later if you want to marry, would the child be accepted?" she pondered.

One girl spoke of a relative with two adopted children and felt reassured by the happy family relationship in that home.

In some cases the baby's father assists with the decision. "Fathers are human too," Miss Bolton said. "We encourage the girls to resolve the relationship, not merely to abandon it."

This is not possible in every case. The adamant attitude of the boy's parents prevented any further involvment, so added to one young girls concern over her baby's future, was worry over the boy she cared for, who had no idea what had become of her.

QUESTIONS ABOUT the baby express the fears and hopes of the young women: Will the baby be healthy? Will he be adoptable? If adopted, will the child have the things I can't give him — good housing, an education? If I keep the baby, I will have to go out on my own and arrange for his care. . . .

The opportunity to see and talk to other girls helped by the Florence Crittenton home, some whom have kept their children and others who have relinquished them, helps the girls with their hard choice.

Grateful for the care and protection afforded at the home during the last three months of pregnancy and the week of recuperation after release from the hospital, the girls' honest presentation obviously touched the members of the Marin Circle, meeting in an all day session.

Despite the help at a crucial time in their lives, one of the girls remarked wryly, "But I don't want a return visit."

DRAMA REVIEW

'Rivals' Is Below Par For College Of Marin

By KARL BARRON

Producing the comedies of Richard Brinsley Sheridan is a task in the face of which strong professional producers quail. "The Rivals" is no exception, but it has the incomparable Mrs. Malaprop, a lady whose name has become a dictionary word because of her incredible misuse of the King's English. Given a good Mrs. Malaprop, an otherwise mediocre "Rivals" can succeed.

Unfortunately the College of Marin production which opened in Kentfield last night under H. J. Susser's direction has a Malaprop who is an unbelievable caricature; nor does it have sufficient other merits to make up for the lady's lack.

It has a breakneck pace which still does not cover a certain amount of boredom; it has several commendable performances; sets and costumes by Alonso D. Gonzalez are charming; original music by Mary Rosenquist and Robbie McBeath is delightful, played by its composers plus Laurie Adams and Jean Harris.

What is wrong then? In his production notes, Susser says "The polished formal acting style of the period (1775) has been modified to provide a modern audience an easier access to the inner warmth, truth and humanity of the characters." Good enough, if it were true.

But only three of the cast attain any reasonable feeling of humanity. The rest are two-dimensional, and at times as in the case of Malaprop, complete travesties.

Robert Deckelman as Sir Anthony Absolute attains fine dimensional proportions, making the old man a very recognizable person, filled with his own importance and completely self-deluded. Deckelman's first act tirade in trying to persuade his son to marry is a small masterpiece.

As Lydia Languish, Sylvia Scott takes on a most difficult ingenue and plays her with a ring of truth. Whether allowing her face to convey what she is reading in a book, or petulantly spurning Jack Absolute's advances, she is warmly believable.

Bryan Wittine as the second love interest has a good character working, but makes him too montonously whiney as the play progresses. Added to this are several more minor actors who appear to emulate him until the stage at times seems to be filled with snivelling nose-droppers.

Merike Brown as Mrs. M. comes on teetering in tight shoes with bobbing bustle; grimaces in agonizing fashion; twists her mouth about so that she is seldom even intelligible, and ceases to be really funny after her first five minutes on stage. Miss Brown has shown tremendous potential in previous work, but here she is allowed to run wild.

As Jack, Mark Rasmussen is a bit stuffy and tends to look like Superman coming out of his phone booth, but at least he's not a caricature, as are Jose Carrillo, Donald Carroll and Owen Orser in their roles. Jama Tegeler as a much-pinched maid is an adorable puppet, while Larry Smith and Karen Zide play their parts quite convincingly.

Probably the worst thing I can say of this production is that it is a good college try. We have come to expect more from College of Marin.

"The Rivals" will be repeated tonight and again Wednesday through Saturday of next week. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

NEW UNIFORM ADDS TO FAME FOR NOVATO

As Novato goes, so goes Tucson, that is as far as police uniforms are concerned.

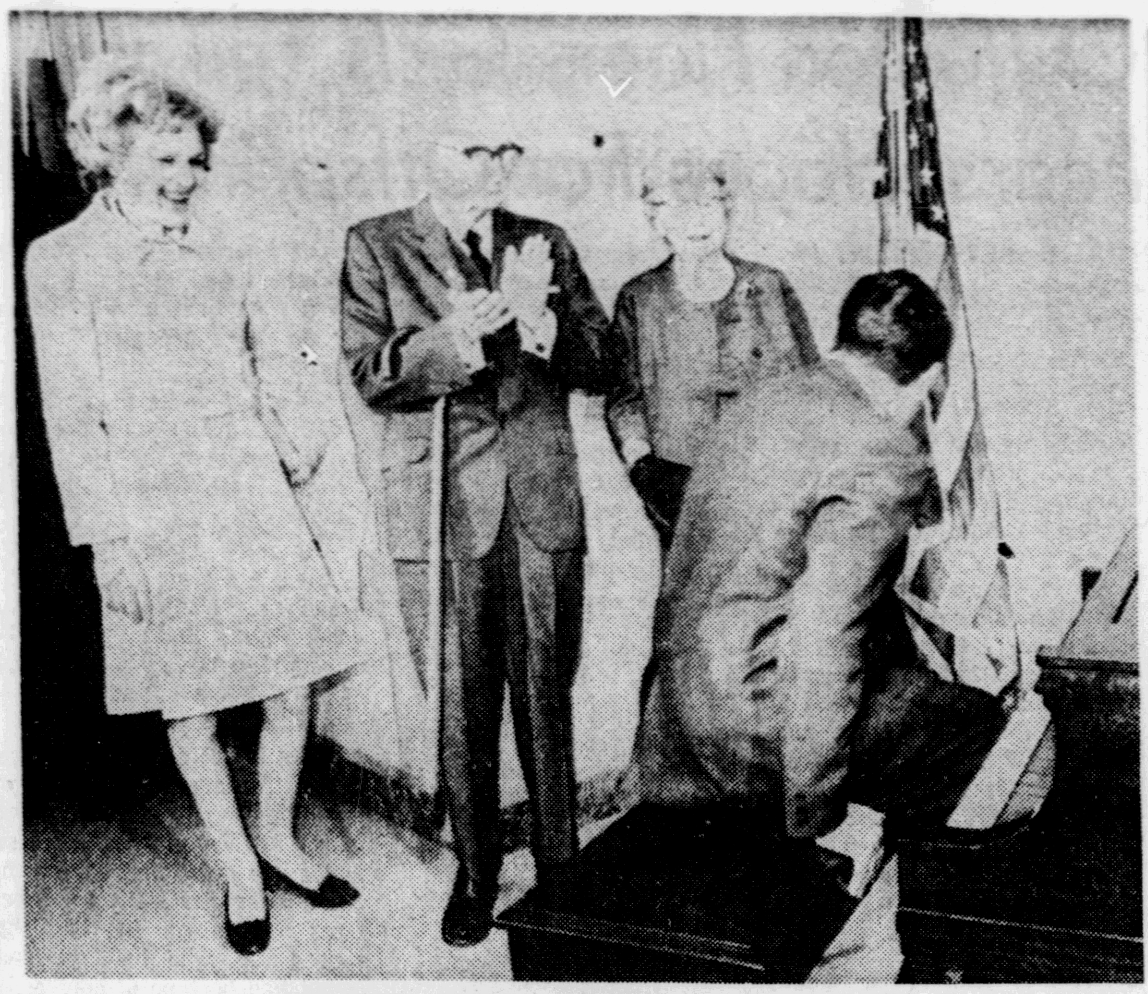
When Bob Hax's Independent-Journal photograph of Novato Patrolman Richard H. Rudy in the new blazer-type uniform appeared on the front page of the Tucson Daily Star, it struck the Arizona city's police as an answer to a better public image.

Novato police Chief Robert Di Grazia has received a call from the police there asking details on the natty uniform. The Tucson department will start using it for supervisors and administrative personnel, Di Grazia said.

Span Crash Injures Tiburon Resident

David A Nixon, 27, of 24 Circle Drive, Tiburon, was treated for a cut forehead and nose yesterday at Central Emeergency Hospital, San Francisco, after a collision on Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 7:10 p.m. when Nixon's car hit the rear of a car driven by Marie M. Duffy, 58, of San Francisco, who had stopped for a stalled car in southbound traffic.



COMMAND PERFORMANCE

Former President Harry Truman applauds as President Richard M. Nixon finishes playing — naturally — "The Missouri Waltz" on the piano Nixon brought with him as a gift when visiting the ex-president yesterday. Looking on are Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Truman, who recalled when her husband played the piano in the White House. (See also, story on page 1.) (UPI telephoto)

Contra Costans Suspected Of Black Point Pot Drop

Three Antioch men were booked into Marin County Jail last night after ditching a batch of suspected marijuana near Black Point, the California Highway Patrol reported.

James Laddie McCoy, 19, was booked on suspicion of possessing marijuana and dangerous drugs. His two companions, Robert Eugene Fertado, 21, and Dennis Holmes Bastian, 22, were booked on suspicion of being in a place where marijuana was being used.

Highway patrolmen reportedly curbed McCoy's car on Highway 37 at 9 p.m. after it was seen weaving along the road.

As the car slowed, patrolmen said, McCoy appeared to put something under his seat and a plastic bag dropped from under the car.

A patrolman retrieved the bag and reportedly found it held nine hand-rolled cigarettes, an ounce of suspected marijuana, and a green capsule.

In McCoy's car, patrolmen said, they found a hole cut in the floorboard, through which McCoy apparently discarded the plastic bag.

McCoy was held on $1,250 bail while Fertado and Bastian were held on $625 bail apiece. They are to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

To Talk On ESP

Russ Burgess will demonstrate his techniques of extrasensory perception at 8:15 p.m., today, in Olney Hall, College of Marin, as part of the Concert-Lecture Series. Burgess, formerly with the Department of Justice, lectures and demonstrates ESP, telepathy, thought control and precognition.

College Board Asks Tighter Residence Rules

Stronger residential requirements for college students over 21, to discourage movement of free-loading students from district to district, have been urged by Marin Junior College District trustees.

Trustees are making this recommendation by letter to the California Community Colleges board of governors, acting president Dr. Louis H. Herkenhoff said yesterday.

The present practice of many such students is to move into a district — often from out of the state—for the sole purpose of acquiring an education without a fair sharing of the costs by fee or assessed valuation of family property, the letter states.

No 'Oz' Performance Slated For Sunday

The New Shakespeare Company of San Francisco will not perform the "Wizard of Oz" tomorrow afternoon at the Tamalpais High School Auditorium as reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Romeo and Juliet, performed last night, will be repeated at 8:30 p.m. today as announced.

County Sign Controls Due Another Hearing

The county's new sign ordinance, banning billboards and setting specific limits on other signs, will get another hearing before the Marin County Planning Commission on Monday.

The all-day meeting starts at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

Owners of a ranch near the Sonoma County line will ask for permission to set up a rifle range for public use. William and Evelyn Souza seek rezoning of 19 acres, now agricultural, to resort-commercial, which permits firing ranges. The property is on the west side of Alexander Avenue, between Fallon-Two Rock Road and Tomales-Petaluma Road, near the Two Rock Ranch Station military reservation.

The $6 million El Marinero office and commercial center in front of the Civic Center will come up for design review. Architect Gilbert Oliver has designed a four-story structure with two parking levels underneath. The project will be built on five acres of land between North San Pedro Road and San Pablo Avenue.

John Gold Corp. will ask for a service station and boat storage facility next to the Howard Johnson restaurant and motor lodge which are under construction on the west side of Richardson Bay Bridge in front of Fireside Motel.

In the afternoon, planning commissioners will open hearings on a new logging ordinance and an ordinance to control developments in Tomales Bay.

At 3 p.m., commissioners will discuss rezoning of the Merrydale Road area in Las Gallinas Valley. A series of apartments has sprouted along Merrydale Road.

GARBAGE IS DELIVERED IN SAN ANSELMO

Mrs. Donald D. Herrick, her son, Marty, 2, and a friend, Pat Mandina, had just left the kitchen at 10 a.m. yesterday when this San Anselmo Garbage Disposal truck, fully loaded, rolled 220 feet down the hill and smashed into the kitchen wall. "I thought it was an earthquake," said Mrs. Herrick, pictured with her son. Driver Philip Moessner of 2 Skyline Road, told police that the left front brake line had popped. Mrs. Herrick said damages have not been estimated.

College Of Marin Students Tax Class Planning Seers

Many students wanted to enroll in certain classes this semester at the College of Marin for which there was no space provided.

Students for whom the college administration miscalculated demand numbered:

Psychology, 200; art, 160, English 1-A, 110; philosophy, 73; sociology, 70; American government, 40, and drama, 16.

The figures represent results of a survey revealed yesterday by Dean of Instruction Paul Clymer who said that on registration each student was asked to fili out a card listing course he wanted to take.

These figures were then compared with the number of classes the college had projected.

To take care of some of the overflow students, classes were added this semester in philosophy, psychology, sociology and drama.

It was the first time such a survey was taken by the college and Clymer, terming it valuable for programming, said it will be conducted again in the fall.

He warned, however, that one should be cautious about the results.

For example, many of the 110 students who signed up for English 1-A were ineligible to take the course, having to take "bonehead" English instead. Students did not know results of their test for English placement at the time they filled out course preference cards, said Clymer.

Another aspect is that if the college had set up extra sessions, some of the other classes would have ended up with too few students, the dean said.

Clymer said that figures are deceiving because some of the students may have signed up for two or more art courses, hoping that they would get into one of them.

He also said that when students can't get into one class, they usually go into another. "That something else might be just as valuable for them," he said.

Woman Is Freed Of Dope Charge

A methedrine possession charge against Roberta Idell Brust, 21, of Novato, has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Alvin G. Goldstein for insufficient evidence.

She still faces, however, a count of child abusing.

The case was continued until Monday to be reset.

14 Burglaries During February

Petaluma police investigated 14 burglaries in February, but solved none of them, according to the report issued by Police Chief Larry D. Higgins.

Thirty-four thefts were also investigated with four arrests made. Two aggravated assaults were reported with one arrest made. An attempted kidnapping also remains unsolved.

A total of 186 offenses were reported during the month and 537 complaints received. Traffic violations numbered 460 and injury accidents, 16.

Bales Urges Adding Six To His Staff

The district attorney's office needs another lawyer and a secretary now and four more staff members by July 1 because the workload has reached "the breaking point," Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales announced yesterday.

His appeal for more help will go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors on Tuesday. He said his staff is so overworked that a receptionist-typist quit this month and another secretary is about to quit.

As an example of the increase in workload, Bales said felony cases awaiting trial had jumped from 47 in February of 1967 to 107 in February of 1968 and 177 last month.

He said the workload for each of his seven deputies had jumped four-fold.

The district attorney will ask for one deputy now and another in July, one secreary-stenographer now and another secretary-stenographer, a file clerk and an investigator in July.

"In my opinion, this situation requires immediate attention and cannot await consideration at my 1969-70 budget hearing by your board," said Bales.

Author Sharply Critical Of 'Good Life' In Marin

Marin "is a lousy place for kids to grow up in," believes a Tiburon novelist who assesses his home county in the spring issue of Horizons magazine.

Kenneth Lamott makes the comment in a contemplative article, "A Few Hazards of the Good Life."

The "good life" in Marin, he holds, "is largely a white adult notion. For the kids, it's great to be able to camp out on the slopes of Mount Tam or dig in Inidan burial mounds or play tennis after school seven days out of 10 the year around or sail an El Toro out of the back yard, but the real thing that's on their minds is 'What's it all about, man?,' and the style of life we've evolved here doesn't give them a very convincing answer."

He suggests that "the good life" may lack meaning for adults, too, pointing out that "for some years after World War II there was a single psychiatrist in private practice in Marin County; last year the yellow pages of the telephone directory listed 43 of them, or about one-eighth of Marin's medical community.

"The pathetic and dreadful secret is out: Nothing really matters very much. Winning a yacht race is just as important as winning a case in court. Playing a first-rate game of tennis is just as important as painting good pictures. Remodeling a house is just as important as taking a class of freshmen through 'Heart of Darkness.' Nothing really matters very much, but the view of the bay is great."

Rummage Sale Set

Friends of the Larkspur Library will hold their annual rummage sale at 11 a.m., May 3, at the library at 400 Magnolia Avenue. Money from the sale of handicrafts, plants and books will be used to buy library books, Mrs. Samuel Huey, publicity director, reported.

RESOURCE CENTER

Seminary Will Seek $1 Million

Fund drives for $1 million learning resource center and a $300,000 chair of missions and evangelism have been approved by the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary Board of Trustees.

The two fund drives are scheduled for completion in March 1971.

Meeting last week on the Strawberry campus, trustees also approved a 1969-70 budget of $700,355, the largest in the seminary's history. Included in the budget was a 5 per cent cost-of-living increase for faculty and staff. The 1968-69 budget was $719,105.

Trustees also authorized funds to complete architectural design for a pedestrian bridge linking the living and service areas of the seminary.

The board re-elected Dr. Ernest P. Guy of Tiburon, president; Dr. J. C. Segler of Oklahoma City, vice president; Dr. Robert N. Stapp, of Seattle, secretary and Dr. John B. Hines of Garden Grove, associate secretary.

The board also approved seminary President Harold K. Graves' nomination as governor of Rotary District 513 and agreed to distribute some of Graves' responsibilities to other staff personnel.

During the three-day session, Dr. W. A. Criswell, of Dallas, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, spoke at a special dinner commemorating the seminary's 25th anniversary.

In his speech, Criswell, noting, that "I do not suppose that there is a harder place on the face of this earth to preach the gospel than in San Francisco, urged seminary students to be all the more committeed to their ministrys.

"Compared with the men working out here in California, I have it easy," Criswell said. "I am surrounded by millions of Baptists. But you are surrounded only by confusion and hate and other distractions to an effective ministry."

PALM SUNDAY RITES NEXT

The Independent-Journal Church Page will carry a list of Palm Sunday services in next Saturday's edition of the I-J.

Deadline for receiving service information is Wednesday, by mail or telephone.

Instructor For Bible Class Hired

Dr. Wayne Peterson, faculty member at Louisiana College in Pineville, La., has been named associate professor of Old Testament at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Strawberry.

Peterson, who will assume his duties at the seminary Aug. 1, taught for eight years at Ouachita Baptist College in Arkadelphia, Ark., before transferring to Louisiana College last year. He has taught both in the Old and New Testament fields but has placed major emphasis on the Old Testament.

A graduate of the University of Corpus Christi, he received a bachelor of divinity degree in 1953 and a doctor of theology degree in 1963 from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex. He has also studied at the University of Basel in Switzerland.

He is the author of "Sunday School Adults" a series of Sunday school lessons, and has been commissioned to write an interpretation of Ecclesiastes for the Broadman Bible Commentary.

He is married and has two sons.

New Minister Is Announced

Rev. William Perdue, senior minister of the Stone Church of Willow Glen in San Jose, has been appointed the new minister of the Westminister Presbyterian Church in Tiburon.

Perdue, a widower with four grown sons, will begin his new ministry April 7.

He replaces George F. Walker Jr. who resigned last September to become a campus minister at Humboldt State College in Arcata and the College of the Redwoods in Eureka.

Campus Pastor's Faith In Today's Youth Renewed

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A Lutheran minister attending a Foreign Language Music Festival session on the Edwardsville campus of Southern Illinois University, heard his name paged over the public address system.

The minister, Rev. Ronald H. Lind of the Mizpah Lutheran Church, St. Louis, quickly answered the page. It seems he had dropped a check, already endorsed, somewhere in the Student Union Building and a student had found it.

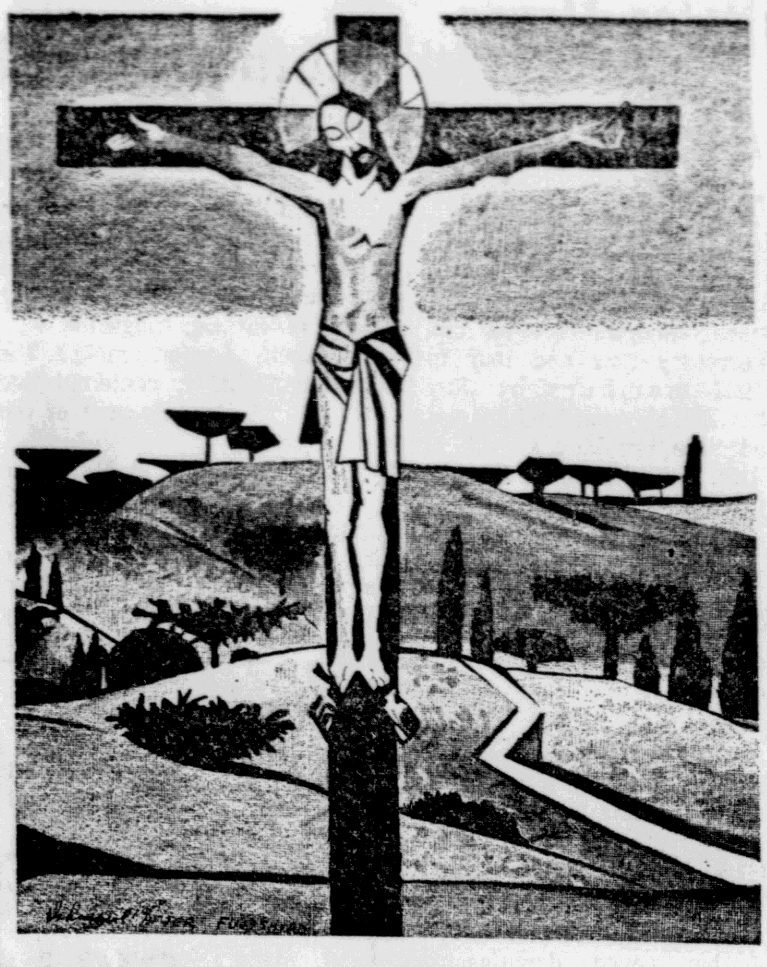
"We hear a great deal these days about the moral laxity of our nation's youth etc. etc.," he said. "But believe me, after this refreshing experience, I'm ready to give the whole SIU student body an 'A' for 'honesty'."

Lenten Tradition Of Giving Dramas

JERSEY SHORE, Pa. (UPI) — The ancient Lenten tradition of presenting dramas relating to the Passion of Christ has been revived by six United Methodist churches in this north central Pennsylvania area.

Newly formed drama groups in the churches each prepared a play with the theme "What Would Jesus Do?" A different play was presented weekly at each church during Lent.

The tradition was started by members of craft and industrial guilds who prepared the plays and then went from community to community presenting them.



THE LENTEN STORY

Japanese Artist Presents Dramatic Christ On Cross

By WOODI ISHMAEL
AP Newsfeatures
(Fifth in a series of seven)

Christians number less than one-half of 1 per cent of the total population of Japan. In view of this it is revealing to see how many artists are Christian and have created works from stories of the Bible.

To appreciate Japanese art we must understand its diversity. The Japanese, while grounded in tradition, have an open mind to the changes and influences of the contemporary world.

They have a rare gift of combining the best of many cultures yet retaining concepts of their own both ancient and contemporary.

The above drawing of Jesus on the cross from the work by Fujishiro is typical of combining a tragic story with modern germetric design in traditional block print style.

Such dramatic works of art break down barriers of communication and provide for a common bond where other means often fail.

Institutional Forms Of Church No Longer Exist In China Today

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — After surviving, at least partially, for more than a decade and a half under the heavy pressure of Red rule, religion in mainland China today is dead in its institutional forms.

That is the conclusion of church experts who piece together the available fragments of information on conditions in that vast, semiclosed country of blanketing totalitarianism.

Outwardly, they say the last vestiges of Christianity, Islam and the ancient faiths of Buddhism and Taoism have been wiped out.

"Organized religion" no longer exists in China, says the Rev. L. La Dany, a Catholic editor of a Hong Kong newsletter. But he adds that "religious belief" still persists among an unknown number of Chinese people.

In other Communist states, religious groups have managed to continue functioning, although usually under sharp limitations. This also was the case in China at least until 1966.

But since the wave of violence of the cultural revolution that swept the country at that time, the last remnants of religious activity apparently have disappeared.

That upheaval brought "an end to external manifestations of all religions," Father La Dany writes in the Jesuit weekly, America. Bibles were burned, temples and churches wrecked or sealed.

At the time, and since then, hopes have been voiced among church leaders that at least some of the worship places would be allowed to resume functioning again, once the turmoil had subsided.

But "there is no sign yet that any church of any religion has been reopened," Father La Dany says, apart from one Muslim mosque in Peking temporarily restored for the visit of a Muslim delegation from Africa.

When Mao Tse-tung came into power 20 years ago, there were about two million Catholics and a million Protestants among China's more than 600 million persons. Most others espoused Buddhism, Taoism and the old, ethical code of Confucianism. About 10 million were Moslems.

Through the ensuing years, all religious activity was brought under rigid state control and rising intimidation. Missionaries were expelled or imprisoned and contacts completely cut off with churches elsewhere.

Catholics, in order to continue their worship, were required to openly repudiate allegiance to the Pope and become part of a separate "Patriotic Catholic Church," set up in 1957. Those who refused to disavow Rome were imprisoned.

But even the "Patriotic Church," considered by many as schismatic now, "has become a martyred church," Father La Dany says. He adds that its 200 or 300 priests, dragged off by rampaging Red Guards, have dropped from sight.

Catholic Bishops Take Union Steps

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops of the United States have taken major steps toward official negotiations with the predominantly Protestant National Council of Churches for what could become a historic Christian alliance at the national level.

A small team of experts from both sides will be named in about a month to study admission of the Catholic Church into the council, it was learned this week.

The council is a voluntary fellowship of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox denominations with 44 million members. The Roman Catholic Church, which has kept itself aloof from the council since it was formed in 1950, claims 47.4 million American members.

Catholic inclusion in the council, still regarded as a few years away, would thus bring together the leaderships of 91.4 million of the estimated 126 million Christians in the United States.

The council holds annual meetings, elects officers and takes policy positions about secular issues but has no control over the creeds of its member Churches.

Although the doctrinal and moral tenets of the member churches are not the council's concern, Catholic membership one day could cause difficulty in trying to develop a council stand on such matters as contraception, where Catholicism and the rest of Christianity sharply disagree.

Catholic dioceses have joined the councils of other Christians on a scattered or state basis so far, the first time in 1964 in New Mexico and the most recent last month in Texas.

The Roman Catholic bishops of the country told the council last September that they were ready to consider national membership seriously. The new development is the selection of a team of experts to work out the details.

The group is being held to 15, already chosen but not yet announced, in the belief that fewer people can get more done. The initial meeting may be as soon as April, a council official said.

"We in the NCC welcome the move tremendously," Dr. Cynthia Wedel, the council's associate general secretary for Christian unity, said.

She said it "won't happen overnight" but estimated it might be four or five years until all the details are firm and Catholicism sits in the council.

A major topic for the panel of experts is the impact on existing council structure of letting in one Church whose followers outnumber those of all other 33 churches together. Voting rules in the council are based on member-church size. Neither Catholic nor council officials want to see the apparatus thrown out of balance, Dr. Wedel said.

Guest Minister Is Announced

Dr. Earle Shipley of the American Baptist Homes of the West, will be the guest speaker at both the 11 a.m. and the 7:30 p.m. services tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo.

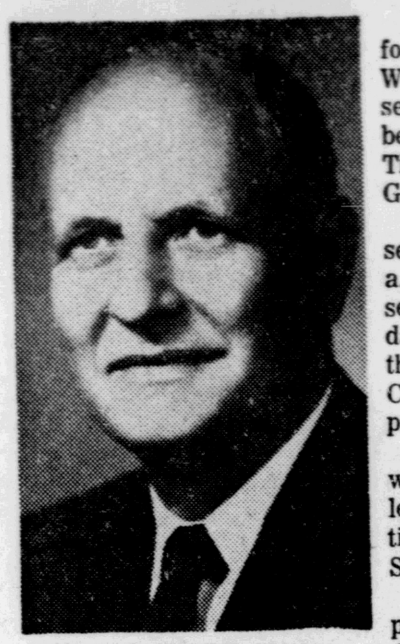
The following Sunday the pulpit will be filled by Rev. Terry Burch,

They are filling in for Dr. Ralph J. Fortune, minister, presently convalescing from surgery at Marin General Hospital.

Ecumenical Spirit

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rabbi Alvan D. Rubin, spiritual leader of Temple Israel, led a Jewish prayer service in the chapel of DeMattias Hall for Sisters of the Precious Blood and students of St. Louis University, a Roman Catholic institution. Sisters and students participated in the prayers and in singing liturgical music during the "ecumenical" service.

Tiburon Church Will Host Baptist Leader



DR. THEODORE ADAMS
'Open house' speaker

Dr. Theodore Floyd Adams, former president of the Baptist World Alliance, will preach at a series of "open house" services beginning tomorrow at the Tiburon Baptist Church, 445 Greenwood Beach Road.

Dr. Adams will open the series, preaching at both the 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. services. The series will continue through Friday with the retired pastor of the Richmond, Va., First Baptist Church, preaching daily at 7:30 p.m.

Also next week Dr. Adams will be presenting a series of lectures at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry.

Dr. Adams, who served as president of the Baptist World Alliance from 1955 to 1960, also serviced the alliance as vice president from 1947 to 1950 and is presently a member of the executive and administrative committees.

In the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. Adams is a past member of the Foreign Mission Board and is presently serving on the public affairs committee.

He received his bachelor's degree from Denison University in Granville, Ohio, and his bachelor's degree in divinity from Colgate-Rochester Divinity School in Rochester, N.Y. He received his doctorate of literary letters from Keuka College, Keuka Park, N.Y.

He is also holder of honorary doctorate of divinity degrees from seven colleges and universities, including University of Richmond, William and Mary, Baylor University and Washington and Lee University.

After 32 years as pastor of the Richmond church, Dr. Adams retired to become the current visiting professor of preaching at the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary at Wake Forest, N.C.

One of his present goals is the establishment within the church of an Institute of Pastoral Care where ministers are trained as counselors.

Dr. J. Lyn Elder, professor of pastoral psychology at Golden Gate Seminary, received his counselor training under Dr. Adams in Richmond.

Dr. Jerry Ashby, pastor of the Tiburon church, said of Dr. Adams' visit: "We are extremely fortunate to have him as our guest. He is a stimulating speaker. . . we invite all to hear him at the occasion of our 'open house'."

Candidate For Pastor Will Speak

Rev. Donald M. Rayment of Hayward will preach at the 9:30 a.m. service tomorrow as a candidate for position as minister of the Novato Presbyterian Church.

After the sermon, Dr. John J. Canoles, acting pastor of the church, will preside at a meeting of the congregation in which a secret ballot will be taken to see if the church will call Rayment as pastor.

William J. J. Smith, who has been chairman of the pastor-seeking committee, will present Rayment as a candidate for the position. The church has been without a permanent pastor since Rev. C. M. Croughan resigned last Aug. 1.

If the vote is favorable, Rayment, now pastor of Mount Eden Presbyterian Church in Hayward where he has been since 1967, will be named the new pastor of the Novato church.

Rayment is a graduate of San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo and former vice moderator of San Francisco Presbytery.

In case the congregation rejects Rayment, the committee will look for another candidate to present.

Episcopal Choir Will Sing Mass

The choir of Christ Episcopal Church, Santa Rosa and San Carlos avenues, Sausalito, will sing the "Messes Solennelle" (a solemn mass) from "St. Cecilia" by Gounod tomorrow at the 11 a.m. service.

Dr. Cecil R. Adams, choirmaster, will direct, and Emily Ross, Christ Church organist, will accompany. Soloists will be Betty Carter, Kenneth Small and David Wade.

Special Session

Marin County Evangelical pastors will meet at 8 a.m. Tuesday for their first fellowship session at the Valley Baptist Church near the Civic Center.

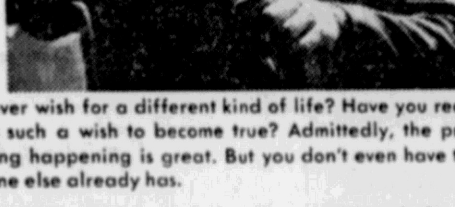
Tired
Of the Life You Lead?



Do you ever wish for a different kind of life? Have you realized it is possible for such a wish to become true? Admittedly, the price of such an astounding happening is great. But you don't even have to pay the cost —someone else already has.

"God loved the world so much that He gave His only Son, so that everyone who believes in Him may not die but have eternal life. For God did not send His Son into the world to be its Judge, but to be its Savior.

"Whoever believes in the Son is not judged; whoever does not believe has already been judged, because he has not believed in God's only Son.

"This is how the judgment works: the light has come into the world, but men love the darkness rather than the light, because they do evil things. And anyone who does evil things hates the light and will not come to the light, because he does not want his evil deeds to be shown up. But whoever does what is true comes to the light, in order that the light may show that he did his works in obedience to God."*

Come out of the darkness and find a new life—through faith—in Christ.

. . . the way

The fast tempo of these times is enough to make one wonder whether he's coming or going. There's got to be a fixed point of departure and return.
The Christian faith is rooted deeply in the lives of those who have found Jesus Christ to be the beginning and the ending of all their "to and fro" meanderings in the earth.
It was to a confused disciple that Jesus said:
"I am the way, the truth and the life." John 14:6

SPLENDID ANACHRONISM

This is the kind of home that people don't often live in these days, but should. Obsolescent, impractical, inconvenient & absolutely delightful. Fully fenced three quarters of an acre with fabulous landscaping attributed to John McLaren, a big absolutely private swimming pool & a moon-viewing terrace. Rambling old house with a view of Mt. Tamalpais. 2 frplcs., quarry tile floors and old-fashioned charm. House & grounds are private, serene, & sundrenched. The price for all this glory? A mere $47,500, far below present owner's cost.

CREAMPUFF '66 GMC PICKUP

We can really say that this is a real creampuff pickup due to the fact that it's our own company truck that we purchased new and have used here at our company for general use and picking up of parts around the city.

This half-ton pickup has just been repainted to blot out our signs and there isn't a mark of wear or damage anywhere. Popular V-6 engine with standard transmission, w/w tires, radio, power steering, Barden bumper, all the chrome mouldings and lots of other extras. A really top-notch truck that's dressed up appearance-wise to look like new. Serviced regularly in our shop so this truck shouldn't need a thing done to it. T68692.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Information Uncovered About Congenital Diseases

VAN DELLEN

Recently more and more conditions have been classified as hereditary disorders. Some abnormalities represent traits handed down from generation to generation.

Still others, such as inborn errors or metabolism, are the result of an inherited deficiency of a specific enzyme.

Lack of a particular catalyst blocks certain chemical processes leading to the abnormal utilization of carbohydrates, proteins, or fats. Examples include phenylketonurio, albinism, sickle cell anemia, and hemophilia A or B.

ON THE OTHER HAND, many are born with congenital malformations that are not necessarily inherited.

Up to 70 per cent of the women exposed to German measles in the first three months of pregnancy delivered children with severe congenital defects, such as cataracts, deafness, or heart disease. In other instances, mothers taking certain drugs during pregnancy gave birth to defective babies. Thalidomide induced deformities among 7,000 infants.

Chromosomal changes produce human malformation and inherited defects. Normal fertilized cells have 46 chromosomes; half are obtained from the sperm, the remainder from the ovum.

CHROMOSOMES MAY vary in number or in structure. Mongolism, for example, is caused by an extra chromosome. There also is a possibility that the measles virus adversely affects the chromosomal pattern. Radiation may do the same.

The malabsorption syndrome that produces a large number of disorders depends upon what substance is not being absorbed. Missing factors may be proteins, fats, carbohydrates or a single component found in these nutrients. Or, absorption of a vitamin or mineral such as calcium or iron is subnormal.

Furthermore, there are reasons galore why these items are not absorbed.

WINNING BRIDGE

Bidding On A Weak Hand Can Sometimes Locate Key Cards

Much can be said in favor of bidding after an opponent has opened the auction, but there isn't much advantage in overcalling with a pitifully weak hand. You don't interfere with the enemy's bidding, and your bid serves only to tell declarer where the missing high cards are.

Opening lead — ♠ K

BAD BREAK

South won the first trick with the ace of spades, drew one round of trumps with the king and cleared the ace and king of diamonds out of the way. Then he led a trump to the ace, expecting to claim the rest of the tricks if the trumps happened to break 2-2.

When the trumps broke badly, South ruffed dummy's low diamond and cashed the ace of clubs. Then he led a trump to the queen and chased the queen of diamonds to get rid of the ten of clubs.

AT CROSSROADS

If nobody had bid, South might have led the queen of clubs from dummy for a ruffing finesse, expecting to discard a spade if East played low. This play would bring the slam home if East had the king of clubs. Since West had bid, however, South expected West to hold the king of clubs.

West had been forced to discard twice on the trumps and had thrown one low spade and then the nine of clubs. It was clear that West's last four cards were three spades and only one club. South therefore ruffed a club, dropping West's king.

EASY THEN

It was then easy to give up one spade and win the last two tricks in dummy with the last trump and the queen of clubs.

Good players have to know how to bid, it is true, but they should also know when to keep quiet.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens the bidding with 1-no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ K Q 9 7 6
♦ J 7 6 4
♣ K 9 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Jump to three spades, forcing to game.

Partner is expected to raise spades if he has three or more spades in his hand; otherwise he bids three no-trump.

Colorful Dress In A Robbery

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—Police couldn't find their suspect in the $300 robbery of a loan company here but they had a pretty good description.

The culprit in the midafternoon heist wore purple pants, a navy coat, an ornament in his left ear and escaped in a yellow taxicab.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, March 22, the 81st day of 1969 with 284 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, and Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Saturn and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1794 Congress passed legislation forbidding slave trading with other nations.

In 1820 Commodore Stephan Decatur, American naval hero was killed in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington. Barron believed Decatur was responsible for his removal from active Naval service.

In 1941 the Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River began producing electrical power in the Pacific Northwest.

In 1968 President Lyndon Johnson said he was replacing General William Westmoreland as commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: British novelist Cleghorn Gaskel said, "A man is so in the way in the house."

Ocean Garages

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world's largest seagoing garages carry up to 1,150 automobiles for the export and import trade. Cars driven through the stern ramp of Atlantic Container Line cargo ships are parked in special 5 foot-5 inch low-ceiling cargo holds for trans-atlantic passage between U.S. and European ports.

SLOW, HARD DEGREE

Ex-Convict Tells His Story To Teen-Agers

By JOANNE GRANT

"I'm Kalir Shannon. I'm an ex-convict," the sometimes priestly sounding man said into the hushed stillness of the crowded Marin Catholic High School gymnasium.

"I graduated from the finest university in the world — the state penitentiary," he continued. Altogether (including parole time) it will take him 15 years to get his "degree," he said.

Shannon -- now working as a busboy in a San Rafael restaurant — appeared yesterday at his own request to propose problem solving sessions between students and ex-convicts in a new phase of his growing one-man campaing to help.

Shannon of San Rafael, already spends most of his free time helping ex-cons find jobs, buy clothes and food and readjust to society.

Many of those he is working with are from the Marin County Jail — men on work-furlough and persons who have "graduated."

"I'm working with 19-year-olds here (at the jail), why wait until they get here?" he said as he explained his student talk in an interview before his appearance.

Shannon, neatly dressed in a suit and tie, didn't look, talk or act like the armed robber he once was, as he faced the high school students yesterday.

He spoke of authority, respect and love: "When you do not have authority you do not have respect and there can be no love unless you have respect."

"I hope you can imagine what it would be like to be in prison for 15 years and come out and see all these freaks running around," Shannon said.

The "freaks," such as those persons with long hair who look for flowers and rocks, do not respect authority, he said with the firmness of a man who has learned such respect the tough way.

Shannon described prison as a hell of extended suffering and terrible loneliness.

Convicts don't dream of women or dope. "There's plenty of dope in the joint" (his term for prison); they dream of getting out, he said.

Shannon reported the Marin Catholic principal told him a quarter of the students were on marijuana and indicated he believed there are more than that. The parolee stressed how unimportant it becomes in prison.

"I have a group of convicts who would be willing to come to the school, any school, and tell it like it is," Shannon said as he explained his plan for small group sessions aimed at keeping the young people out of jail.

Students who are interested in forming such groups may contact their school principals, Shannon said.

Fort Ord Court-Martial April 7 For 14 In Mutiny

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The court-martial of 14 young army privates charged with mutiny will open at Fort Ord April 7, the commanding general of the 6th U.S. Army announced at the Presidio today.

Five GIs in the group of 27 accused of mutiny because they held a sitdown during a roll call at the Presidio last Oct. 14 now are being tried in a court-martial at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Trials for four others among the 27 who were protesting a guard's fatal shooting of Pvt. Richard Bunch of Dayton, Ohio, during an alleged escape attempt already have been held at the Presidio and at Fort Irwin, San Bernardino County.

The remaining three among the 27 have escaped.

In announcing the court-martial next month at Fort Ord, the army said a site other than the Presidio was selected to insure a fair and impartial trial.

Attorney Terence Hallinan of San Francisco, who voiced strong criticism of the court-martial proceedings at the Presidio, will represent the 14 men at Fort Ord.

The Army listed these 14 as:

Stephen Roland, San Francisco; Michael Marino, Vacaville, Solano County; Ernest Trefethen, Ridgeway, Ontario; Richard Gentile, Hampton, Va.; Roy A. Pulley, Clear Lake Park, Lake County; Richard Duncan, St. Helena, Napa County; Danny L. Wilkins, Central, Utah; Francis Schiro and Danny R. Seales, Orangevale, Sacramento County; Buddy J. Shaw, Hayward; Larry Sales, Modesto; Richard Stevens, Centerville, Butte County; Allen L. Rupert, Bellingham, Wash.; and Patrick Wright, Santa Rosa.

Teen-Ager Held In TV Theft Check

A 19-year-old San Rafael youth was arrested Thursday on suspicion of burglary after police officers allegedly found him carrying a stolen television set out of a Sausalito home.

Michael John Pereira of 23 Fairfax Avenue, San Rafael, was held in Marin County Jail in lieu of $750 bail. He is to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment.

Police said officers investigating a complaint by neighbors about a suspicious person at 156 Spencer Avenue found Pereira carrying the portable television set up the front steps from the William J. Troy home.

Tired Of The Life You Live?

The young mother had just finished reading an article describing some of the great advances in modern medical science.

She read of an artificial heart used to replace a human heart while it was undergoing repair. She read of an artificial kidney which added years of life to people who formerly would have been hopeless cases. She read of artificial lungs, eye transplants, restoration of severed limbs, and other unbelievable ways of restoring injured or worn-out parts of the human body.

"What's the use of replacing parts of one's body if life doesn't seem worth living anyway?" she said despondently to no one in particular. "If someone could discover a way to give a person a new life, then maybe I really would be interested."

The young woman didn't know the truth. It is possible for a person to get a new life! God made it possible.

"God loved the world so much that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may not die but have eternal life."*

For years Christians have been telling this good news. Yet the demand for new lives is not great. The reason is not that most men are satisfied with life as they now live it—for they aren't.

Perhaps they are so ashamed of their present life that they hesitate to approach God about a new one. Is this your reason? If so, you've forgotten that God has already taken the first step. He has made possible a new life at the cost of his Son—if you will come to him in faith.

Isn't the next step up to you?

KING ELGIN OF LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles forward Tom Hawkins congratulated Laker super-star Elgin Baylor, who was honored at "Elgin Baylor Night" at the Los Angeles Forum last night. The king-sized chair, which is 100 years old, was one of many gifts, including a car and a lifetime gold pass to NBA games, which Baylor received. Elgin responded by scoring 21 points in a 116-103 Laker win over the Atlanta Hawks. (UPI telephoto)

Mays, Marichal & Co. Give San Diego A Good Lesson

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Two of baseball's best, Willie Mays and Juan Marichal, showed the San Diego Padres, newest entry in the National League, how it's done yesterday.

Mays, installed by manager Clyde King as the lead-off batter, ripped a two-run home run and Marichal gave up only one run in pitching six innings as the San Francisco Giants ran up a 9-6 Cactus League victory over the Padres. It was their fifth straight win and 10th in 13 exhibition games.

Mays rapped his four-bagger off veteran Johnny Podres, whose string of shutout innings was snapped at 12 2-3.

On the other hand, Marichal effectively checked the San Diego hitters during his stint which was marred by a solo homer by Clarence Gaston. It was the first run given up by Marichal this spring.

Mays, Ron Hunt and Hal Lanier each collected two hits to pace San Francisco's 14-hit attack off three Padres pitchers.

The Giants went into the ninth with a 9-1 bulge but the Padres rallied for five runs before ace reliever Frank Linzy finally retired the side.

Tony Gonzalez, reportedly being showcased by the Padres who are in need of a catcher, and Bill Davis each paired hits for the losers. In addition, Gonzalez drove in a pair of runs.

In today's action, San Diego travels to Yuma to meet Cleveland and San Francisco gos to Palm Springs to do battle with the California Angels.

McCovey's Sub To Get Pinch Hitting Duties

PHOENIX — Bob Burda would dearly love to qualify for the job Ty Cline held with the Giants last season — relieving Willie McCovey at first base, pinch hitting and substituting in the outfield when necessary.

Burda is a 30-year-old rookie whose baseball career has been spent in the minors. In Phoenix where he has been first baseman the past several years for the Pacific Coast League farm club of the Giants, Burda is No. 1 favorite of fans.

His admirers are convinced that he never was promoted to the big club because of circumstances, not lack of ability. The circumstances in Burda's case were created by a couple of standout first basemen, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey.

When McCovey staged a holdout this spring, Burda got a golden opportunity to play every day. And he made the most of the opportunity. He hit just like Clyde King said he would. King, now manager of the Giants, learned all about Burda last year when he managed Phoenix.

Approaching the midway mark of spring training, Burda was batting .395. He had four extra base hits, all doubles; eight RBIs and six runs personally scored. He struck out only twice and drew six walks.

"Naturally," said Burda, "I don't expect to beat out McCovey. He's the best first baseman in baseball. But I think I'm better suited than some players coming off the bench. I can make contact. And that is very important for a pinch hitter."

Only 18 Whiffs In 500 At-Bats

The fact that Burda struck out only twice in a consecutive string of 45 plate appearances while McCovey was negotiating a new two-year agreement, speaks for itself. In 500 trips to the plate for Phoenix last year he struck out only 18 times.

This will be Burda's 12th season in pro ball. He's come a long way since his first professional time at bat for York of the Eastern League in 1958. In his travels through the International, Southern Association and Pacific Coast Leagues he has been at bat nearly 5,000 times.

In brief periods with the Giants in 1965 and again in 1966, Burda got to bat just 84 times as a major leaguer. That is the extent of the 30-year-old rookie's big time experience.

There is no doubt Burda could do a commendable job filling in at first base for McCovey Whenever necessary. But Burda is no outfielder. That became quickly evident when King put him in rightfield for a three-inning stretch March 15 against the California Angels.

An Embarrassing Experience

Burda couldn't catch up with a fly ball off Jim De Neff's bat in the right center lane and it rolled to the fence for a two-run triple that scored Jim Spencer and Tom Egan.

King knew that Burda wasn't an outfielder. Was King trying to embarrass Burda? Far from it. Burda knew what King was up to. The new manager of the Giants (who never played Burda in the outfield at Phoenix) hoped Burda's ineffective patrol work would prompt one of the less competitive-minded youngsters on the roster to volunteer for patrol work.

No volunteers approached King or his coaches to say: "I can do better than that guy out there."

Ex-Manager Mike Higgins Dies At 59

DALLAS (AP) — Former Boston Red Sox Manager Michael "Pinky" Higgins, American League Manager of the Year in 1955, is dead at the age of 59.

A spokesman at St. Paul's Hospital said Higgins died yesterday afternoon shortly after he was admitted to the emergency room with a heart ailment.

Higgins' death came only two days after he had been released from prison at Francisville, La., where he served two months of a four-year term on a negligent homicide charge.

Higgins pleaded guilty to a charge that his automobile killed a highway worker in 1968. Police said Higgins was driving while intoxicated.

Under Louisiana law, a first offender may be considered for parole at any time if his sentence is less than five years.

Higgins broke into the major leagues in 1930 with the Philadelphia Athletics.

SCARED ROOKIE

When Higgins was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in 1965, he recalled how scared he was making the train ride from Texas to join the Athletics.

Higgins said he thought he had to furnish his own bats, so he carried two on the train with him. He was so afraid of losing them, he said he carried them everywhere and even slept with them.

In 1938, Higgins established a major league record of 12 consecutive hits. The record still stand, although it was later tied by Walt Dropo.

FIELDING RECORDS

Two years later, while playing for Detroit, Higgins set three World Series fielding records that still stand. They include most chances in a game, 10; most assists in a game, 9; and seven-game series record of 34 chances, four putouts and 30 assists. His lifetime batting average was .292.

The Red Sox were rated a second-division team when Higgins took the helm in 1955 but he guided them to a fourth-place finish and was named Manager of the Year.

Funeral arrangements have not been made, pending arrival of relatives from overseas.

Warriors Wind Up Schedule

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors conclude their regular National Basketball Association season against New York tonight hopeful they'll get a better turnout for Fan Appreciation Night at the Cow Palace.

A slim turnout of only 2,897 showed up at the Oakland Coliseum Arena last night for the East Bay fan night as the Warriors, with reserve Bill Turner pumping in key baskets, hustled to a 103-100 victory over the fledgling Milwaukee Bucks.

PLAYOFF BERTH

Turner scored seven of the last night points as San Francisco assured itself of at least a .500 season record. The win upped the Warriors' record to 41-40, good enough for third place and a Western Division playoff berth.

The Warriors led by as much as 14 points midway in the final quarter when the Bucks went on a 14-5 tear to cut the deficit to 94-89.

That's when Turner swung into action with his key baskets. All told, he wound up with 23 points, three less than teammate Jeff Mullins, who tanked a game-high of 26.

Six-Way Logjam In Golf

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino, the voluble Latin who learned his golf playing in tensomes with a Dr. Pepper bottle, threw down the gauntlet today to his fellow pros.

"I think I can win the Masters," said the colorful Mexican-American, who is reigning U.S. Open king.

"All you got to do at Augusta, Ga., is putt — don't three-putt any greens. And I feel real good about my putting. Honestly, I believe I can do it."

Trevino's confidence was buoyed by his second straight 69 yesterday in the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open, which put him into a rare six-way tie for first place at 138, six under par.

Lee has pretty powerful company in the form of comebacking Arnold Palmer, who has shown he can still explode birdies in the stretch; 41-year-old Lionel Hebert; Gardner Dickinson, the same age; Ken Still, who won a couple of weeks ago at Orlando, and the 20-year-old Bobby Cole of South Africa, who can belt a ball as far as Jack Nicklaus despite a 135-pound physique.

SLIM LEAD

This front-running sixsome has only a stroke lead over a half-dozen others going into the third round over the 7,221-yard, par 72 Deerwood course.

The runner-up group at 139 includes Australian Bruce Crampton, Jack McGowan, Ray Floyd, Bob Smith, Frank Beard and the astonishing Rives McBee.

McBee equaled the day's best round—a 67, shared by the veteran Bob Rosburg—and thus brought back memories of the record-tying 64 he shot in the National Open at San Francisco in 1966.

Beard shot a 70, although he was informed on the second hole that his wife in Louisville had just given birth to their third child, a girl.

BASEBALL GRIP

Rosburg, 42, user of an unorthodox baseball grip and an infrequent tour player, is one of a half-dozen at 140, while some of the game's most dangerous players are another shot back at 141.

These include Nicklaus, 69-72; Bill Casper, leading money-winner of 1968, with 71-70; South Africa's Gary Player, 72-69; Tom Wieskopf, 69-72, and Doug Sanreds, 71-70, not to mention half a dozen others.

Trevino, who is threatening Palmer for gallery appeal, continued his wisecracking repartee with the crowd while tossing in his pars and birdies, but he said such antics don't disturb him.

"Man, I can joke with a guy in one second and turn it off just like that," he said. "When I get ready to make my shot, I am in a shell. I forget everything and everybody."

He said he almost won the Masters a year ago.

"Going into the last round I

Some Progress Reported In Realignment Meeting

Sports

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — The 26 club owners of the American and National Football Leagues scattered for home today, thoughts of 4-4-5 dancing in their heads.

They also were thinking of April in New York, because that's when and most likely where they'll start negotiating again on realignment for 1970.

The leagues recessed their winter meetings last night after making some progress in five days of separate and joint sessions but not nearly enough to determine the form pro football will take after this coming season.

The key to a solution lies in the 4-4-5 concept—divisions of those numbers of teams in two 13-team conferences. Using this philosophy, which the AFL likes but which the NFL is cool about, realignment could be achieved in one of two ways:

MOVE TEAMS

1. Move two or three NFL teams into the AFL. If two, divide the 12-team AFL into three units of four and the 14-team NFL into two fives and a four. If three, divide the resulting 13-team conferences into divisions of four, four and five. Each of the NFL teams would go into different NFL-AFL divisions.

2. Take the two four-team divisions in the NFL's Western Conference and place them with the AFL's five-team Eastern Division, and place the two four-team divisions of the NFL's Eastern Conference with the AFL's five-team Western Division.

While the first idea seemed far-fetched a few days ago because it seemed unlikely that any AFL teams would be willing to switch, the Associated Press has learned that at least one and possibly as many as three NFL teams have expressed some sympathy toward the move.

Baltimore appears to be the key team, with owner Carroll Rosenbloom reportedly willing to move if he can name the other team or two that would go with the Colts.

Minnesota and Dallas are other possibilities, although General Manager Jim Finks of Minnesota denied that the Vikings would go along.

The AFL, of course, would be delighted to have these teams. The NFL, on the other hand, is not exactly thrilled with the prospect of giving up three of its four division champions from last season.

The second plan would keep present divisions intact and would solve at least two problems. It would place the two New York teams, the AFL Jets and the NFL Giants, in separate conferences, and it would put the AFL Cincinnati Bengals in the same conference with the NFL Cleveland Browns.

TV MARKET

The New York separation is dictated by television—both of the two networks that would handle the two TV packages would insist on the New York market, the nation's largest.

When the AFL owners recessed after 9½ hours yesterday, league President Milt Woodward said: "Our people are interested in nothing else but getting equality in the two divisions. We want equality. There's no doubt about that. We'll take any good arrangement of 13 and 13. We can work it out."

With these feelings rampant, the AFL owners quickly rejected an NFL proposal yesterday to institute the 16-10 with inter-league games for a period of time starting in 1970 to see how it would work out.

Most Prep Sports Washed Out But Swim Favorites Triumph

Rain and wet grounds yesterday cut a thick swath through high school sports activities except the one in which water counts the most.

The 1969 Marin County Athletic League swimming season opened right on schedule with the three major expected powerhouses taking easy dual-meet victories, but the track season failed to open as three league-opening MCAL meets went down the drain because of wet tracks.

Also washed out was an entire baseball slate, as only a non-league track meet and a spatter of tennis matches came off.

WEAKER FOES

In swimming, Tamalpais, of Mill Valley, Redwood and Novato blasted weaker opponents in grand fashion. Tam's Indians whipped Terra Linda, 65-29 as veteran Bruce Averill won the 200 yard individual medley and the 100 backstroke and Tom Smiley also won a pair of events.

Redwood, as expected handled San Marin easily, 74-19 at Larkspur with sophomore Brian Hennesey winning a pair of events. Mike Roark set a Redwood record of 2:14.3 in the 200 I.M., and Ken James set a mark of 4:11.4 in the 400 freestyle.

Novato's flock of talented freestylers took care of host San Rafael, 72-23, as Bill Kuhn won a pair of events.

TAM SECOND

In other prep sports, Tamalpais finished second in a four way track meet at Ukiah, behind Santa Rosa and ahead of Ukiah and El Molino of Forestville.

Luther Brown, hurdling for the second time in his track career, won both the high and low hurdles for Tam, in 15.1 and 20.4 seconds. The Indian mile relay team turned in a winning 3:32.2 effort behind Bill Baker, Pat Bowen, Mark Miller and Brown. Miller won the 880 in 2:03.7 and Kit Healy captured the two-mile run in 10:06.

In tennis, Tamalpais whipped Vallejo, 5-1, at Mill Valley as Andy Moffat, Jeff Griffeath, Jan Brink and Andy Stevens won in singles and Bill Everetts and Tim Morgan took a doubles win.

Terra Linda lost to Alameda, 4-2, at Terra Linda.

Also in tennis, unbeaten Redwood (3-0) blanked Washington of San Francisco, 6-0 at Redwood.

RACING'S SENIOR CITIZENS

Brennen, Leslie At Sears

Two senior citizens of road racing, Merle Brennen of Reno and Ed Leslie of Monterey, will be driving as the San Francisco British Motor Cars team entry next Saturday and Sunday in the Sears Point International Raceway's first road race.

The event, sanctioned by San Francisco Region of Sports Car Club of America, is the first race of the season for SCCA.

The two well known drivers have been longtime favorites in Northern California. Brennen, in his MGB, and Leslie, in an MGC, will have extra assurance in cars prepared by veteran designer - builder Joe Huffaker of Novato.

Brennen, who thrilled fans with his ability in an XKE, has recently been driving a very reliable McLaren. Leslie, a grandfather, has been seen on tracks from Cotati to Sebring, Fla. He co-drove a Lola-Chevy to second place in the recent Daytona 24-hour endurance race.

Jim Dittemore of Redondo Beach, driving a C-Production TR-6, and Lee Mueller of Lynwood in an F-Production Spitfire, will enter as Triumph Team, both cars Kastner-prepared in Los Angeles.

More than 200 entries have already been received for the two-day meeting at the new raceway, located off Highway 121 near its junction with Highway 37 in southern Sonoma County. Races will be for regional and national points, with some of the new drivers out of the SCCA training school getting their first try, also.

Qualifying for national drivers begins at 9 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday. Racing begins at 11 a.m. Sunday. Admission is $5 either day, or for the entire weekend.

Seals Vs. Kings In Big Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Both the Los Angeles Kings and Oakland Seals have a lot at stake in their National Hockey League clashes tonight at the Forum and tomorrow at Oakland.

The Kings have a 4-0-2 record against the Seals this season but remain in third place behind Oakland in West Division play. Los Angeles brings a winning streak into the match, though, with a 3-1 victory Tuesday over Oakland, followed by a 4-2 decision over Detroit Thursday night.

The Seals have played two more games this season than the Kings so they realize how important the weekend contests are.

Baltimore's Ugly Ducklings Now Cinderella Fellas

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Baltimore Bullets, the ugly ducklings of 1968, are the glamorous Cinderella team of 1969 in the National Basketball Association.

The Bullets clinched the Eastern Division championship by whipping the Chicago Bulls 115-103 last night. They thus became only the second team in NBA history to jump from last to first in one season. Indianapolis did it in 1950.

Paced by Earl Monroe's 41 points, the Bullets pulled away in the last five minutes with a string of 12 straight points that broke an 89-89 tie.

Gene Shue, the happy Baltimore coach, gave full credit to Monroe. "The turning point in our success came last year when Monroe assumed the leadership of the team after we traded Don Ohl to the Hawks," he said.

"Everyone thought we would fold two months ago when Gus Johnson, our leading rebounder, was injured," continued Shue as he was doused with champagne by his players in the dressing room at Chicago.

"But we not only came back, we did even better than anyone expected. Monroe has been unbelieveable this year and his play has given this team the lift that it needed. As a team, I've never seen such a complete effort."

The New York Knicks, fighting to overtake Philadelphia for second place, crept within one game of the 76ers by routing the Phoenix Suns 139-104.

Boston walloped Cincinnati 145-119, Detroit downed Seattle 110-104, San Francisco edged Milwaukee 103-100 and Los Angeles scored a 116-103 victory over Atlanta in other NBA games.

Sam Jones' 23 points paced the easy Boston victory over the Royals. Dave Gambee tallied 32 points in leading Detroit over Seattle. Dave Bing of Detroit got four assists to set a club record of 531 in one season. Shue held the old mark of 530, set in 1961, before he became the Baltimore coach.

The Knicks exploded for an 80-point second half to rout the Suns behind a balanced attack led by Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier, both with 24. Jeff Mullins paced San Francisco over the Bucks with 26 points.

The Lakers held an Elgin Baylor Night and the veteran 34-year-old Laker captain responded with 21 points against Atlanta.

Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the NBA, and Baylor's parents were among those who honored Baylor in a 40-minute ceremony before the game. The former Seattle University star received numerous gifts, including a lifetime NBA pass and a car.

Tribe Ace Seeks 20-Victory Mark

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam McDowell, the strikeout king of the American League, has set his sights on becoming a 20-game winning pitcher for the Cleveland Indians this season.

McDowell, a 26-year-old lefthander, rang up 283 strikeouts last year and, while he had a tidy earned run average of 1.81, he also led the A.L. in giving bases on balls, 110.

This tendency to wildness got McDowell in trouble on numerous occasions and turned what might have been a great season into just an ordinary one. He finished with a 15-14 record.

"I'm concentrating this year on keeping the ball down," he said after pitching five scoreless innings as he and Jack Hamilton combined for a four-hit 3-0 shutout of California in an exhibition game yesterday.

McDowell's concentration apparently is doing fine. He did not issue a pass in the five innings he worked against the Angels, while yielding three hits and striking out only one.

SIMS HOMERS

Tony Horton's sacrifice fly and a home run by Duke Sims gave Cleveland two runs in the sixth and gained Hamilton the victory. Hamilton was touched for just one hit in four innings.

Los Angeles snapped the six-game winning streak of the New York Yankees 9-0 in a night game and St. Louis had ended the five-game streak of the New York Mets 5-3.

Wes Parker's two-run homer in the second gave the Dodgers all the runs they needed as Don Drysdale, Bob Darwin and Jim Brewer yielded only four singles to the Yankees. An error by third baseman Amos Otis led to three St. Louis runs in the seventh as the Cardinals came from behind to down the Mets.

Baltimore erupted for 11 runs in a big fifth inning and went on to rout Washington 11-2 in a night game. A ninth-inning homer by rookie infielder Syd O'Brien gave Boston a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox and Detroit also came up with a ninth-inning rally to defeat Philadelphia 4-2.

Las Vegas Raceway Is Closed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Stardust Raceway, site of one of the six Can-Am auto races, will close permanently, a spokesman for the owners said yesterday.

Nat Fields, raceway publicity director, said damage caused by recent rain makes the two-mile track west of Las Vegas uneconomical to repair.

The Can-Am is the second major sporting event to leave Las Vegas in two months. The Tournament of Champions golf tournament was transferred Feb. 3 from the Stardust Country Club to Rancho La Costa, Calif.

The Stardust Hotel was sold just before that by a group headed by Moe Dalitz, who has holdings in the Rancho La Costa course, to the Parvin-Dohrmann Co. of Los Angeles.

SEVERAL EVENTS

The track, which opened in 1965, hosted the Can-Am events in 1966-68, two United States road racing events in 1967 and 1968, the Stardust 150 in 1968, the Trans-Am in 1967, three drag racing open events and regular Saturday night drag meets.

Fields said the racing events "couldn't make it in Las Vegas." He said the track needs 15,000 to 20,000 spectators to break even at a big event. Not enough hotel rooms in Las Vegas were allocated for the event, he said.

Fields said Las Vegas' proximity to Riverside (about 250 miles) and the Can-Am being the third one in the West each year were other drawbacks.

Other Can-Am races are held in Riverside, Monterey, Bridgehampton, N.Y., Elkhart, Wis., and at Edmunton, Alta.

Cover Up Shooting Is What It's Called

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — "I wouldn't say I got a poor shooting ball club," said Michigan State basketball coach John Bennington.

"But the other day the players had been firing away for some time before they realized the canvas covers hadn't been removed from the baskets. Funny thing, but the coaches hadn't noticed it either."

Athletics Snap Losing Streak

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—The Oakland Athletics, fresh from snapping a three-game losing streak, faced Cleveland today in a Cactus League exhibition game.

In a windy, 32-hit slugging match, the A's scored seven runs in the second inning yesterday and routed the Chicago Cubs 15-8.

Oakland belted out pitcher George Bosworth, sending 12 batters to the plate in the hot inning. The winners blended eight hits with a walk, error and balk.

Pitcher Chuck Dobson helped win his own game by bashing a double that ignited a string of seven straight hits. Included in the carnage were two A's homers by Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson, the latter an inside-the-park blast.

Clendenon Deal Still In A Snarl

NEW YORK (AP) — The controversy over Donn Clendenon involving the Montreal Expos and the Houston Astros hasn't ended, even though Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has stepped into the case.

The fuss began in January after the Astros traded Rusty Staub to Montreal for Clendenon and Jesus Alou followed by Clendenon's announcement that he was retiring from baseball to enter business in Atlanta.

Kuhn ruled yesterday that Clendenon's contract reverted to Montreal and ordered the Expos to place him on the voluntary retired list by March 31 unless they can persuade him to play again.

Kuhn also upheld the Staub-Alou swap and told the clubs to reach an agreement on a replacement for Clendenon by March 26. If they do not, Kuhn said, he will hold a hearing March 27 to determine a fair settlement.

NO RIGHT

Kuhn's statement brought a retort from Spec Richardson, vice president and general manager of the Houston club, that in the Astros' view the commissioner did not have any right to make a settlement even though the Expos and Astros are at an impasse.

"We plan to go to court over this matter," said Richardson at the Houston camp in Cocoa, Fla.

He said Judge Roy Hofheinz, president of the Astros, would hold an important press conference today in Cocoa.

Sifford Blames PGA For Masters Barrier

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Sifford puffed hot smoke from a black cigar and blamed the Professional Golfers Association for the fact that a Negro has never played in the Masters tournament.

"They're just scared of that man Clifford Roberts, who conceived and directs the famed April spectacle in Augusta, Ga." the 45-year-old black professional said yesterday.

"If they had spunk, they'd tell that man that the top 60 money-winners must play or they will hold their players out."

Sifford, who failed to make the cut after shooting 75-72—147 in the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open, has long waged a campaign to break the color barrier in the Masters.

Roberts has consistently insisted that Sifford—or any other Negro—would be allowed to play if he met the qualifying standards. The Masters has certain qualifying procedures, but some players— such as foreigners—are invited carte blanche.

"We have rules in other tournaments and we once made the Colonial accept the 60 top money-winners," Sifford said. "I think the Masters should be made to do the same."

Then the mustachioed Negro veteran shrugged his shoulders and sighed:

AFFECTS GAME

"I don't give a darn about the Masters," he said, "but it's beginning to bug me. People are always saying things about my not playing there when I ought to. It's affecting my game."

Former Australian Jim Ferrier said the Masters field is one of the weakest on the tour because it is padded with amateurs and foreigners who don't play up to the pro tour standard.

"I have carried on a long writing campaign with Bob Jones," Ferrier said. "Bob has been nice, but he insists that the Masters doesn't want to change its format."

Doug Ford, a former Masters champion and ex-member of the PGA tournament committee, said:

"We are always talking with Roberts, trying to get the tour winners and better players into the tournament, but he won't budge. It's a losing battle."

Andretti Raps Slowpokes In Sebring Unduro Field

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A field of 65 sports cars starting the 12-hour Sebring Endurance Race today included only 16 serious contenders for the championship, and some of the world's best drivers in those contenders would like to weed out the slower chaff.

"Does that car going 60 miles an hour add to the show?" asked Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., pointing to one of the slowest qualifiers. "I doubt that," he answered his own question. "You can see that on the freeway."

Andretti, a winner at Indianapolis, around the American big car stock racing circuit and all over the world in sports cars, had the fastest car in qualifying. His driving partner, Chris Amon of New Zealand, was at the wheel of the brand new 12-cylinder Ferrari which turned a lap of the flat 5.2-mile course at just under 117 miles an hour.

Another major contender, Lucien Bianchi of Belgium in a new Alfa-Romeo, echoed Andretti's sentiment about racing fast and slow cars together.

REQUIRED SPEED

"It's terrible," Bianchi said. "In Europe, there is a required speed to qualify for a race."

Jackie Ickx, fast-rising Belgian star who is driving a Ford GT40, said he feels there are too many cars in the corners at Sebring. But he wouldn't go as strong as some of the more experienced drivers.

Mark Donohue of Philadelphia, second fastest qualifier in a Lola Chevy, wouldn't criticize the slow cars or drivers at all.

"If you don't like the guys you are racing against, you don't have to race," was Donohue's comment. "Let everybody race is the way I see it. It makes it just as tough on the next guy trying to pass in the turns as it does on me."

The fast field at Sebring was more diversified than in recent years. Two Ferraris, four Lola Chevrolets, two Ford GT40s, three Alfa-Romeos and five Porsches were the real contenders.

Others were racing for honors within various classes or just for the privilege of telling their friends and relatives how they competed against the best in the world.

Storybook Double At Albany Track

COMBINED AP & UPI

ALBANY — It was almost like a page out of a happy-ending novel or movie.

Steve Goldsmith, who was told he may never ride again because of shrapnel wounds suffered while serving in Vietnam, celebrated his return to racing yesterday when he booted home both ends of a $732.40 daily double at Golden Gate Fields.

The victories were only the second and third of the purple heart winner's career. He scored his only other victory at Caliente in 1966, and a week later was in the Army.

Yesterday, the 22-year-old jockey scored on Woman Driver $43 and Panda Kid $80.80. A total of 104 $2 tickets were sold on the 3-8 combination.

He was also virtually speechless at a surprise party in his honor when a special California State Senate resolution lauding his racing accomplishments was presented by Sen. Joseph M. Kennick of Long Beach.

Thompson also received a "key" to Long Beach where his automotive factory is and an award from Alhambra where he was reared.

The veteran driver is holder of 485 national and international speed and endurance records and has been one of drag racing's foremost innovators.

WHEN WILL AMERICA LAND A MAN ON THE MOON?

When will the first American Astronaut set foot on the moon? This June? This summer? Exactly when? You can share in the excitement of the momentous event by guessing precisely when it will be. And if you win—well, take a look at the prizes!

WIN

A 2-week trip for two anywhere on earth!

2ND PRIZE a 2-week all-expense vacation for two, Cocoa Beach, Cape Kennedy

3RD PRIZE $100.00 in cash—for fun money

ENTER THIS EXCITING CONTEST NOW!

IT'S STRICTLY FOR FUN. YOU CAN WIN!

Here's all you do:

Fill out the entry blank shown (or use a postal card facsimile) to guess the year, month, day, hour, minute and second that the first American Astronaut steps on to the surface of the moon.

Why the contest?

The contest, co-sponsored by the Independent-Journal and Today, the newspaper of Cape Kennedy, is offered as a novel guessing game for our readers — and as a means of recognizing the nation's space program. It's fun, it's out of this world!

SOME TIPS TO AID YOU ON YOUR GUESS

The Space Agency (NASA) has provided for readers the most likely times for the first landing attempt. These "windows" are the days when the Apollo spacecraft can reach pre-selected sites on the moon. The best "window" days include: April 18-24; June 16-22; July 15-22 and August 14-21. While most space experts talk of a June, 1969 landing, some predict it could come as early as April. Others believe it will not come until August. Watch for further news from NASA on the moon landing. And keep the above dates in mind in making your best guess. Happy landing!

Sponsored by the

and TODAY the newspaper of Cape Kennedy

RULES

1. ANY MAN, woman or child in the U.S. is eligible to enter except employees of the Independent-Journal and Today, the newspaper of Cape Kennedy and families.)

2. DEADLINE for entries is May 1, 1969. Entries must contain year, month, day, hour, minute and second to be eligible. Official time will be that registered by NASA as the time the first astronaut steps onto the surface of the moon. If astronauts do not leave the lunar module, the time will be the instant the module landed on moon's surface.

3. THE WINNING ENTRY will be that with the exact EASTERN STANDARD TIME or closest to it. Do not worry about difference in the time zones. The time you send in will be judged on the assumption it is Eastern Standard Time.

4. ENTRIES must be mailed to: MOON CONTEST, INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL, P.O. BOX 330, San Rafael, Calif. 94902. Use entry blank herewith or facsimile.

5. FIRST PRIZE: Two-week all-expense paid vacation for two anywhere on earth winner selects. Trip must be completed within one year from date of notification. Second prize: 2-week all-expense paid vacation for two to Cocoa Beach at Cape Kennedy to view future space shot. Third prize: $100 cash. Decision of the judges final.

Bridge District Bus Plan: It's Time To Take Plunge

"I CAN'T FOR THE LIFE of me understand this euphoric expectation that all our troubles will be solved if only the bridge district relieves Greyhound of its bus obligations and buys 'new modern buses.' Commuters aren't going to patronize the latter for such a reason.

"The only way commuters will turn back to buses is if they provide faster service than private cars. But I have heard nothing about really setting up special lanes; on the other hand I've heard it likely can't be done.

"Isn't this thing really a snow job, to perpetuate the bridge district and bail out Greyhound in one fell swoop?

"The suggestion that the bridge district devote its revenues to a true rapid transit system and a tube makes a lot more sense. I am not objecting to continued tolls if the money goes for a good purpose. What I am objecting to is wasting it on a bus system no speedier — and likely less extensive — than what we have, operated by a firm with no bus experience.

"This is not a 'letter to the editor.' I'd simply like to see the I-J get to the heart of the matter."

THE COMMUTER WHO wrote the above did a pretty good job of setting forth views commonly held, and raising questions commonly asked.

Let's examine some of those views and some of those questions (not necessarily in the order in which they were stated).

Let's look first at the rapid transit system with tube. If everyone could agree today that we want to proceed full steam toward a rapid transit rail system to haul commuters to and from San Francisco via underwater tube, it would take perhaps 10 years to bring the project to function.

Everybody is not agreed. It would take longer.

Marin conceivably would agree to finance its end; that is, all construction from water's edge to wherever it may go in the county.

The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District conceivably could agree to underwrite (perhaps with federal and/or state assistance) the construction of the costly underwater tube from Marin to San Francisco.

But it is difficult if not impossible to imagine the City and County of San Francisco readily agreeing to meet the costs of adding its end of a Marin leg to the rapid transit system now a-building.

In any event, it is certain that present congestion would become unendurable before such a system could be brought into being.

IF WE ARE TO REMEDY the rapidly-worsening situation even on an interim basis we cannot wait for rapid transit.

That leaves ferries and/or buses.

If you look at downtown Tiburon during the business day, you see one large headache connected with either trains or ferries. There must be acres of space to park cars.

The present Tiburon ferry carries only a relative handful of commuters but those few jam Tiburon parking each day. Imagine how much parking space would be necessary for all commuters to ride ferries! Or trains!

Only a bus has the capability of running around city streets to pick up passengers near home, making it possible to leave cars at home.

A bus on a reserve lane could do the job. It could get started sooner with far less capital outlay.

RESERVE LANES?

If it is not possible to amend state law to authorize and direct the state construction of reserve lanes for buses, perhaps a local authority (the bridge district?) could float revenue bonds to build a special overhead roadway for buses, similar to the overhead rail lines which BART will utilize in places in the East Bay. Unlike rail cars, buses can come down off the overhead and circulate about the surface to pick up passengers.

One manufacturer is even experimenting with an electric bus which would carry batteries big enough to permit it to operate briefly on city streets before returning to its trolley or third-rail on the overhead.

Such a bus system could use the present Golden Gate Bridge. Trains on rails could never do that very satisfactorily.

In San Francisco, it may be possible to establish a one-way buses-only route into and out of downtown, similar to the one-way, buses-only routes into and away from Candlestick Park at game time.

WILL PEOPLE RIDE buses?

A/C Transit in the East Bay has experienced something like a 70 per cent increase in passengers since it replaced the old Key System buses.

Better equipment, better schedules and better service does result in increased traffic.

Even on an interim basis until reserve lanes are established (or constructed) it is not unreasonable to expect that a new operator would give better service and attract more passengers to buses.

A/C Transit runs an operating deficit of about 1.5 million dollars a year.

The Golden Gate Bridge presently makes a "profit" of about 3 million dollars a year.

The bridge obviously could operate a deficit bus system, if need be, without putting any increased tax burden on property owners.

CAN THE BRIDGE DISTRICT DO the job where Greyhound has failed?

The new look in the operations of the Golden Gate Bridge District would indicate that prospects would be good. There have been more constructive improvements in bridge operation in the past few months than in the previous decade.

The district has fresh, vigorous new staff management (headed by Dale Luehring) and a revitalized board showing many new faces.

Luehring, himself, has had considerable prior experience in various phases of transportation.

For more than a decade Greyhound hasn't tried. Deterioration has been allowed to take its toll.

A change could NOT make matters worse.

A public agency responsive to public needs and wishes — as the newly constituted bridge board is more likely to be — would be a far better bet than Greyhound to succeed.

WHAT HAPPENS TO MARIN TRANSIT District?

It should continue in being and set about the job of preparing to meet the growing need for inter-county public transportation which a bridge district-operated commute system cannot be expected to provide.

Step one can be taken now — get the bridge district into the bus operation business (while the getting is good).

Step two can begin now, too — start toward providing reserve lanes (or overhead exclusive roadways) for commute buses.

Greyhound's past failures and the bridge board's past mis-deeds should not be used as measuring sticks for finding a new bus plan wanting.

It's time to quit talking (and quit paying for endless studies). It's time to take the plunge.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A neatly dressed lady entered a lunch room recently, calmly ordered five glasses and a spoon, filled the glasses with verying amounts of water, and proceeded to play "Melancholy Baby" on them. Other customers stopped eating to applaud her performance, and the irate proprietor told her angrily, "Hey, you can't do that in here! Why don't you play your song with glasses in your own kitchen?" "I can't," she explained patiently. "All we've got home is paper cups."

Divorce Reform Should Proceed

Now that California divorce reform is conforming to United States Divorce Reform's concept of "no fight" divorce, the concept should be carried out in full, with "arbitration boards" set up to hear the troubles and made the decisions.

Senator Grunsky says adversary proceedings are being eliminated, so we do not need attorneys. The money now being paid to attorneys would go into the county treasury to offset the cost of the arbitration boards.

In Marin County this would result in a rather tidy sum. Additionally, the taxpayers would benefit in the reduced cost of the byproducts of divorce, aid-to-needy children, welfare, delinquency, crime, etc.

Most important, we would stop exploiting the family for profit, and start stablizing it.

Dismayed By Vote On Rev. King Day

I was dismayed to read in tonight's (March 14) Independent-Journal that Sen. Jack McCarthy voted with the majority in the Senate Rules Committee to table the resolution declaring April 4 as Martin Luther King Day. It is difficult to believe that anyone who has ever read one of Dr. King's speeches or books all the way through could seriously think that he was influenced by or associated with communism . . .

In my opinion Dr. King was one of our greatest and truest Americans; this opinion was shared by a great part of the rest of the world. The rejection by the Senate Rules Committee is no reflection on Martin Luther King, but it does seem a sad reflection on the California Legislature.

Blue Shield Rapped For Slow Service

It was interesting to note that in the recent meeting of the California Medical Association three new trustees were appointed to direct the affairs of the California Blue Shield, (non-profit) now processing (or attempting to do so) Medicare claims.

One of the new appointees, a medic, resident of Downey, Los Angeles County, being one of the two counties in California serviced by Medicare recipients by the Occidental Insurance Co. Payments for legitimate and proper claims are made in a maximum of 14 working days.

In contrast the numerous thousands mis-serviced in the rest of California by California Blue Shield Medicare members must wait for 30 days minimum to as long as five months to be compensated for their Medicare monies paid to physicians.

The writer sincerely hopes the new trustees will correct this sloppy and inefficient manner California Blue Shield is now processing Medicare claims.

Is is necessary for a picket line of 65'ers marching in front of the California Street address of Blue Shield to get action? I hope not.

LINES ON LIVING

Self-Ignorance Can Destroy Joy Of Life

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

The Roman philosopher, Boethius, was not exaggerating when hundreds of years ago he warned his contemporaries: "In other living creatures ignorance of self is nature; in man it is vice." Worse yet, it is self-destructive.

Self-ignorance inevitably leads to self-affliction and self-denial. A person who has no real awareness of himself and of his needs will soon deny himself his legitimate and necessary requirements to keep body and soul alive in unitive harmony, and thereby constrict his total personality. His unfulfilled potentialities, the need for personal fulfillment and the reality of his self-repression, will cause him neurotic conflict and misery. His unused powers will bring upon him the inner torment which will make him turn against himself by sinking in morbid self-rejection, futility and self-strangulation. He will be anguished by the distemper of intellectual shrinkage echoed in William Blake's classic warning: "He who desires but acts not, breeds pestilence."

THE MALADY of neurotic conflict in our society is conspicuous by the absence of creative and inspirational activities in the life of the individual. There is a void in the individual's inner sanctum of his true self; there is a lack of unity and dignity of personal worth, of inward integration; there is a separateness in the soul, a bleak and shadowy emptiness in the dark cave of his hidden self whence crawl forth constricting fears, irrational impulses, irritability, and a general distaste for life.

Neurotic fear, modern psychologists explain, is real. But the person who is afflicted with it is masking himself and his true feelings — from himself, against himself. He is its first victim. He conspires in committing self-suicide on the installment plan. He lives without the enjoyment of life; he works without the satisfaction of creative fulfillment.

THE INSIGHTS of religion and psychology can bring us to new insights, revelations and experiences. We can shed our exterior subjective selves to witness the light of objective truth, to discover some new ethical and divine possibilities of standing "outside ourselves," so that in the end we may find our true selves.

All of us can witness the wonder of the Burning Bush in the arid desert of what may be a meaningless and unfulfilled existence. Each human person has the potential for the revelation of inward bliss.

Hanoi Withholds Offensive; Pertinent Question Is, 'Why?'

SAIGON — Secretaries of defense have come and gone in the nearly eight years of this Americanized war, with full pomp and ceremony, and in the end the impact more often than not has been that of a feather falling gently on velvet. Melvin Laird, speaking privately not only with the authority of his office but with a shrewd knowledge of how short is the grace period for the Nixon administration, made a deep impression.

In talking with President Nguyen Van Thieu and the top Vietnamese, he put it firmly but politely. Yes, he said, we have a new administration in Washington. We have some time. No one can say how much time. It may be as little as six months, possibly 10 months.

Laird meant, of course, the deadline for beginning the withdrawal of American demonstrating that the war can gradually be brought to an end. In light of the shortness of the grace period before the Nixon administration is saddled with the onus of the war as was the Johnson administration, this is one of the most delicate and difficult moments in the long and tragic conflict.

THE UNCERTAINTY lies in what this reporter is convinced is a little understood fact. The offensive of the National Liberation Front and North Vietnam that began on Feb. 23 is being deliberately limited. The resources of men and weapons the communits have at their command could stir up almost as much of a storm as in the Tet offensive a year ago. While in the end they would be stopped, they could give United States-South Vietnamese forces a very bad time.

The question is whether they mean to continue to limit this offensive. If they do, then in the view of the highest American authority here there is no reason why troop withdrawals cannot be planned to begin some time in the late summer or early fall.

That is the American intention as from day to day, from hour to hour, the offensive is monitored. The communists have more than 40,000 troops within 45 miles of Saigon. They have not moved those troops up for an attack on the capital.

If they were to be committeed to an all-out assault, if the sporadic pocketing of the cities should be greatly increased, all bets on withdrawal would be off. President Nixon would be compelled to retaliate in one way or another. The war would again seem to be endless, with the fearful drain of men and resources continuing into and indefinite future.

THE PERTINENT question is why the communits should deliberately limit their offensive. American officials reply that, while they have the resources for a much more extended attack, they are hurting.

But let's say for the sake of argument that this appraisal by American officialdom is, as frequently in the past, an exercise in wishful thinking. There would still be a reason for limiting the current attack. Having established that they can launch an offensive at any time they choose, they can be holding the present attack to a relatively moderate limit to open the way for a compromise settlement of the war.

They think in terms not of one year or two or three years but of decades. Therefore, with even a minority position in the government in South Vietnam they could anticipate that in five years or 10 years after the Americans had moved out, they could achieve their goal of control of all Vietnam. During this interval they could take full advantage of the American aid offer to rebuild the stricken country.

PRESIDENT THIEU has said publicly that he anticipates the withdrawal of up to 100,000 American troops this year. That is roughly double the number being considered in American planning. It would be made plain, however, that this is only a beginning.

Thieu never speaks of withdrawal but of replacement of American units with South Vietnam units. In a recent talk with a high American official he remarked, "We are so strong now that we can afford to take some bacteria into our system." This was interpreted as meaning that his government could stand the incorporation of communist elements, presumably in a compromise settlement.

Poverty Has Gone Out Of Style; No Fun Being Poor Any More

WASHINGTON — My friend McAlister, the only poor person I know who will admit it, was very depressed the other day.

"I knew they'd get tired of us very fast."

"What do you mean, McAlister?" I asked him.

"Poverty is out. You don't hear people talking about it any more. This year's big thing in Congress is hunger."

"WELL, YOU HAVE to be realistic about this, McAlister. Congress can't be expected to stay with one problem very long. They've already had their hearings on proverty. They have to go on to something else or the American people will lose interest."

"I guess you're right," said McAlister. "Don't get me wrong. I don't have anything against hunger. Some of my best friends are hungry. But I was hoping that they would at least solve the poverty problems before they went on to hunger."

"Your mistake, McAlister, if you don't mind my saying so, is that you don't understand the attention span of the American people. They can't stay with any subject too long. They gave poverty a fair shake. That's all we heard about for two years. That's plenty long enough. If you can't solve poverty in the United States in two years, then it's obviously unsolvable. Besides, it's not much fun to be reminded all the time that the United States has a poor-people problem."

McALISTER SIGHED. "I understand all that, and I was under no illusion that anyone could solve my problems. But it was all the attention I got that I miss. Do you know I was interviewed by four different foundations in one week? Reporters used to buy me drinks in exchange for me telling them what it was like to be poor. There were TV camera all over the neighborhood. College kids from Vassar and Swarthmore moved in during the summer to pull us up by our bootstraps. It might not have done much good, but the excitement sure relieved the tedium of being poor."

"OK, McAlister. You people had your day. But we can't stay with poverty forever. It doesn't have any sex appeal. The more you talk about it, the madder people get. And if you try to do anything about it, then you're really stepping on people's toes. Now hunger is a different kettle of fish. All you have to do with hunger is give people food."

"WHY DIDN'T they do it in the past, if it were that simple?"

"Because Congress didn't know you could make hunger a political issue until this year. You've got to think of them, too."

"There I go," said McAlister, "only thinking of myself."

I started to feel sorry for him. "McAlister, don't get discouraged. Poverty may make a comeback. Perhaps it won't be called poverty, but they'll call it something else."

"Maybe they could call it pro football," McAlister said. "Americans don't seem to lose interest in that."

"Let's not lose our perspective," I said angrily. "Pro football is not a joking matter."

NEGRO POPULATION

Migration A Major Factor

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the most remarkable facts about the Negro population in the 20th Century has been a great change, not in percentage of total, but in location.

Large numbers of Negroes have been moving out of the rural South and into the urban areas of the North and West — and into the urban communities in the South as well.

This migration of Negroes to cities in the South, North and West — which greatly accelerated during the two world wars—has widened the range of economic opportunities for the Negroes, but at the same time has created racial tenisons in numberous social and economic areas.

Labor Department statistics, for example, indicate that the economic and social status of the Negro has improved in recent years. But the Negro still is in about the same relative position.

The median nonwhite family income in 1966 was 60 per cent of the median for white families. This compared with 55 per cent in 1960. But at the same time, the income of slum residents declined.

Another effect of the migration has been to increase the political power of the Negro to hold public office — and affect the outcome of close elections.

The beginnings of the American Negro population can be traced to Jamestown, Va., 1619, when 20 Negroes landed with the settlers, all earmarked for slave status within the plantation system. By 1690, of the 16,729 slaves in the Colonies, according to figures in the recently published Negro Almanac, 13,389, or about 80 per cent were to be found in the South.

During the pre-Revolutionary War period in the North, many Negroes originally imported as indentured servants had acquired their freedom and were becoming an important factor in the Negro population. By the time of the first census, in 1790, there were 757,208 nonwhites in the population, about one-fifth of the total.

By 1860, helped by demands for cheap raw material, particularly cotton, created by the Industrial Revolution, the Negro population had grown to 4,441,830, or about one-seventh of the total. The spread of the plantation system to parts of the Southwest brought a Negro shift to new areas in Texas and Louisiana.

The increase continued after Emancipation, with 15,042,286 nonwhites counted in 1950, or about 10 per cent of the whole.

But the rural character of the Negro population remained intact.

Until the start of the 20th Century, about 90 per cent of all Negroes resided in the South. The first large northern migration came between 1910 and 1920, when the Southern Negro population dropped from 89 per cent to 85 per cent. By 1940, the figure was 77 per cent.

Since then, about 3.3 million Negroes have migrated northward. Most of them have settled in the Northeast and North Central regions.

Most recent statistics show a trend toward the West. As of 1960, Negroes accounted for half the nonwhite residents in the West, including Hawaii and Alaska. Not counting the last two states, Negroes accounted for 62 per cent of the nonwhite population. Virtually all nonwhites — about 90 per cent — in other regions were Negro.

While the shift geographically has continued, the percentage has been relatively stable since 1900. It dropped in the 1900-1930 period from 11.6 per cent to 9.7 per cent — the lowest in U. S. history — and increased in the 1930-1960 period from 9.7 to 10.5 per cent. Most recently, it has been given as 11 per cent of the total U. S. population.

Biafrans Looking To Rainy Season

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — Biafrans are now counting the days until the first strike of Egbe Elu Igwe, "The Gun from Heaven."

The expression is the Ibo language term for the first blast of the rainy season, due about April 1 and lasting until October.

The Biafrans feel that the rain, by washing out roads, slowing armored vehicles and grounding Nigerian planes, will fortify their military posiion. It should also improve local food .production and lessen some of the reliance on relief supplies.

Already, the sky trembles every night with white flashes of electricity, and thunder rolls as loud as the Nigerian bombs that gouge Uli airstrip.

Like the Russians who blessed the murderous Stalingrad winter, and the North Vietnamese who waited for the monsoon season to interrupt U.S. tactical bombing, the Biafrans consider the weather to be their best ally.

They point to Nigeria's dependence on British Saracen and Ferret armored vehicles, which are expected here to flounder in the mud. Nigeria's supply lines, longer than Biafra's, will become like rain-soaked rope, difficult to knot or untangle, authorities say.

A military man took an illustration from the early days of the war in July 1967.

"We were in Enugu with about 40 rifles to go around," he said. "The Nigerians were at Nsukka, about 40 miles down the road. In the rain and against really minimal firepower, it took them four months, until October, to get to Enugu. And now we have more arms."

It took another four rainy months for Nigerian forces to get from Port Harcourt to Owerri, "and this was during a time when we had no ammunition," the officer said.

Biafrans now feel that with more stable fronts and a continuing supply of ammunition they will be able to advance during the rainy months and regain some of the ground they have lost in the civil war.

An official said that a substantial percentage of Nigeria's ground forces are members of the Hausa tribe from the northern dry areas where there is no experience of day-long, percussive rains and debilitating humidity.

"If you are 10 minutes late here, your boss won't accept the rain as an excuse," A Biafran said. "It's part of our life."

Although the rain will cut down on bombing raids, it might also frequently block the air bridge between Uli and relief supply points in Cotonou in Dahomey and the Portuguese island of Sao Tome.

It may also affect the arms that are acknowledged here to come from Libreville in Gabon and Lisbon. There is no explanation given here of how a possible arms gap would be filled, but the rain ought to take care of some of the food problems.

Crops are expected to improve. A series of early rains indicate that the season will be wet enough to assure a good-sized harvest of cassava, the staple of the Biafran diet.

Exclusive Club Meets Daily Under The San Francisco Bay

By IRA RIFKIN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — More than 120 feet beneath the waters of San Francisco Bay and one and one-half miles from the shore an exclusive club has its headquarters.

Members of the Mile & Half Club are workmen building the Bay Area Rapid Transit System (BART) trans-bay tube, the longest and deepest underwater transit tunnel in the world.

To become a member, you must walk, not ride a bicycle as some workers do, one-and-a-half miles out from either the Oakland or San Francisco end of the tube and back.

Originator of the club is Don Hughes, an engineering inspector on the job who also hopes to be the first person to walk the entire four mile length of the tube when it is completed sometime next April. The 75-mile transit system has a 1971 target date.

A walk through the completed part of the tube with Hughes, a veteran of sewerage tunnel building in Philadelphia and hydroelectric tunnel construction in Northern California, is similar to a guided tour of a still unfinished apartment building.

The air in the tube smells of fresh cement and feels chilly and damp.

Dust kicked up by workmen hangs suspended in the light from the seemingly endless string of bulbs along the ceiling of the tunnel.

Ragged ends of steel cables jut out from the walls, floor and roof. And the steel plates that connect the tube sections peel red flakes, a result of being exposed to the bay waters while being set in place. When completed, the steel will be scraped down and painted grey to match the surrounding cement.

But instead of looking at bare cement and visualizing a roomful of furniture, Hughes looks at the bare cement of the tube and sees commuters, hundreds of thousands of them riding BART's total 75-mile length and passing through the vital link between east and west bay areas—the trans-bay tube.

Fifty-one of 57 steel and concrete sections of the tube, each 330 feet long and weighing more than 10,000 tons, have been lowered into place by trans-bay constructors, a joint venture of four marine construction firms, under a $90-million contract awarded by BART. Divers align and weld the sections together.

Twenty-six of the double barrelled sections have been connected from the Oakland side of the bay and 25 from the San Francisco side, currently placing the twin hull barge used for lowering the sections beneath the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

Through U.S. Millions Laos Mixes Weapons, Luxury Items

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Thanks largely to American aid millions, Laotian merchants stock a wide variety of luxury goods from all over the world at bargain prices.

Surprisingly few of them are stamped, "Made in U.S.A."

After 10 years of insurgency, Laos has found a way to have guns with butter—imported French butter, together with delicacies like caviar, pate de foie gras with truffles, Danish sausage, Napoleon brandy and even perfumed British cigarettes. The latter are slightly higher than the 27 cents a pack that premium British and American cigarettes command.

LUXURY ITEMS

The luxury goods and the other items such as the estimated $4.3 million worth of autos, motorcycles, whisky and beer imported during the last reported year were not destined for the common Lao people or to build the Lao economy, the two major interests of the $52-million U.S. aid program here.

Instead they go to Chinese and North Vietnamese who dominate the country's business scene, foreigners and those Laotians in official positions who have amassed what passes for fortunes in this country.

Wandering through the unimposing shops of Vientiane, it is difficult to believe it is the capital of an impoverished country torn by a Communist-directed civil war that has been going on intermittently since 1948. The per capita income in Laos is some $70 a year, the lowest in Southeast Asia and thus one of the lowest in the world.

GOLD SMUGGLING

Some 2,000 tons of gold arrive in Vientiane monthly, mostly for re-export and smuggling into neighboring countries. But a lot of it stays to adorn the necks and wrists of the wives of what are called "important personages" here.

Statistics tell a much different story of the lives of those through the rest of the country. The war and incessant U.S. bombing of contested areas aside, the rural Laotians live in an abject poverty that often dips just below the survival point.

U.S. officials are far from happy that U.S. aid money directly and indirectly supports such a luxury market in Vientiane and to a lesser extent in other major cities here. They are pressing the government to drive up import duties that would help cut the budget deficits the United States is pledged to make up and push prices up for nonessential goods. Neither Lao nor U.S. officials will estimate the total amount of luxury goods imported.

Rice is the biggest import item, followed closely by gasoline for all those autos and the fewer essential trucks and buses. Then come alcoholic beverages and automobiles, a customs official said. Over-all the Laotians import about $26 million annually and exports bring in only $800,000.

Of the $52-million aid budget, the United States will contribute $16 million to $17 million to support the kip, Laotian currency. This has made the kip as hard as the U.S. dollar. Any one with enough kip in his possession can change it for dollars and import pretty much what he wants.

LACKING CONTROLS

Other countries use stiff import taxes to hold down luxury imports and keep their balance of payments in line. So far these fiscal controls are virtually unknown in Laos.

European autos generally are far cheaper here than in the United States. Large portable radios sell for about $200 and the shopkeeper will show advertisements from U.S. magazines to make the sales point that in America the same radio sells for $325.

The total U.S. share of Laos' market is $2.8 million and most of this is essential commodities. American luxury goods, a U.S. official said, arrive with a too-high price tag and are driven out of the market by Japanese and European goods.

OTHER PAYMENTS

The French, who pay about $1.5 million in direct aid to the Laotian economy, send about $1.6 million in goods. Red China sends about $500,000 worth a year and is the key backer of the Communist-led insurgents.

An American expert said that far larger tax revenues come in now per U.S. aid dollar spent than in previous years. The hope is that the ratio will rise.

Some tax measures have been enacted recently or are proposed. Three months ago all those renting houses were ordered to pay one month's rent each year to the government instead of the landlord. These mostly are officials or important businessmen who simply refuse to pay the tax themselves, law or no law.

DeGaulle Will Stake Future On Referendum

PARIS (London Express) — President Charles De Gaulle is believed to be staking his future as president on the outcome of next month's referendum on regional reform and the reform of the Senate.

Recent indications are that the referendum issues are so little understood by the French voters that millions will abstain. Opinion polls are showing that the vote could go against the government.

Until now the General — while insisting that the referendum is held, to the dismay of many top Gaullists — has refrained from linking his own future to the outcome of the vote.

In past referendums he has always insisted that the vote is a vote of confidence in him as president and has made it plain that he will go if the result goes against him. Now it looks as though DeGaulle is going to force the pace on an issue which bores most loyal Gaullist voters — by putting the whole future of his regime on the outcome of the poll on April 27.

Clue to his new stand came after his cabinet meeting this week when Information Minister Joel LeTheule announced that DeGaulle would go on television for a referendum question and answer session on April 10.

The general will use this television appearance, said the minister, to let it be known publicly to what extent he is himself concerned in the referendum result "and in particular how important is the question of confidence which is being put to the French people."

This phrase is being widely interpreted in Gaullist circles as a plain indication that DeGaulle intends, whatever the risks, to engage his future as president on the referendum outcome.

Obviously DeGaulle believes that by putting his own future at stake he will assure the acceptance of social reform measures which he considers vital for France.

But there is open alarm among Gaullists who believe DeGaulle is sailing very close to the wind on a most treacherous issue.

This Week In The World

By United Press International

The Nixon administration pressed the need for antimissile defenses during the week, arguing that failure to install at least a minimum system would give Russia a dangerous advantage in the prevailing "balance of terror."

In testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird cited previously-secret intelligence reports to indicate that the Soviet Union is striving to forge a weapons system strong enough to knock out the United States in a sneak attack.

Laird said the Russians are emplacing intercontinental missiles with 25-megaton warheads and turning out missile-armed atomic submarines at a rapid rate. He also hinted the Soviet Union may be putting nuclear warheads into orbit around the earth.

The defense secretary argued that the Safeguard antimissile system advocated last week by President Nixon should be emplaced now to prevent the Russians from gaining a dangerous advantage in the nuclear arms race.

The Safeguard system advocated by Nixon would protect the U.S. intercontinental missile array rather than the large population centers which former President Lyndon B. Johnson's proposed Sentinel system was to have guarded.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Saigon: U.S. battle deaths totaled 351 last week, increasing the toll of the Communist spring offensive in Vietnam to 1,140 American dead The focus of the fighting in the third week of enemy attacks was on the provinces surrounding Saigon and extending west to the Cambodian border.

Anguilla: British paratroopers landed on this tiny Caribbean island Wednesday to quell a two-year-old revolt against an inter-island federation which linked Anguilla with St. Kitts and Nevis. Islanders demonstrated against the "brutish British" but offered no serious resistance to the occupation forces.

Memphis, Tenn.: Judge W. Preston Battle said Wednesday James Earl Ray is having second thoughts about his plea of guilty in the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. and is seeking a review of the case.

Moscow: Russia reported further border fighting between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Ussuri River border. Diplomats in Moscow said the combat reports may be intended as an effort to persuade other Communist nations to disavow Red China.

Detroit: General Motors recalled more than a million cars, trucks and school buses to check possible safety defects in the brake systems. A GM spokesman said the death of a 15-year-old boy in a school bus accident apparently was due to a brake defect.

Bond Market Rallies A Bit After Hitting Record Low

NEW YORK (UPI) — Several sectors of the bond market rallied this week after touching record lows, Salomon Brothers and Hutzler reported.

The investment firm said the early selloff was largely in reaction to Monday's half point increase in the prime rate while the subsequent rally followed rumors of progress in the peace negotiations.

The late-week rally in governments allowed intermediate and long term issues to close the week with net gains; the first net advance since mid-February.

Treasury bill rates declined for the third week while most other short term rates remained unchanged. As a result, Salomon said, yield spreads of competing money market instruments from bills widened still further. Europe-dollar rates rose briefly to new record highs following the prime rate rise. Federal funds continued very tight.

New corporate bond yields rose to record highs and attracted substantial investor interest. The release from syndicate restrictions of a largely unsold telephone issue and the sellout of the week's new offerings reduced underwriter inventories to nominal levels. The burden on the new issue market this week was reduced when three scheduled offerings were postponed. Prices on seasoned issues declined further, but the more actively traded recent issues advanced following the favorable reception accorded the week's new issues. Next week's calendar will be moderate — $200 million — and the total for March will be a little less than the $950 million February volume. The April calendar remains moderate — about $550 million, according to Salomon.

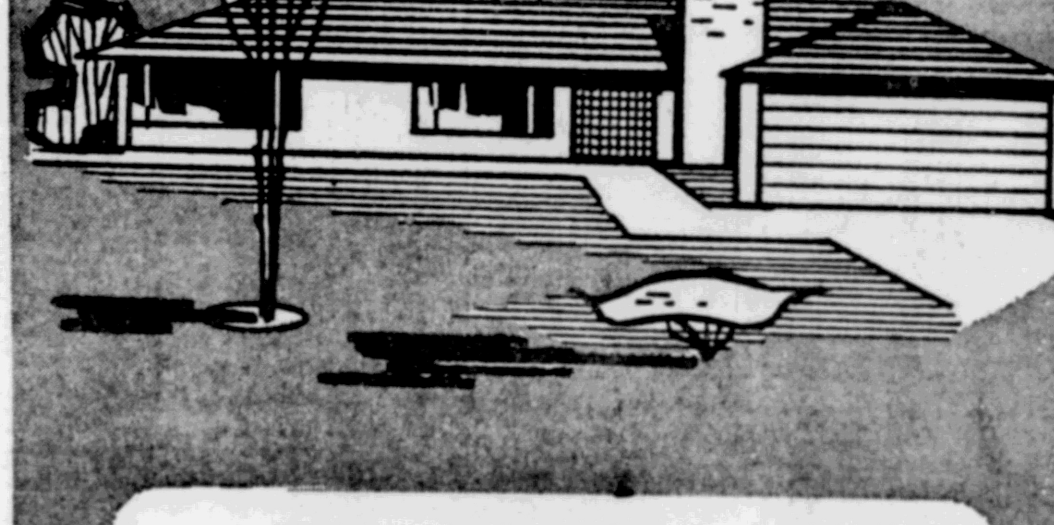
DOES THE HOUSE HAVE A FLOOR?



Buying a house with wall to wall carpeting?

Before you buy -- Specify . . .

HARDWOOD FLOORS

Beneath that deep pile rug may be nothing more than bare concrete, plywood or plank subflooring. If you want the house in this condition, fine. Just be sure you realize that the best carpet lasts about eight years. But Hardwood floors last a lifetime! Then too, when it's time to sell the house, you may have to replace worn carpeting to attract a buyer. So if you are buying a carpeted house, new or used, the best way to avoid a floorless surprise is to ask the builder or owner to pull up part of the carpet. Seeing is believing.

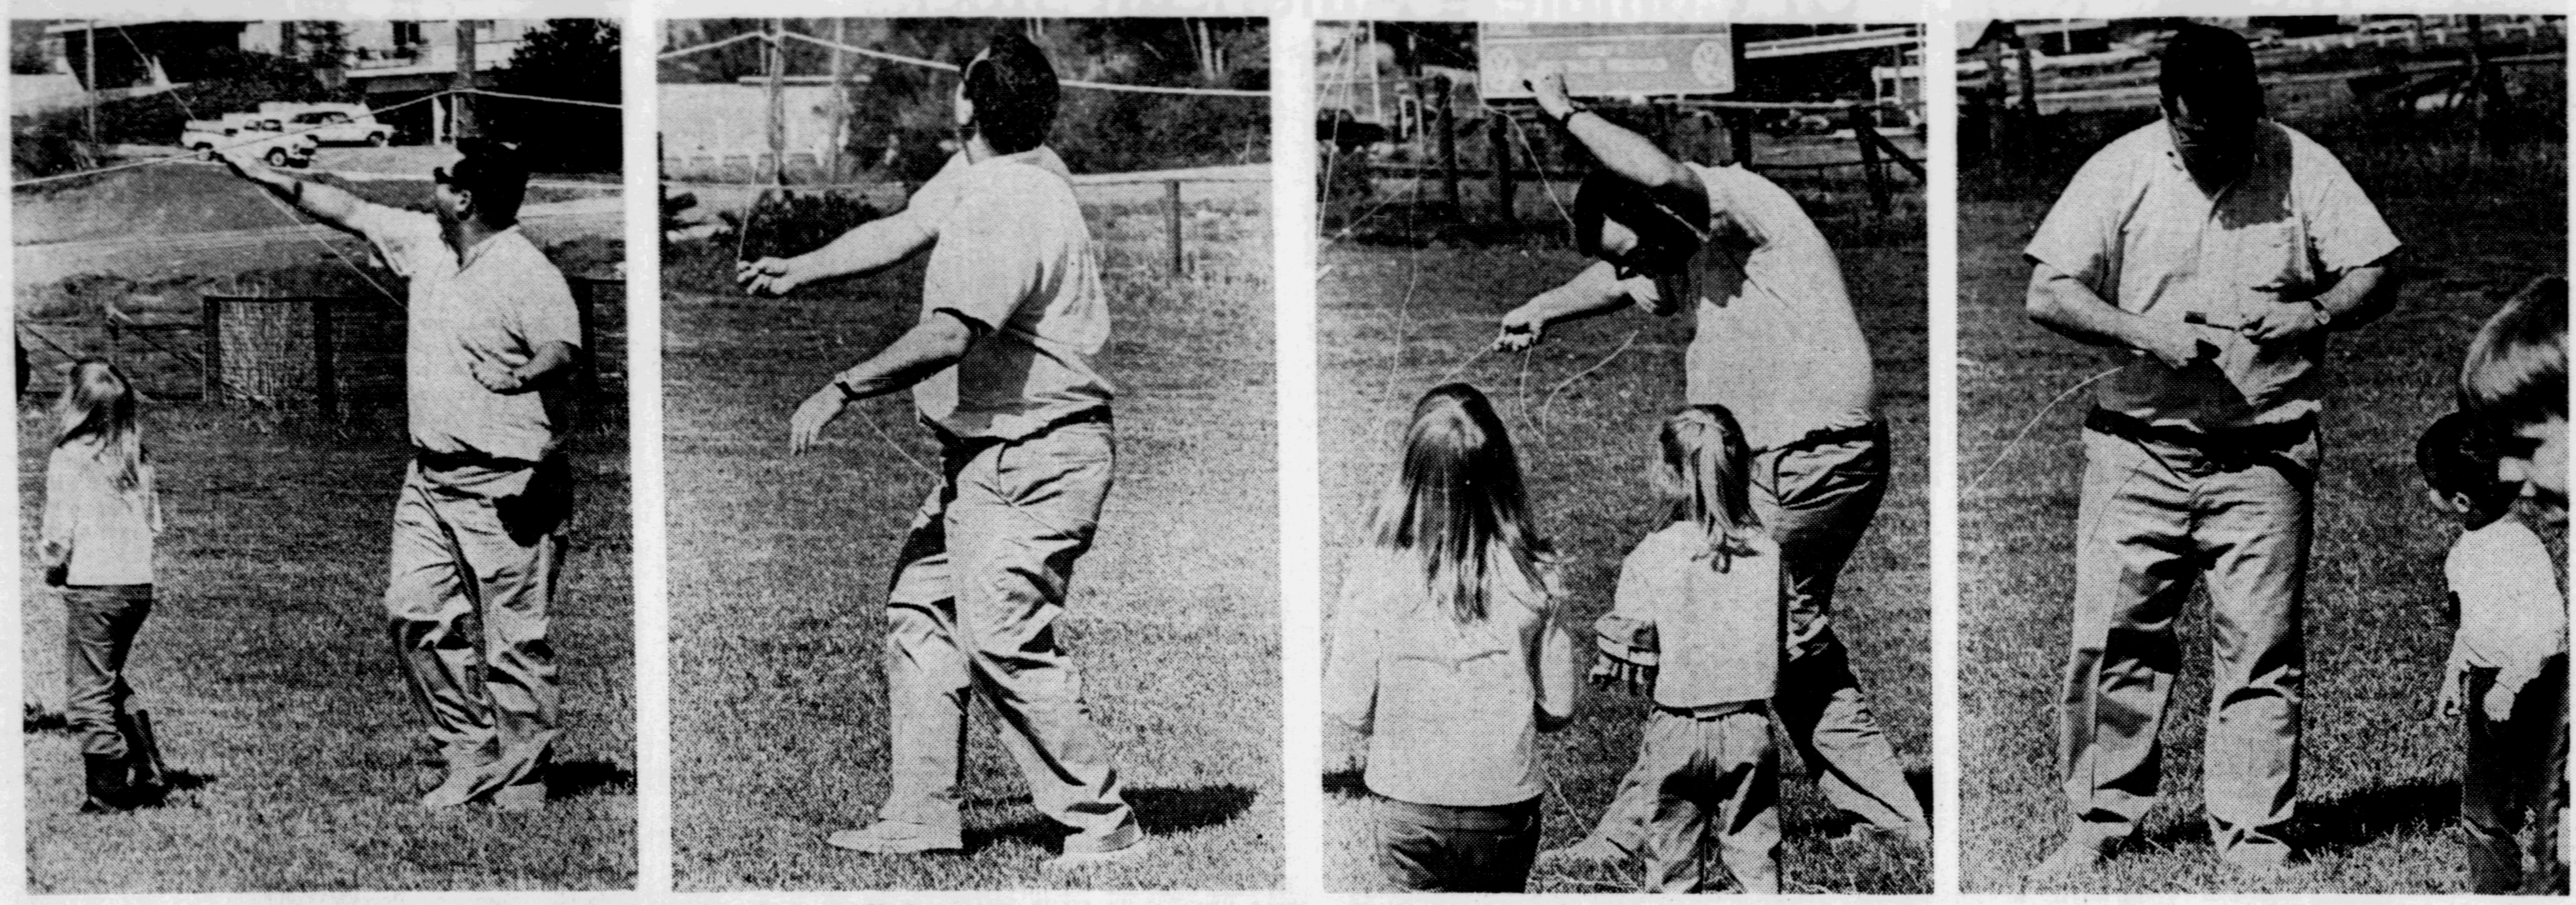
How To Have Fun On A Windy Day



At least one father demonstrating how to fly his son's kite recently at Mill Valley's kite flying contest at Project 17 got all tangled up in a mess of lines.

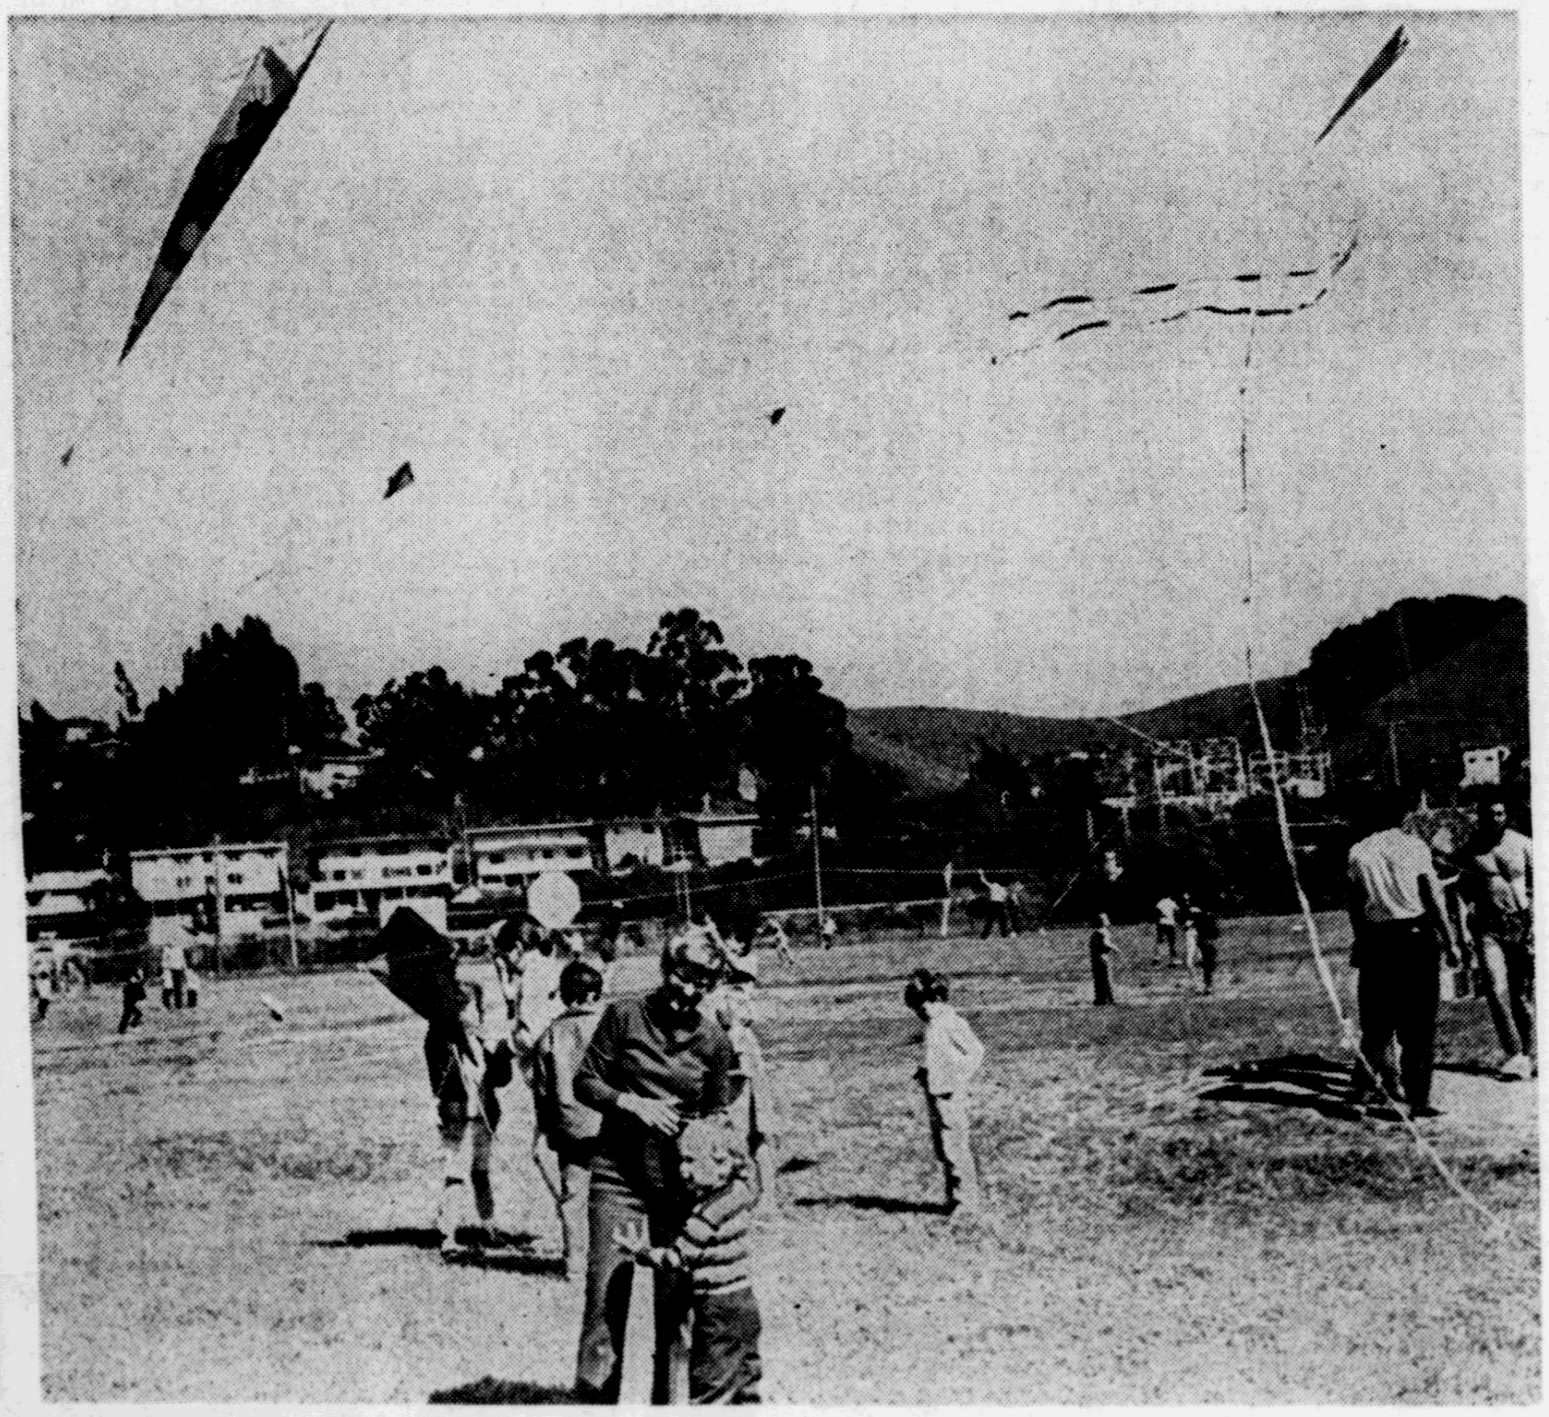
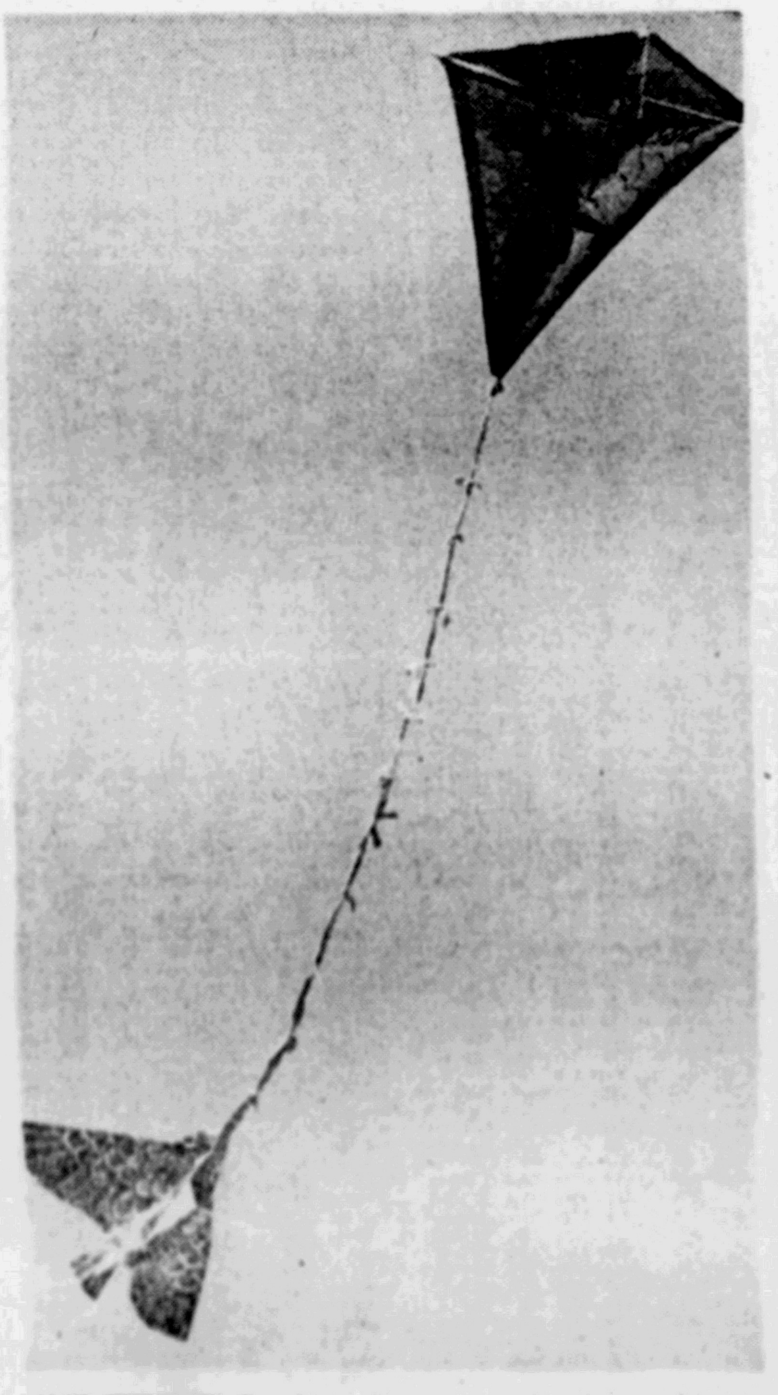
LATEST NEWS—John Lee launches a traditional but high-flying kite made of newsprint. About 100 persons turned out for the annual event.



TRAFFIC JAM—Contestants struggle to keep their lines unsnarled, but for many it was a losing fight. But it was a beautiful day, warm and sunny, and the hills were green.

HAPPY KITE—Don Herve displays one of the many original kites—not all of which were as successful as his in getting off the ground.

ALL SIZES—Nick Lowrey totes his kite to the launching area with a manful stride. It was a day for all ages.



HOT PURSUIT—Two kites chase one another across the sky as they soar upward in a try for highest flight trophy. The bird kite only appears to be biting the tail of the upper kite.

PRIZEWINNER—Lori Breuer displays her slightly wounded kite, which won the smallest kite trophy after a quick flight.

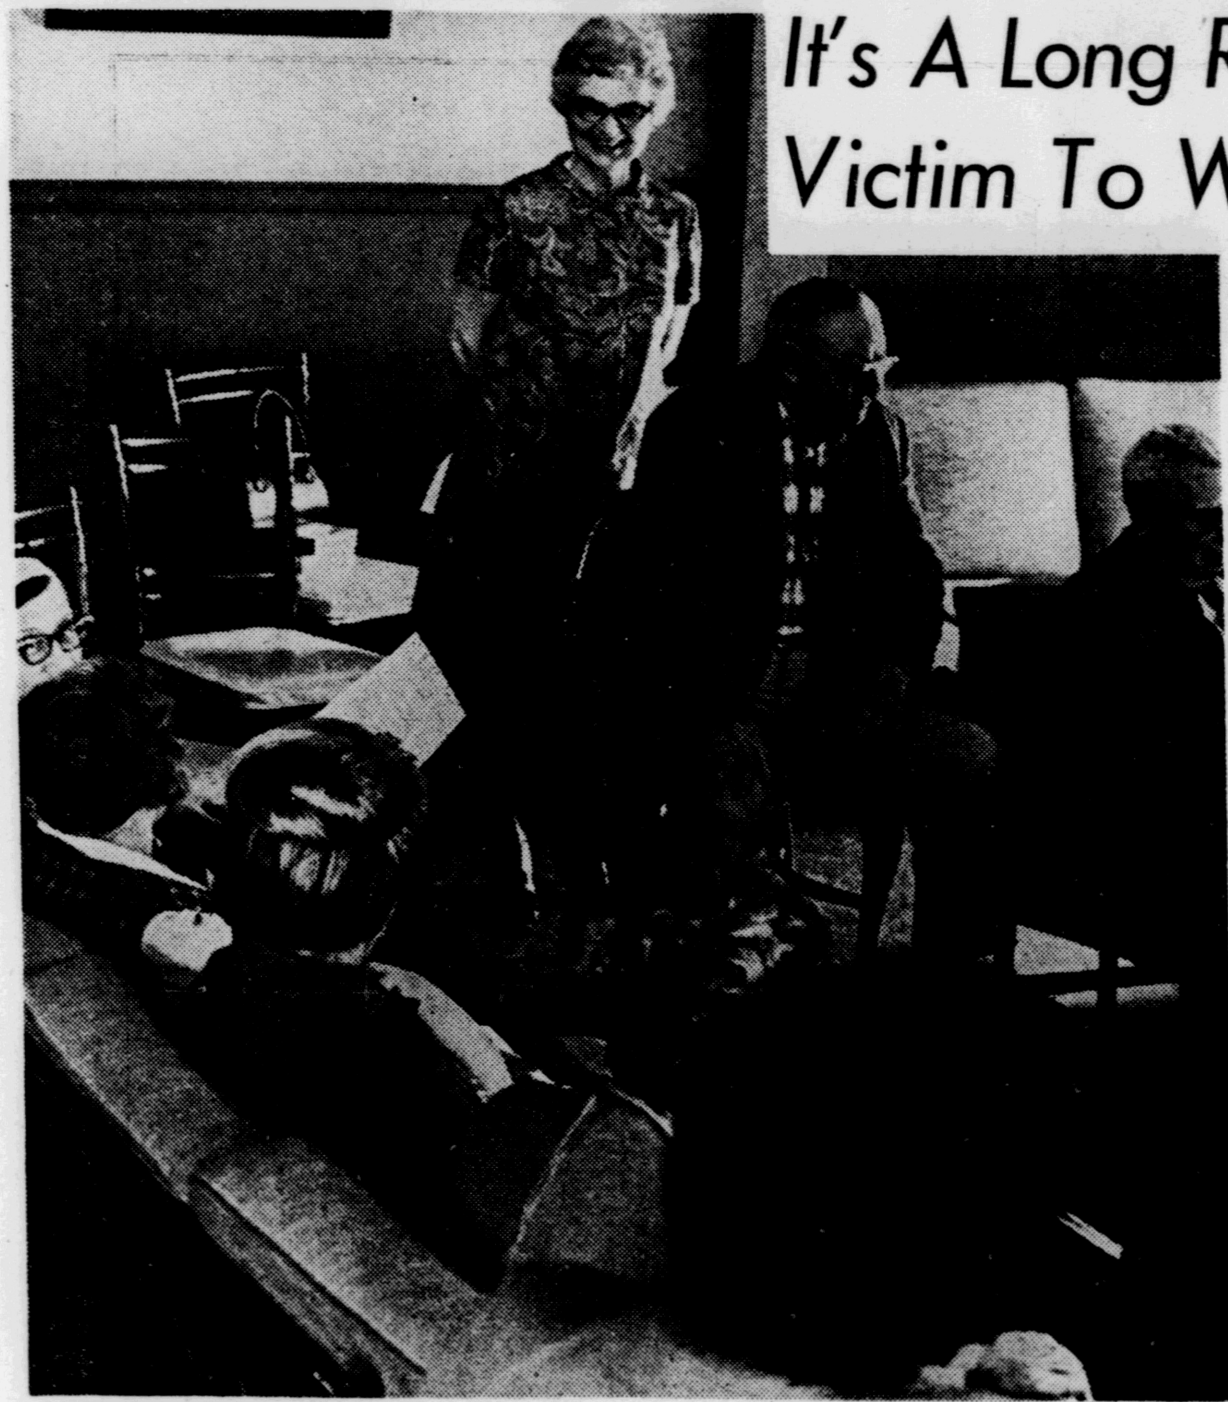
It's A Long Road Back For Stroke Victim To World Of Communication

But Easter Seal Program Offers Encouragement And Guidance

By DON KEOWN



HELEN DAGGETT, director of the Easter Seal Society's Tuesday morning group therapy program for adults with communication disorders at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church, smiles at an indication of progress by one of the participants. The group includes both people struggling to regain their powers of speech, and members of their families responsible for their care. (Independent-Journal photos)

We live, Marshall McLuhan has told us, in an age when communication is all-important.

Consider then, the plight of the person who suddenly finds himself stripped of his ability to communicate with his fellow man, by stroke, other illness or injury.

People so stricken might very likely resign themselves to a drab life of silence, cut off from the exchanges of ideas with other humans that once enlivened their existence.

BUT ON THE other hand, if plucky, they might instead fight back, undertaking a long and arduous struggle to recover their powers of speech and communication.

For such an endeavor, they will need encouragement, understanding and professional guidance.

Each Tuesday morning a group of Marin adults gathers in the Fireside Room of the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo for just such an undertaking.

THE SPONSOR, the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin, calls these weekly sessions its "Tuesday morning group therapy program for adults with communication disorders."

And it is all made possible by Easter Seal contributions.

Director of the program is Helen Daggett, who has headed Easter Seal speech and language activities in Marin County for the past 10 years.

Holder of a master's degree in speech and hearing from San Francisco State College, Mrs. Daggett has been a Marinite for 22 years.

OF THE TUESDAY morning program, she says: "It had long been our hope that Easter Seal might make available in Marin a group approach for people with the problem of loss of language as the result of a stroke or a brain damaging accident."

The hope became reality three months ago as therapists and other professionals in the field indicated a belief that there was a growing and urgent need for such a program in the county.

The program began with four and now has eight adults engaged in efforts to regain their powers of speech.

IN ADDITION, the member of the family most immediately responsible for the care of each of the speech-stricken person also attends.

Working with Mrs. Daggett are Easter Seal speech therapist Grace Almon; occupational therapist Sue Williams of Mill Valley, now between her academic training and her apprenticeship work, and social worker Ruth Younce of San Rafael, a newcomer to the area.

The weekly sessions run for approximately two hours.

The gatherings, says Mrs. Daggett, "are actually quite informal and flexible. They may go on as long as the participants feel they are being helped, and the direction they take may be determined by those taking part."

THE AIM, SHE says, is "to improve and to restore as far as possible the communications abilities of the person."

"We work at the level of a person's ability to succeed," she explains. "While it is a group gathering, the part taken by each person in attendance is an individual decision. This may mean a conversation carried on at a fairly high level in which

EASTER SEAL speech therapist Grace Almon conducts a card identification game with George McDevitt, one of the participants in the Tuesday morning group sessions for persons suffering communications disorders. Such games provide a stimulation and challenge for the participants.

SUE WILLIAMS is the volunteer occupational therapist working with the Easter Seal group program. Here she helps James Simmers as he strives for improvement in the manipulation of a crippled right hand by sanding a piece of wood as part of a simple woodworking project.

Easter Seals Help Plucky To Improve

the emphasis is upon greater clarity.

"Others may play dominoes, benefiting from the matching of the numbers. The more able ones will keep score.

"THEN THERE are the word games. A favorite is one in which a brief biography and description of a person is given. The objective is then to guess the name."

Often the major problem, Mrs. Daggett says, is not so much the ability to pronounce the words, as it is to call up the right words. Sometimes there is as much need for help in comprehending what is being said to them as in their own saying.

The relaxed, social atmosphere of the gatherings in itself has a therapeutic value for people who might feel shy because of their handicaps and who might otherwise avoid such relationships. Knowing they are with other people with problems similar to their own, they toss off inhibitions.

MRS. DAGGETT tells of one woman in her late 70s living alone in her apartment who was persuaded by her doctor to join the group. Knowing that her speech was exceedingly difficult to understand, at first she spoke hardly at all. But it wasn't long, the speech pathologist relates, before she was offering her comments. And finally, she was taking part wholeheartedly, "almost shouting out during the games."

Most of the members of the Tuesday morning group are stroke victims. There are also Parkinson Disease and automobile accident victims in the gathering.

Facilities are donated by the San Anselmo church where the meetings are held, and the American Red Corss provides transportation for those in need of it.

MRS. DAGGETT says she hopes the group speech therapy program for adults, which is open to all Marin residents, will be a permanent Easter Seal function in the county.

"I think it is one of the most valuable things we are doing," she says. But she stresses that it is only the newest of a long list of direct service programs being conducted in Marin by the Easter Seal Society.

Services, she adds, that are possible only because Marinites react so generously when the envelopes containing the Easter Seals and contribution envelopes appear in their mail during the Lenten season.

Sculptor-Potter John Dumas Aims For Emotional Impact

He Prefers His Clay Unpolished

By GIL PEARSON

Sculptor-potter John Dumas says:

"While pottery alone does get artistic appreciation, I want my efforts to provoke more visual and emotional impact than crafted objects ordinarily do. I can reach this end by concentrating on the sculpturing of a pot form and not on its functional use.

"FURTHER, I seek eyeball to eyeball honesty with the viewer simply by letting clay be clay in its natural organic texture rather than polishing surfaces with commercial treatments."

His direction thus established, this 26-year-old Marin-based artisan is taking courageous strides in producing his personal venture in three dimensional

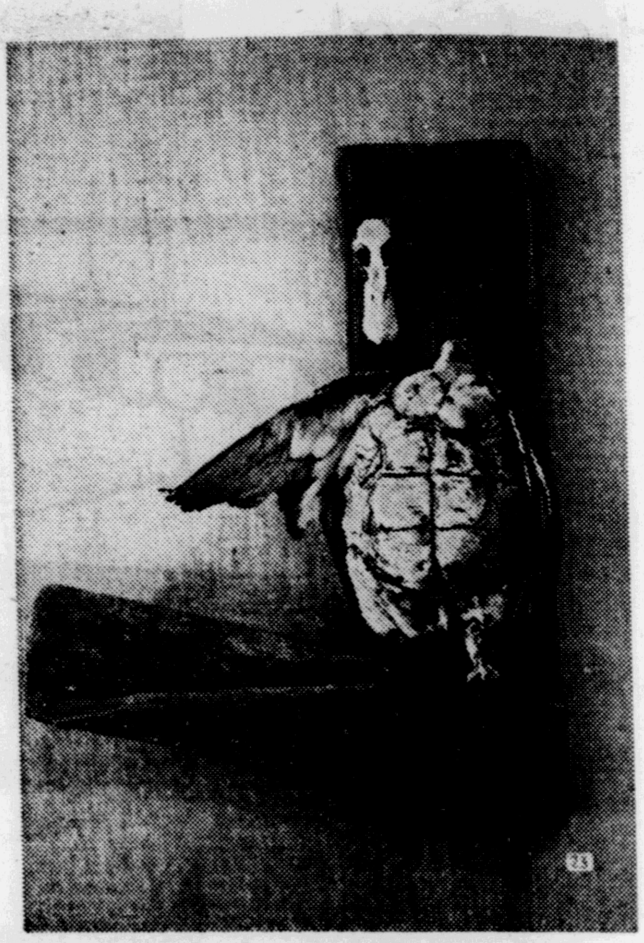
ARTIST John Dumas here has attempted to infuse emotion into high-fired earth, creating this mask with emotional impact.

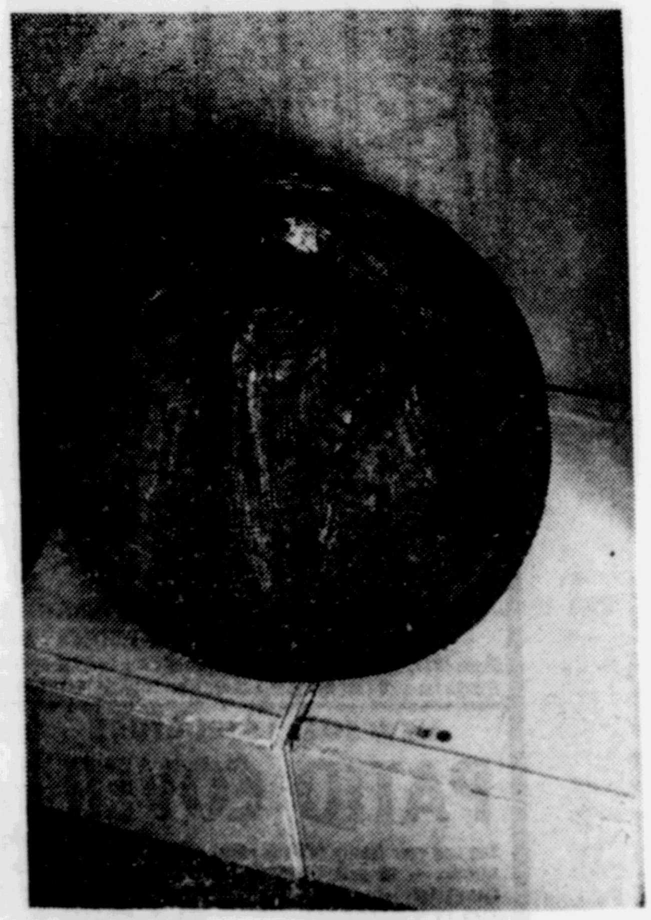
A JOHN DUMAS slip-surfaced clay form with its mobile top half suspended from a single wire floats above its stable base.



REAL WINGS of birds were clothed in ceramic form and mounted on weathered planks, while a duck's skull returns the viewer's gaze.

A BOWL-SHAPED cage with horsehair yarn and beads as the mesh imprisons the form of a screaming bird.

THESE wheel-thrown pots in bird form were modeled by John Dumas as his creative analogies of despair.



A BIRD FORM emerges into three dimensions from the curved surfaces of a hollow, clay-fired sphere.

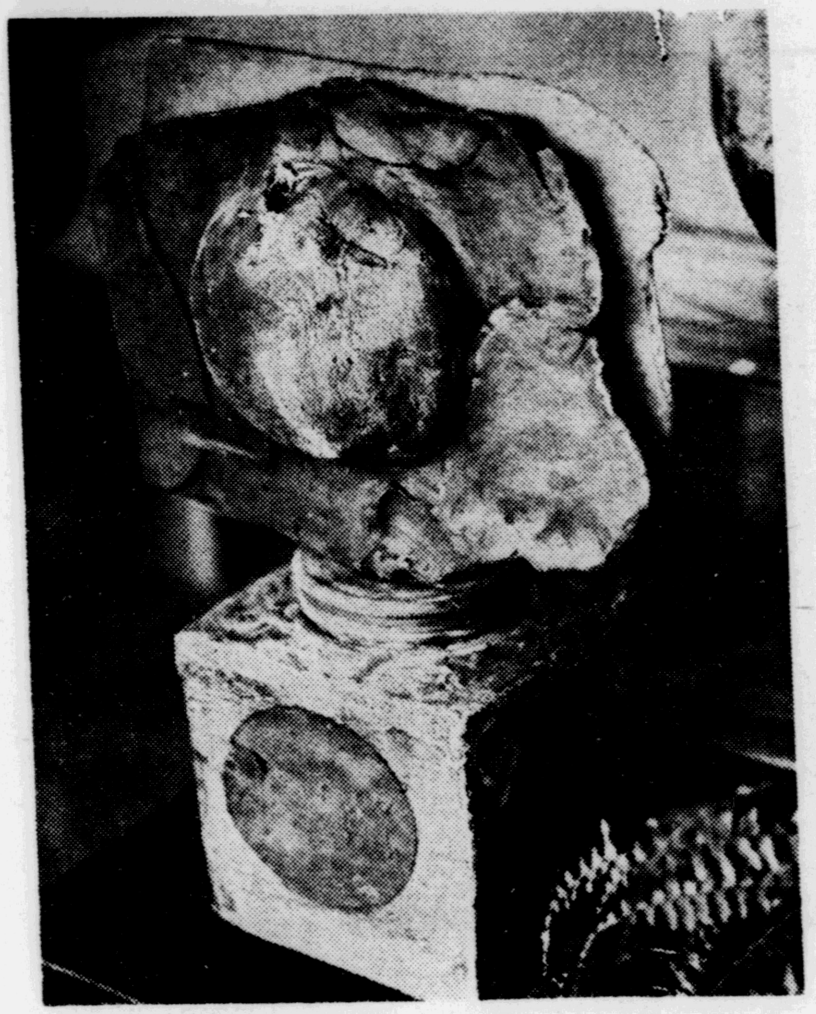
forms taken from nature and imagination.

You don't glance at a John Dumas clay and hurry along — it has enough grip to cause you to linger and ponder.

SCHOOLED AT Rhode Island's Brown University, Dumas took a bachelor of arts degree in art history. And he earned a master's degree in ceramics at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland last December. He holds a teacher's certificate.

He gives private lessons in ceramics in Sausalito, Berkeley and at his studio high in the wooded hills of Fairfax.

His masks, wall plaques, hanging pieces, lidded forms, and hollow pots have been exhibited in various quantities at the College of Marin, the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum, the Walnut Creek Civic Art Center, and at the Anima Mundi gallery in Mill Valley.



CIRCULAR BIRDS emerge on back-to-back, irregularly contoured lay slabs that serve as the lid for a squared John Dumas ceramic box.

A SIMPLY contoured 30-pound pot on close inspection can be seen to symbolize the human form struggling to free itself.

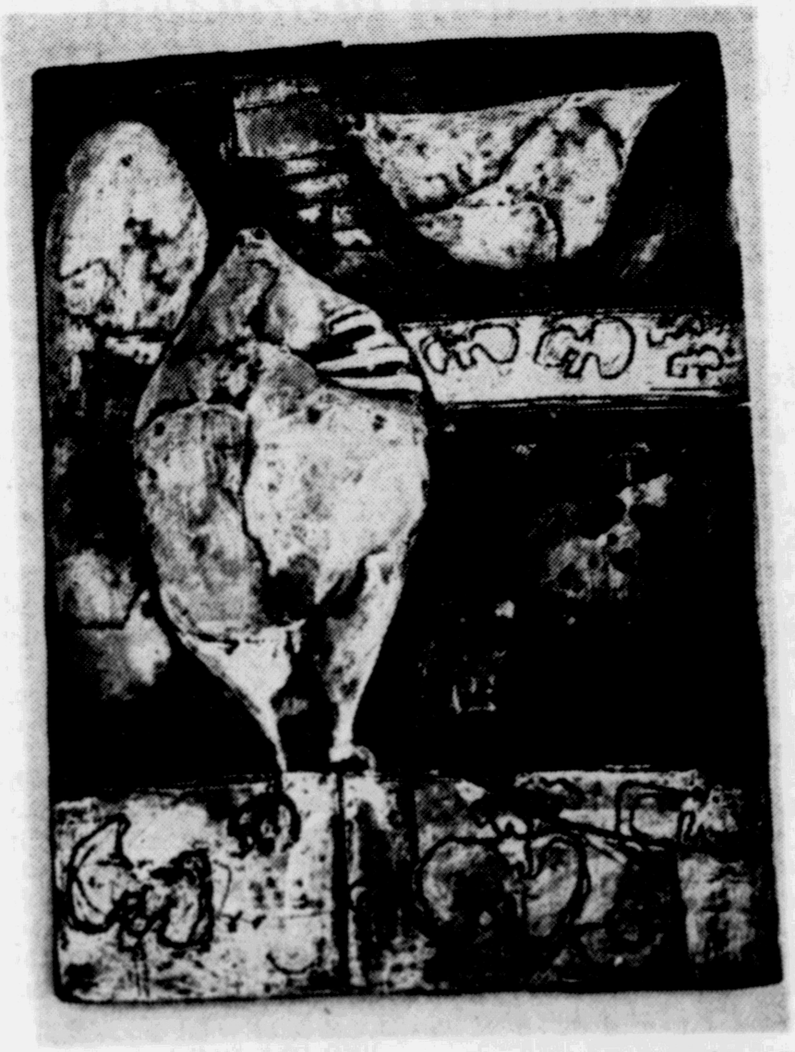
ART CRITIC Helen Rivers writing in the San Francisco Sunday Examiner and Chronicle recently noted:

"Many (of the exhibits at the San Francsico Potters Association Biennial) are contemporarily vigorous and exciting, and a few do nothing more than delight or surprise the viewer.

"In one instance, what appears to be from several feet away merely a stone of interesting shape is suddenly upon close inspection John Dumas' striking, angrily clawing stoneware bird, its open beak and eye a jug's spout, and its gripping claws leaping out from a flat sculptured design."

SCULPTURE-POTTER John Dumas has examples of his art available for exhibit and welcomes invitations to show. In addition, he is in production with new material for fall showing.

His address is II Holly Road, Fairfax.



THIS TILED plaque assemblage, conceived as a single two-foot-high unit, employs low sculptural relief with bird motifs.

IN THE POTTERY tradition, John Dumas here has ventured his own personal expansion in the potentialities for expression of clay.

"Where Did The Stain On My Dress Come From?"

You say the stain wasn't there until the dress was cleaned. Examination indicates that the stain was present, but invisible. Such stains can be seen only after heat used in drycleaning is present. Many such invisible stains are caused by beauty preparation chemicals, soft drinks or alcoholic beverages. The sugar in these stains may carmelize when in contact with heat and pop into view. They cannot, then, be removed.

In some instances a fresh stain may be dabbed with water and seem to disappear, but it returns after drycleaning. If you spill anything on a fabric, advise your drycleaner. It will help him to do a better job of removing it.

BEFORE A CLASS at her Wedgwood Academy of Fashion and Dress Design, Mary Golden begins a lesson in pattern-making with a briefing using diagrams upon the blackboard. She has copyrighted her Wedgwood Method of Perfect Pattern Drafting which she says greatly simplifies the process by which the woman can make a basic dress pattern to fit her own measurements.

MARY GOLDEN takes the measurements of one of her Wedgwood Academy students, Marilyn Boggeri. Instruction in pattern-making begins, Mrs. Golden says, with directions on the proper procedures for taking accurate measurements. This is followed by consultation on figure assets and problems, and then by advice on the most flattering style lines, colors, fabrics, etc.

COVER PHOTO

A STUDENT at Mary Golden's Wedgwood Academy of Fashion and Dress Design proceeds with the preliminary draft on paper of her individual basic dress pattern. Completed, it will then be cut out and transferred to muslin. The muslin cut-out can then be tried on for fit, a step, according to Mrs. Golden, that eliminates many a mistake. It is one of the tricks of the professional dress designer and maker that Mrs. Golden teaches her students. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

Learning To Make The Perfect Pattern

It's Stressed In Instruction At Marin Dressmaking School

Before the making of the dress must come the pattern.

Indeed, the entire success of a dressmaking project, whether at home, in a garment factory or an elegant haute couture house in Paris, is dependent upon the pattern or design.

Well aware of this, Mary Golden places strong emphasis upon pattern-making at her Wedgwood Academy of Fashion and Dress Design at 1563 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

MRS. GOLDEN, with a rich background in clothing design and making, opened the school a year ago. She now has daytime classes meeting on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, evening classes on Thursdays, and a special "speedy sewing session" for teen-agers on Saturdays. She plans additional evening classes for this fall.

The disappointments the home dressmaker frequently encounters can be most often traced to a faulty or ill suited pattern, Mrs. Golden says.

"Many women who like to sew buy commercial patterns," she relates. Full of enthusiasm and high hopes, they then begin to make something to wear. Very soon, they realize they have problems.

"SOMEHOW somewhere, they and the patterns have lost each other. After hours of frustration in trying to find out where they or the patterns went astray, they abandon the project in despair as a lost cause.

"This is because commercial patterns are cut by the thousands to conform to standard measurements. Women, fortunately, are not so made. No two women are exactly the same."

The solution, she says, is for these women to draft their own patterns to fit their own measurements and design tastes.

THE EASIEST and most effective way to do this, Mrs. Golden believes, is to master the Wedgwood Method of Perfect Pattern Drafting that she has devised and copyrighted, which she teaches at the academy, and which will be the subject of a book that is currently in preparation.

She describes it as a simplified technique utilizing seven fundamental measurements, each numbered and assigned a color, by which the women learn to draft their own basic patterns. These can then be adapted to various styles of dresses.

Instruction begins, Mrs. Golden says, with a lesson on the correct taking of measurements, followed by consultation on figure assets and problems. Advice is provided on the most flattering lines, colors, fabrics, etc.

ON THE blackboard, the procedure in drafting the front bodice is first explained, with diagrams of both the process and the completed project.

Then the preliminary paper pattern is drafted, cut out and transferred to muslin. The muslin can then be tried on to attain a perfect fit, a step, according to Mrs. Golden, that eliminates many a mistake.

Next, from the muslin which has passed the fitting test the final basic pattern — "sloper" it is called in the trade — is cut. From this can come many different style variations as the pattern-maker is finally ready to begin the actual dressmaking process.

"NO ONE CAN learn to sew well in a few quick lessons," says Mrs. Golden flatly.

She says her students are shown special sewing secrets that include the "tricks" of the most famous French designers and dressmakers.

For instance, she says, many women approach the "putting in a sleeve" phase of the dressmaking with special trepidation. "This is one place that gives away an amateurish homemade product," Mrs. Golden says. "But there is a simple way that a sleeve can be inserted by the home sewer that gives a professionally perfect final result."

The Right Pattern Is The Key

And No Two Women Are Quite Alike

ONE TEST OF good work, she says, is that "the sewing on the inside of a garment should be as neat as the sewing on the outside."

Mrs. Golden was born in Liverpool, England, a member of one of that country's oldest families, the Wedgwoods. An ancestor, William Wedgwood, was a tailor who lived next door to William Shakespeare in the 1570s. John Wedgwood followed his relative by marriage, John Winthrop, governor of Salem, in crossing the Atlantic to Massachusetts in 1630. Charles Darwin was a Wedgwood on his mother's side.

And the Wedgwoods of Wedgwood chinaware fame are distant relatives, although Mrs. Golden stesses that her academy is in no way connected with the Wedgwood potteries, which, incidentally, are no longer a family-owned concern.

MRS. GOLDEN was reared in Leeds, England, and earned a scholarship to attend Notre Dame Collegiate School there. She recalls that she began sewing at the age of 10, designing and selling doll clothes. Later she designed and made costumes for Shakespearean plays.

She served an apprenticeship in dressmaking, fashion design and tailoring in England and was graduated from two dress designing schools. In America, she was an "A" student in home economics at Contra Costa College, and before coming to Marin County she owned a custom clothes making establishment.

Her husband, Rodney G. Golden, is a supervising counselor at San Quentin Prison.

MRS. GOLDEN says her hobbies are "my family, home and my profession," adding that "when one enjoys something so much, it ceases to be work." Her other interests include music (she plays the piano), art (she dabbles in oils), gardening, reading and cooking.

And she still likes to dress dolls.

In addition to working on her book, she is collecting pictures and slides, especially while traveling abroad, of national and historical costumes of other countries. She plans to make use of them in future course. "The History of Costumes from the Cave Man to Carnaby Street."

OF FASHION today, she says: "Everything is geared to the younger set."

And teen-agers, she adds, have the impatience of youth. A speedy sewing job will fill their needs "as long as no one turns the garment inside out to see how it was put together."

On the other hand, says Mrs. Golden, the more mature women are interested in learning to draft patterns that meet their personal requirements, and in mastering the kind of fine sewing and finishing associated with custom-made clothing.

"I AM FAMILIAR with both the quick factory techniques and the slower and more intricately detailed quality custom design methods," she says, "so I teach everything from 'mad mod' to 'haute couture'."

But in all her classes on design and dressmaking, Mrs. Golden emphasizes pride in good craftsmanship.

"The essence of skillful dress designing," she says, "is to hide one's figure faults by accentuating the good points.

"With clever designing, any woman can look the way she wishes. Lines can create optical illusions.

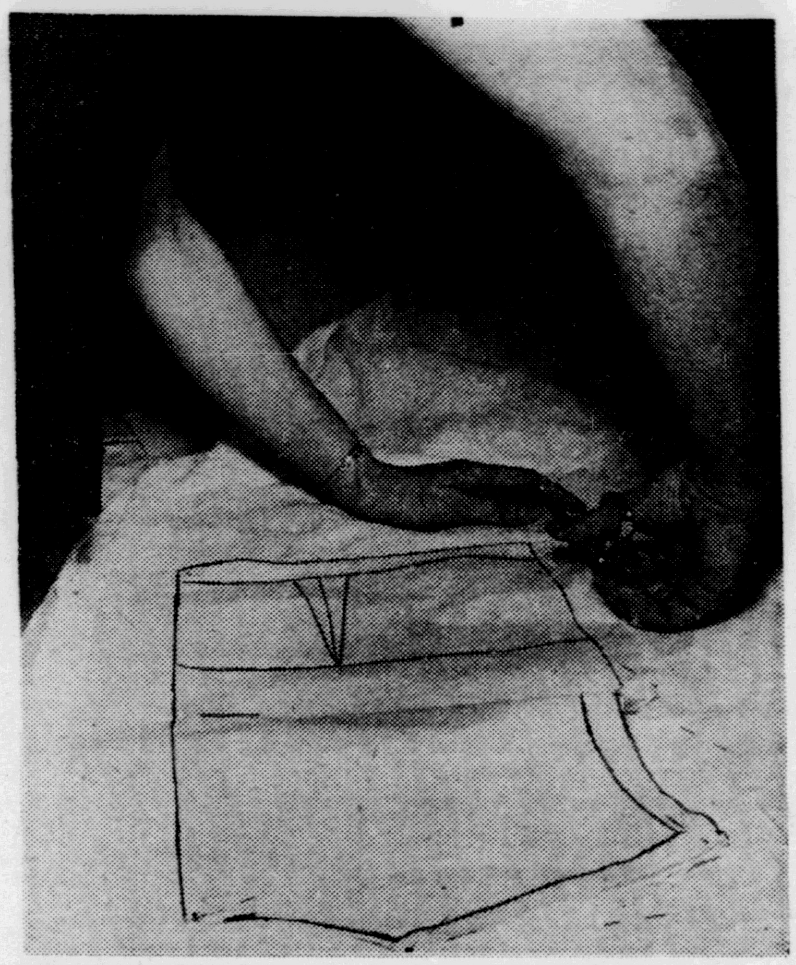
"FOR INSTANCE, if a woman wishes to look slimmer, and/or taller, she should never wear a dress with a horizontal line across the figure that would make her appear still shorter and heavier."

"Every woman," declares Mrs. Golden, "owes it to herself, family and society to dress as attractively as possible."

This, she adds, can be achieved most economically if she can both design and make her own clothes, using the styling and colors that best enhance her personality.

"THERE IS something therapeutic about a dress you have designed and have made yourself, and that has turned out well," she promises. "It gives a sense of achievement, and an opportunity for truly creative expression.

"It's a great morale booster."



HERE THE student, having completed the pattern for the bodice of her dress, is transferring it to muslin and cutting it out, so that it can be test fitted before being used upon more expensive material.

HER SMILE indicates approval as Mary Golden checks the fit of the muslin bodice that student Jannine Akers has made. If it fits perfectly, the pattern can then be applied to dress materials.

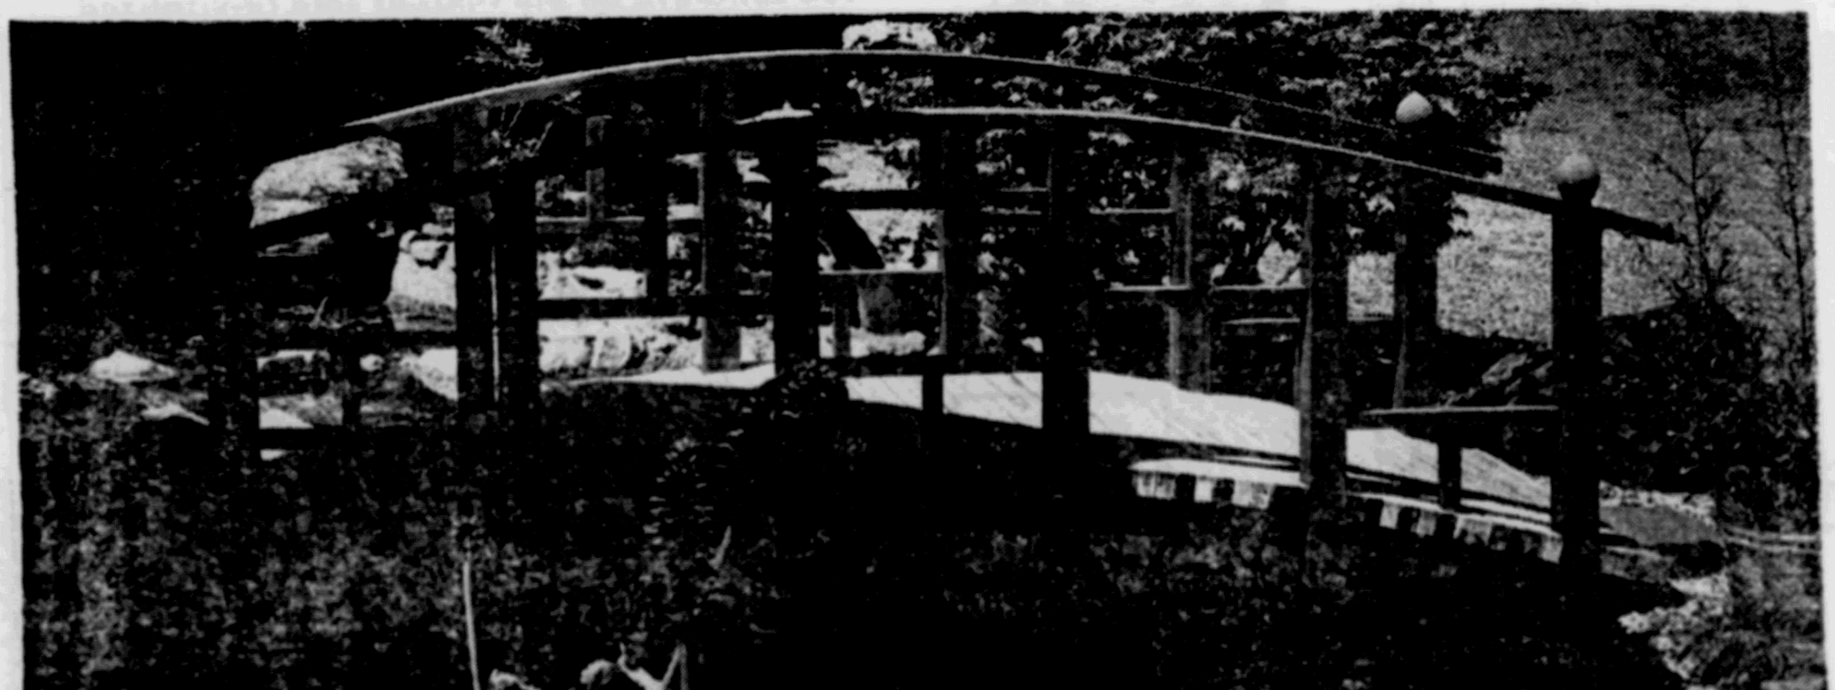
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTS Katy and Paul Steinmetz, in designing the garden for the Harold W. Hobbs home at 1823 Lagoon View Road, Tiburon, took special care to blend their work with the Oriental motif of the Gordon A. Phillips-designed house. A pool, arched bridge, granite Japanese lantern, pink gumbo azalea and rockwork all contribute to the effect at the front entry to the home.



HAROLD W. HOBBS built the arched wooden footbridge over the pond himself, working from a design by Katy and Paul Steinmetz and using laminated one-by-fours. By using board widths considerably larger than those available to the Japanese, the work was greatly simplified.

AT LEFT, a fisherman dapples the water of Reflection Lake in Lassen Volcanic National Park with 10,457-foot Lassen Peak, the only active volcano in continental United States, in the background. At right, Bumpass Hell is 16 acres of furious energy going nowhere. Boiling mud pots toss superheated liquid into the air, and volcanic gases and steam combine to cerate a riot of color.

California's Park Of Contrast And Color

The Travel Pages

A heavenly view from the top of the world one day. A descent into hell the next.

A forested retreat from the superhighway world in summer. In winter, a skier's delight.

Luxury bungalows near a fine dining room for some. Tenting for those who like to camp.

This is all Lassen Volcanic National Park, 160 square miles of contrast and color, that offers visitors the high thrill of climbing 10,457-foot Lassen Peak, the only active volcano in the continental United States; or taking the low road into the bubbling, seething wasteland of Bumpass Hell, a steaming, awful glimpse of the world as it used to be.

ALONG WITH the volcanic marvels there are hundreds of miles of walking and horseback trails, streams, lakes for boating, swimming and fishing, and accommmodations for everyone from one-day picnic visitors to those who spend a month . . . or all summer.

This fascinating retreat exists less than 250 miles from Marin County and only a stone's throw off Highway 99.

In spite of being so near densely populated areas, Lassen Park never seems overcrowded. Perhaps, because the variety of things to see and do keeps people from gathering at just one or two places.

THE PLACE to begin to understand the ancient and recent history of Lassen, arrange for accommodations, or outfit for camping is Manzanita Lake, just inside the northern boundary. Visitors reach it by turning off U. S. 99 at Redding.

The Manzanita Visitor Center, established by California pioneers and maintained by the National Park Service, displays the geological and human history of the area. Activated exhibits show the Pacific Ring of Fire, a circle of volcanic activity that surrounds the Pacific Ocean. Lassen Peak, which last threw out molten rock and lava during repeated eruptions from 1914 to 1918, is part of this chain.

Oldsters and youngsters alike are fascinated by the working seismograph which records earth tremors all over the globe. Displays and illustrated talks by ranger naturalists at the Manzanita Lake open-air amphitheater acquaint the traveler with the places to see and how to get there.

EVERYONE who comes to Lassen Volcanic National Park during the May-September season, should catch Mrs. Selena LaMarr at the visitor center. A seemingly ageless lady, one of the last of the Hat Creek Tribe of Atsugewi Indians, she narrates the ways of her people with zest and rare humor. Although she looks to be pushing 65, she's known to be past 80, but how far past, no one knows.

Seated on a bench covered with a dressed animal pelt, with a four-foot-in-diameter circle of log as a sounding board, Mrs. LaMarr talks, and displays an ancient art which will be lost when she can no longer practice it. Twice a day she tells the story of her people at the same time she's weaving the articles which were their cooking pots, storage bins, fish nets, hats and children's toys.

She also points out, with a twinkle in her eye, that what is now Lassen Volcanic National Park, a vacation area for Americans, was also a playground and summer home for her tribe. They, too, came to seek relief from the humid valleys, live under the trees and relax.

EVERYONE at the park including the college student employees, wranglers and guides give the visitor a welcomed, make-yourself-at home feeling. The epitome of this attitude is Mrs. Al (Frankie) Donau, who manages the visitor concessions for Lassen Volcanic Park Inc. A five-foot-three-inch dynamo of friendly energy, she wants everyone to be comfortable in her 100,000 acre back yard, and to see all the sights.

This includes the two and a half mile climb to the summit of Lassen Peak, where volcanic eruptions last rumbled from a heart of fire deep in the mountain only 50 years ago. Steam vents connected with the recent craters indicate the heat is still there.

After the high view atop Lassen Peak, the visitor can descend the next day into 16 acres of hell (Bumpass Hell, that is), the still active remnant of prehistoric Mount Tehama, of which Lassen Peak is also an offshoot.

THE VISITOR can smell the sulphureous blast as he follows the path downward. He is gradually aware of heat and dampness, and finally, just before rounding the last bend, noise.

Forces released millions of years ago are still creating a fiendish racket. Bubbling mud pots splash and gurgle. Seething hot water springs are a marvel of furious, roaring energy going nowhere. And for millions o years, yet. Chartreuse, yellow orange, blue, green, reds, pink purple and rust are just a few o the colors dyed into the rocks i this microcosm of a cooling planet.

Lassen Peak and Bumpas Hell are easily accessible from the park highway, and other attractions, such as Cinder Cone Emerald Lake, Drakesba Guest Ranch (a dude ranc within the park boundaries) Chaos Jumbles and Crysta Cliffs, are within easy walkin or riding distance.

MANZANITA LAKE an Drakesbad are the two spot with lodging facilities Manzanita has economy ac commodations for families complete with cooking utensils There is a camp store, beaut and barber shops, service sta tion and grill. Or a visitor ca rent a bungalow without cookin facilities and enjoy the cuisin at Manzanita Lake Lodge.

Drakesbad offers cabins, family style dining room horseback riding and swimmin in the natural hot water pool.

There are seven campground in Lassen, most of them by goo fishing lakes and all are within few miles, or steps, of most o the attractions.

The park is still so natura that it's a rare day when dee and ground squirrels don't com around to have a few tasty left overs from the visitors' meals

Lassen belongs on everyone' list of things to see.

The Tallest One-Room House In All The World

In California's own Redwood Empire stands a massive redwood tree which contains the tallest one-room house in the world.

Some 300 years ago a fire attacked the vitals of this tree which even then was more than 2,000 years old. The fire burned itself out after gutting the interior of the forest giant, which has a base circumference of 27 feet, and is 250 feet high.

Instead of going into a decline after suffering this fiery wound, the tree continued to thrive and is inspected by thousands of tourists every year as they drive through northern Mendocino County on U. S. 101 (the Redwood Highway).

According to Indian lore, pow-wows were held in the tall tree room when chiefs of various tribes encountered inclement weather. Later the room, resembling in shape an inverted ice cream cone, was used as a dormitory for convicts during early construction of the Redwood Highway. Now it serves as entrance to a unique gift shop.

One may now enter the tree room through a door and look outside through windows. A floor has also been added, but the walls of the tree remain untouched.

'Danny The Red' Reasons Untidily About Student Revolt

Reviews Of New Reading

OBSOLETE COMMUNISM: THE LEFT WING ALTERNATIVE by Daniel and Gabriel Cohn-Bendit; McGraw-Hill, 256 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

In April, 1968, "Danny-the-Red" Cohn-Bendit led student demonstrations at Nanterre, a suburban campus on the Sorbonne. He was disciplined by university authorities and apprehended by the police. This enraged previously apathetic students; thousands joined in demonstrations that fermented into revolt.

French workers joined the uprising by striking factories. In June, DeGaulle's regime came close to toppling.

The first part of "Obsolete Communism" ostensibly describes the revolt. But Cohn-Bendit is skimpy on details. Far from being a primer on revolutionary tactics a la Che Guevara, the narrative is more of a polemic . . . and a fairy tale. Danny the Red serves up an image of pure serene, faceless children who rise to smite the oppressor with beatific smiles. No mention is made of the way tough Paris gendarmes got bloodied heads.

Why did the students revolt? The author claims these reasons: (1) universities must become political; (2) students hate the dead, empty lives of their bourgeoisie parents; (3) society must be overthrown because it oppresses the workers.

A far better intellect than Danny's would stagger attempting to bear the anomalies of that pastiche. He becomes a one-man disaster area of untidy reasoning. Example: "How can a physicist believe his research is beneficial to humanity when an H-bomb is produced?" He means any university physicist doing any research.

Cohn-Bendit's biggest regret is stopping short of destroying government offices after burning the stock exchange . . . "DeGaulle would have caved in." He assumes that the army would have sat by in barracks cleaning its respective fingernails.

Brother Gabriel rescues reader interest somewhat by co-authoring the latter two-thirds of "Obsolete Communism." The brothers hate Communists even more than does J. Edgar Hoover.

They rage at the Communist Party in France and the Communist-controlled GCT labor unions for ruining the revolt. (No mention is made of the 15½ per cent wage increase that almost collapsed the French franc.) Union leaders pay lip service to the workers' cause while selling out to the capitalists. French Communists actually work within the capitalistic system to sustain that system. France is a conspiracy of state, authorities, bourgeoisie, police and unions opposing the workers. The student revolt attempted to unmask the true nature of the state.

Solution? Destroy the system. The workers must take over all factories and operate them through soviets (councils). There must be no leaders and no management apparatus above the workers. ("Fellow workers, what color shall we paint Renaults today!") Cohn-Bendits' understanding of the marketplace is total in its ignorance.

The C-Bs evince a nostalgia for the Russian revolution — until its purity was soiled by the Bolshevik Party. Lenin and Trotsky imposed a hierarchy over the masses that corrupted the revolt. The goal of the next revolution must be a pure democratic society of workers.

Capitalistic cracks in the Kremlin walls are deplored by the C-Bs. Like Miniver Cheevy, they sigh for the days of old— pure, untainted Marxist economic equality.

"Obsolete Communism" often reads more like shopworn polemics than new radicalism. One of several fatal flaws is the inability to cite successful examples of applied Marxist economics. Another flaw is intellectual dishonesty. The Hungarian revolution of 1956 was a "workers revolt," which would surprise most Hungarians.

The Controversial Field Of Graphology

HANDWRITING TELLS by Nadya Olyanova; Bobbs-Merrill, 371 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Miss Olyanova first had this book published in the 1930s, and in the 30 years that have ensued it has become accepted as the classic work in the somewhat controversial science of graphology.

Now, for the second time, she has updated her book.

It contains a basic discussion of what character traits are reflected in handwriting, and how they can be detected and interpreted. It tells, too, how that information can then be put to beneficial use.

There are a large number of examples of handwritings with accompanying diagnoses, and among the more interesting aspects of the book are the analyses of the handwriting specimens of famous persons. Sometimes, however, Miss Olynnova's conclusions sound very much like the palm readings of the fortune teller at the church bazaar, almost always favorable and flattering, except, of course when the subject is an Adolf Hitler or Josef Stalin.

Miss Olyanova has been a consultant to the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kans., and to the psychiatric service of King's County Hospital in New York, and she now serves as a consultant to more than 200 corporations as well as to private clients. Her success would indicate that graphology is something more than a parlor game, and might, indeed, be a scientific technique meriting more serious and wider attention. On that basis, her book deserves a reading with an open mind.

Four By Horovitz

FIRST SEASON by Israel Horovitz, Random House, 195 pages, $1.65. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

Among the score of bright new playwrights to watch is Israel Horovitz, who hit the scene big last year on Off-Broadway.

From his works he won the coveted Obie award and also the Vernon Rice-Drama Desk Award.

In this paperback edition we are given a look at the prize-winning "Line," "The Indian Wants the Bronx," and "It's Called the Sugar Plum," plus "Rats." In all, Horovitz lines are clearly drawn — whether it is a comic or violent situation.

Equally absorbing are Horovitz' personal observations in the preface in which he discusses his "first season," the worry surrounding it and "the horrifyingly obvious . . . chance for a second season."

A Mildly Diverting Little Tale

IT HAPPENED IN BOSTON: AN EXTRAORDINARY NOVEL by Russell N. Greenan; Random House, 273 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Unfortunately, the only extraordinary thing about this first novel is the extraordinary distance between the jacket blurb and what is actually at hand.

"A black and poignant joke, a tale of darkness and blinding light . . . a glimpse of the face of God." Now really!

What we have here, in fact, is a rather neat little mystery, having to do with the disillusionment of a young Boston painter. It tends to drag after the clever opening, but ends with another bang, after introducing some mildly diverting habitues of the Boston parks — a dotty old woman who fears the Homicide Club, a somewhat sinister insurance man (who may or may not be the devil), and a Salinger-type child.

The story, turning on a daring art forgery, is told in the first person by the young painter who is often amusing, if totally unconvincing. No artist today — not even one who paints like Leonardo, could possibly sound so much like a pompous Victorian clubman.

Even in Boston, it couldn't happen.

Kindergarten — A Whole New World

YOUR CHILD AND THE FIRST YEAR OF SCHOOL by Bernard Ryan Jr.; World, 149 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The child about to enter kindergarten is also about to enter a whole new world. How he or she will fare there is dependent to a large degree upon how well he has been prepared at home for the experience.

To help the parent with those preparations, Bernard Ryan Jr. has written this book.

He is not a professional educator, but a former advertising agency and television executive and now a professional writer. But he has consulted extensively with authorities in the early child education field.

Part one of the book covers the child's development in his fifth year, and what kindergarten is designed to do for him. Part two is a picture section to be shared by parent and child, showing something generally of what the latter can expect in school. Part three discusses the learning concepts employed in today's kindergartens. And part four suggests how the parent can continue to contribute to his child's education and growth.

Ryan keeps the whole thing low key and adds this advice: "Although it is important for you to be informed and knowledgeable about your child's first year in school, the most important thing you can do is to relax and enjoy it — for then he can go and do likewise."

Ryan has written a book that should be helpful to families with tykes who will be starting to kindergarten next fall — especially if they have not had the advantage of an introductory nursery school attendance. It should ease anxieties of both child and parents.

Actress Mary Astor has written her sixth novel about a young couple in a tiny Arizona desert town, where a brutal rape of the wife occurs, causing her to find in her conscience the necessity to bear the resulting child. The conflict with her husband and their alienation from the townsfolk form the basis for this single dimension story which lacks the vitality to make it anything more than mildly entertaining.

THE BOOK PAGES

A Liberal Paints A Bleak Picture

By DON KEOWN

REFLECTIONS UPON A SINKING SHIP by Gore Vidal; Little, Brown, 255 pages, $5.95.

GORE VIDAL, right, author and liberal, squared off with William F. Buckley Jr., columnist and conservative, in some acrimonious exchanges as the two matched wits and insults as television commentators, first at the Republican National Convention last summer, and then later at the Democratic National Convention. A Vidal piece on the GOP convention is included in his newly-published collection of essays, "Reflections Upon a Sinking Ship."

Their verbal encounters on television during the 1968 national political conventions sizzled with venom, amusing some and dismaying others.

But Vidal's natural forte is the written, not the spoken, word. Widely known as a best-selling novelist, he is also an old hand at social, political and cultural criticism and commentary.

His critical essays appear frequently in leading magazines. A collection of these pieces was printed earlier under the title "Rocking the Boat," with the general theme that the American establishment was in trouble. A new collection, "Reflections Upon a Sinking Ship," now finds that situation worsened.

His preface written in June of 1968 reads in part:

"With no melodramatic intent I have selected a title which seems to me altogether apt this bright savage spring with Martin Luther King dead and now Robert Kennedy. The fact that these deaths occurred at a time when the American empire was sustaining a richly deserved defeat in Asia simply makes for added poignancy. But it is not only the American ship which is foundering. Nearly half the human beings ever born are now alive, breeding like bacteria under optimum conditions. As a result, the planet's air, water and earth are being poisoned and used up, and there are those who believe it is already too late to save this ark of fools."

Unlike some critics, Vidal has a suggested course of action:

"Nevertheless, to take the positive view, if war and famine do not soon reduce population (and it is quite likely that the two in tandem will at least make a beginning; famine is now with us and the smell of blood's already upon the air), a world authority must be established in order to limit births, while attempting simultaneously the restoration in our favor of the planet's ecological balance."

Vidal admits that such a global bureaucracy presents great dangers, but argues that hazard must be risked to avoid the greater one of a fatal overpopulation.

The essays Vidal has chosen for this book were written from 1963 into late 1968 for such periodicals as Esquire, the New York Times Book Review, Encounter, Book Week, Book World, New Statesman and the Reporter, and range widely in their subject matter.

He discusses the decline of the novel generally, and the writings of John Hersey, John O'Hara, Susan Sontag, Edgar Rice Burroughs, E. Nesbit, Henry Miller, J. E. Galbraith, himself and others. He is particularly effective and quite moving in his piece about the almost forgotten John Horne Burns. Except for a dull, obtuse analysis of the new French novelists, he is generally trenchant and provocative.

On the difference between literary and popular writing: "But where Faulkner re-created his society through a gifted imagination, Mr. O'Hara merely reflects that society. . . . O'Hara, for all his faults, is a reliable witness to our self-regard, boredom and terror of not being."

Vidal, however, does not restrict himself to the literary field. His book contains the famous — or infamous — attack upon the Kennedys written for Esquire in April, 1967. He disclaims any personal animosity, describing it as actually an attack upon our political system that favors the rich. But the article reads verv much like the work of a man acting out of pique or envy.

He is correct in stating that John F. Kennedy's presidency was more one of show and statements than of action and accomplishment. But he overlooks the very real contribution these inspirational qualities in JFK made in lifting the sagging morale of a bored and sluggish American public. His comments upon Robert F. Kennedy were badly outdated by the dramatic developments in the closing months of that individual's tragically short life.

Also in the book are Vidal's observations at the 1968 Republican National Convention (a piece on the Democratic debacle would have been more entertaining), a travel report from Egypt, a celebration of the loosening of the lid on pornography, a good piece on "the liberal's dilemma," a discussion of public television (somewhat overblown), and his closing manifesto setting forth his proposal for a planned society to hold off mankind's self-destruction.

Since almost all of them have appeared previously in periodicals, the essays are likely to have a familiar ring. Perhaps, in fairness to prospective buyers, such packages should be plainly labeled on their covers "Reprints from Magazines." But then, precious few essays or short stories are being written these days specifically for book publication. And fortunately, Vidal's observations, even when warmed over, are more worthy of a repeat reading than most, being the products of a keen and unorthodox mind plus an articulate and pungent pen.

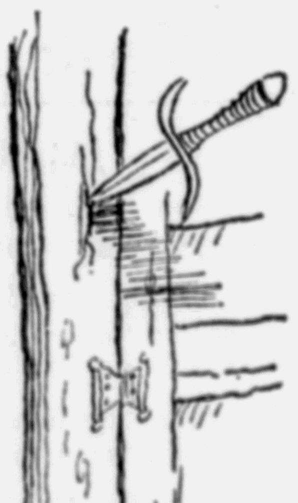
DOVER PUBLICATIONS has issued a $2.50 paperback reprint of the late George Rapall Noyes' "Tolstoy" that first appeared in 1918 and has been out of print for a number of years.

It is offered as a "succinct, perceptive treatment of the master's life" that captures and preserves the essence of the Russian intellectual without weighing the reader down with ponderous details.

"Tolstoy" originally appeared as part of Duffield & Co.'s Master Spirits of Literature Series, edited by Professor Noyes and W. M. Hart.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE ASCENT OF D-13 by Andrew Garve; Harper & Row, 187 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.



The remarkable thing about Andrew Garve is the astonishing versatility he demonstrates, along with outstanding ability. No two of his suspense novels are alike.

This newest one is heavily flavored with adventure — the action and the dangers of mountain-climbing.

A famous British climber, Bill Royce, is passing through Turkey when there is a crisis call for his talents. An American plane carrying top secret paraphernalia has crashed atop an almost inaccessible mountain peak on the Turkish-Russian border. The Soviets are certain to attempt to recover the device. Royce and an American climbing partner must try to beat them to the scene.

Garve's realistic descriptions of the climbing are so brilliantly done that the reader shares the hazards and the stresses. And Garve has even worked some nice romance into his plot.

If there is a weakness in this splendid yarn, it is in the perhaps too-pat conclusion. But any reader will forgive Garve that, in the exhilaration of what has gone on before.

POWER RATINGS — Until recently there have been three power standards in common use. Now a fourth one has been added which makes the existing confusion even greater.

The standard that has been used for rating many of the components is the IHF (Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers) continuous power rating. For this specification of an amplifier's output power, the manufacturer must specify the distortion which will be called rated distortion then specify the power at 1000 Hz (cycles, a middle range tone) that can be continuously generated without exceeding the rated distortion. If the amplifier is a stereo one, both sections of the amplifier must be generating this specified power simultaneously. Since component manufacturers use rated distortion figures of less than 1%, this is an excellent rating of the amplifiers real power capability.

Another standard in use is the Music Power Rating or sometimes called Dynamic Power rating. Based on the theory that music is not a single continuous tone but made up of bursts of tones, the power available for the instantaneous tone bursts at rated distortion is used. This rating may range from 10 to 20% higher than the continuous rating of the same amplifier; thus, it would seem that this amplifier is more powerful than one with a lesser power output based on IHF standards.

The appliance manufacturers that make radios and commercial consoles use their own power standard. This is called the EIA (Electronic Industries Association) standard. Power measurements are made at 1000 Hz with 5% distortion and in most cases this figure is doubled and called peak power. Obviously this power rating uses a large figure but in reality is 4 or 5 times higher than the actual undistorted useable power of the amplifier.

The newest rating is the IHF Power plus or minus 1 dB. This allows the manufacturer to add plus 1 dB of power to his continuous power rating and still be within the +1 dB rating. This 1 dB adds about 26% to the IHF Continuous Power rating; thus, an amplifier rated at 50 watts could be rated at 80 watts under this new rating.

When comparing amplifiers or receivers, just reading the power output figures can be misleading. Our sound specialists can talk intelligently to you about power when making your selection.

The problem with our land
Is that everyone wants the upper hand.

People rushing, people pushing . . . never time t stop.
What time is it? Can't be late for work, you know.

Must impress the boss for that next raise—
Scamper mice in a maze.

Must look pretty. Put on that face, slap on that smile
Fool all unknowing strangers . . . if only for a while

Be sure you're up with the news,
And everybody else's views.

People ask, "How are you, today?"
"Fine," you say.
Even though a loved one passed away the other day
Why are people made of clay?

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

THE PAPAS & THE MAMAS — Dunhill DS-50031:

The group's last LP has a somewhat different sound from their earlier work. The close harmony is spreading apart in many tunes and sometimes it is stretched fairly far out. The old appeal is still there, though. Mama Cass' solos are standouts, as usual, as are the wonderful instrumental accompaniments. Their big hit "Twelve Thirty" is here, as well as Cass' "Dream a Little Dream of Me."

MAMA CASS — "Dream a Little Dream" — Dunhill DS-50040:

In Cass' solo LP, the exact same track from the album reviewed above is used as the title tune. The ricky-tick yet contemporary sound of this and many of the other tunes is a delight. "California Earthquake" is a weirdly compelling number that might be West Marin County's theme song: ". . . The fault line runs right through here." Cass leans toward some new sounds now: a bit of yelling, growling, etc., but still not to be confused with Janis Joplin. "Sweet Believer" was my favorite.

ROLLING STONES — "Beggars Banquet" — London PS-539:

The Stones' latest shows a return to more down-to-earth pop themes and treatments and is certainly a contrast to the far-out 3-D predecessor. "Street Fighting Man" is one of the hits on the album, and the other 11 tracks are in typical raw but controlled Stones style. The assimilation of the blues into an original style is much more imaginative than that by the dozens of British blues bands now hitting LP grooves.

STEPPENWOLF — "Born to be Wild" — Dunhill DS-50029; "Steppenwolf the Second " — Dunhill DS-50037:

Taking their name from the loner hero of Herman Hesse's novel, this Berkeley-based rock group has put together a singular composite of a lot of good things in the rock movement today. They are versatile and don't stress any one element to the detraction of others. The vocals are good, the tunes (mostly originals by John Kay) are interesting, the use of electronic feedback and other effects not overdone, and the reproduction top level. The title tune of the first album is exciting, and the blues classic "Hootchie Kootchie Man" is so authentic-sounding that it just doesn't seem possible to correlate any of the five fresh young Caucasian faces on the cover with the sound one is hearing.

On the second and equally fine album, "Magic Carpet Ride" became a hit and "Hodge, Podge, Strained Through a Leslie" refers to the trick a number of groups use now of putting the vocals through the whirling speakers of the Leslie electric organ.

THE HANDYMAN'S PAGE

Power Tools Are Keys To Success

A good home handyman needs a base of operations (a workbench and a private section of the basement or garage) and enough power (tools, that is) to get the job done.

Even for the beginner, power tools are a sensible investment. With a little practice, they enable him to turn out better work with less time and effort.

Start with a few basic items, depending on your skill and the type of work you plan.

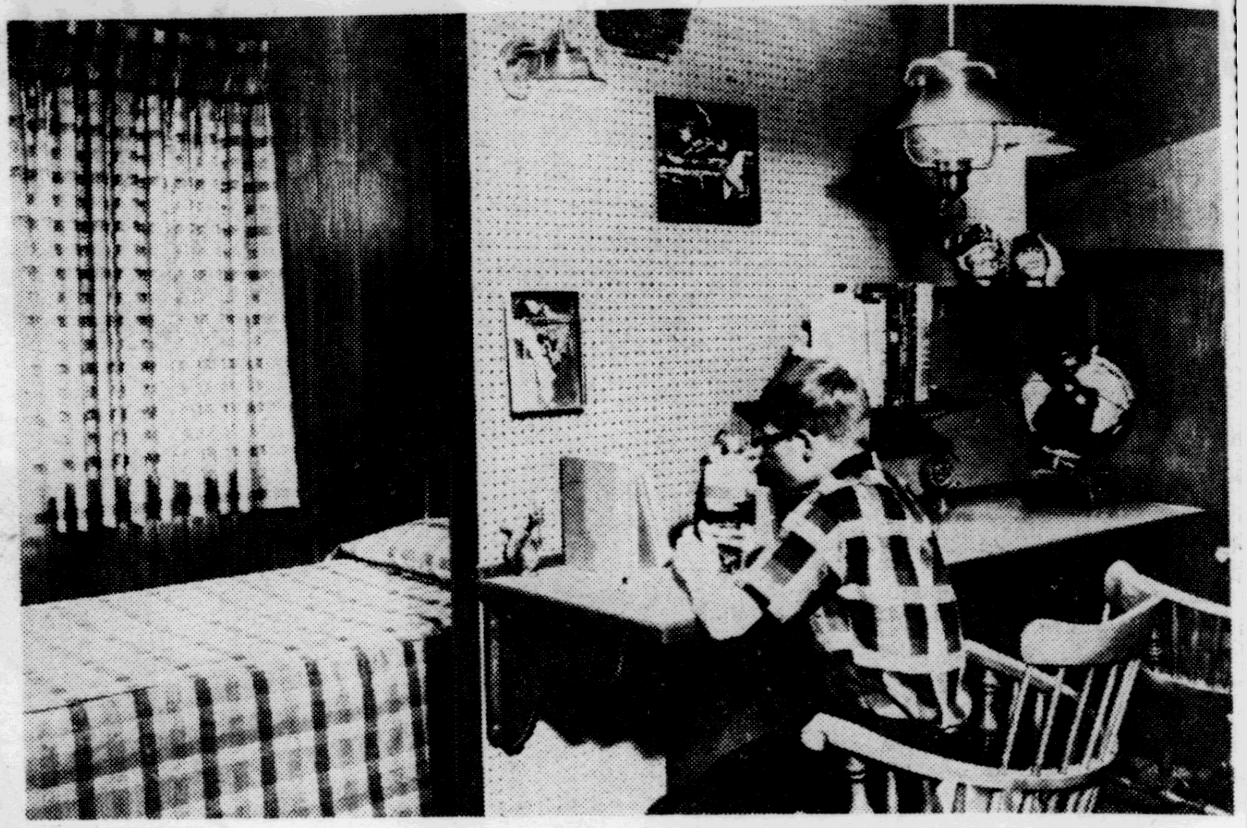
Building Supply News, trade journal for the building supply industry, considers the following power tools a good beginning for a budding home workshop:

A quarter-inch drill. Extremely versatile, since the chuck can be fitted with expansion bits that drill holes up to several inches in diameter, and with attachments that do several other jobs (grinding, honing, polishing, shaping, sanding, wire brushing and paint stirring.)

A portable saw. The circular type is best for straight cutting of lumber and large boards. The sabre type is preferred for cutting curves or thin panels of hardboard or plywood.

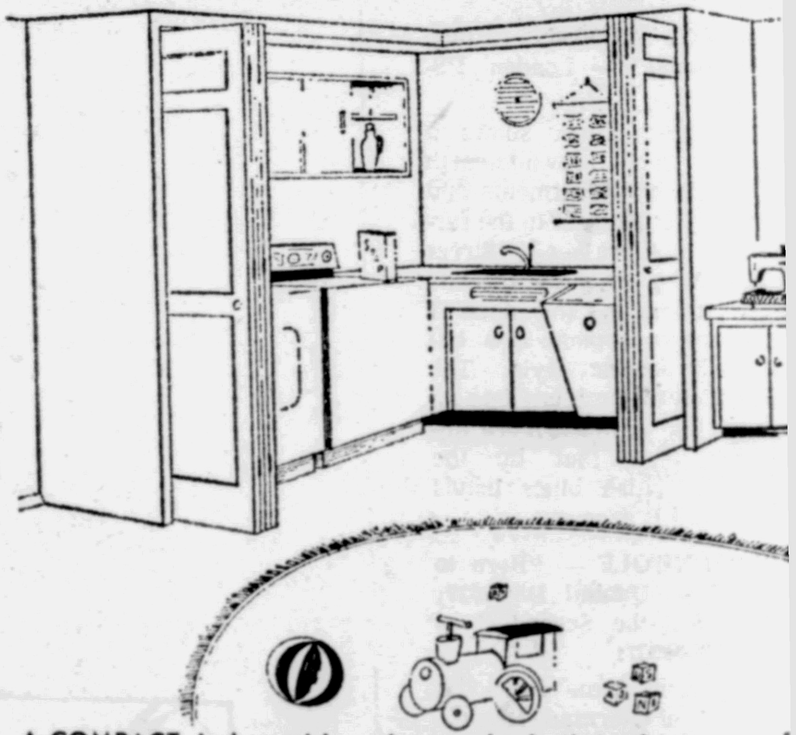
A sander. The oscillating or reciprocating type uses standard sandpaper and is best for fine finishing jobs. The rotary disc type is used to remove paint and smooth rough lumber.

The more sophisticated do-it-yourselfer will want more advanced power tools. These include: a bench saw, either tilt table or tilt arbor, which cuts, rips, mitres, dadoes, and handles almost any type of cutting job; a radial saw (also stationary) which does all the jobs of a bench saw, and also accepts attachments for sanding, grinding, shaping, drilling, molding, and planing; a lathe, which holds and revolves materials f shaping; a jig saw to cut i regular figures; a jointer — large plane for smoothing boa edges; and a professional be type sander which uses adhesive belt to do heavy sa ding jobs quickly.



THE ADDITION in his bedroom of a simple floor-to-ceiling divider, faced on both sides with patterned perforated hardboard, has given this boy a snug study and hobby area plus privacy for his single bed. There's space for hanging clothes at bedside, and lots of room on countertop and divider for books, pictures, art objects, etc. The area was paneled in a walnut-finish, durable hardboard.

CONCEALED LAUNDRY



A COMPACT, L-shaped laundry can be built in the corner of a family room or playroom, concealed by a closet formed of two side walls and bi-fold closet doors. Fir and hemlock panel doors, available in many styles, are handsome and make a good sound barrier.

Some Trees Of Special Distinction

Garden Page

It's spring, and planting time for gardeners.

Things of all sizes, all shapes and all varieties are going into the ground.

And there is nothing better for planting in Marin this time of the year than an ornamental tree.

You could plant an oak, a birch, an elm or one of the other well-established favorites. But you can also display originality by choosing, instead, one of those trees with special qualities or attributes that lend a distinctive touch to the garden or outdoor living area.

THE JAPANESE maple is an excellent example in this category.

What makes it outstanding is its delicately-cut leaves. And you can demonstrate even greater originality by picking a red-leaf variety which will contribute a glorious blaze of red-purple color to the garden from the time it ends its winter rest until it drops its leaves in the late fall.

The Japanese maple is a modest grower that submits to dwarfing, and is well-suited to planting in a tub for use as a patio tree.

ANOTHER GROUP of trees nurserymen consider extraordinary is the locusts.

The honeylocust, a yellow dazzler in its own right, has to take a back seat to the recently-introduced hybrids. These, as exemplified by the sunburst locust's golden bronze foliage, have special characteristics that set them apart from other trees. The unusual colorations of the spreading branches are highlights, but the symmetry of the trees is the most outstanding landscape feature.

Hybridization has introduced newcomers to the ginkgo tree clan.

THE MAIDENHAIR tree is the forerunner to the group — having fernlike foliage that has chartreuse shadings. The hybrid ginkgo trees take on more vivid hues and are a gardener's delight. These are not standard items in all nurseries, but are worth shopping for.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✓Now is the time to be putting in that flowering border. And don't overlook the effectiveness of combining annuals and perennials, such as dwarf marigold with delphinium and red hot poker. Marguerites and birds of paradise are other superb border plantings.
- ✓Gardeners will find a number of their favorite shrubs in bloom at the nurseries now, enabling them to select their new plantings while they are at their peak appearance. Rhododendrons, azaleas, camellias, spirea, weigela, viburums, India hawthorne and some forsythia fall in this category.
- ✓Plant carnations now.
- ✓Prune wisteria heavily after their spring bloom.
- ✓March is an ideal month for planting hedges. Consider myrtus, pittosporum, boxwood and privet.
- ✓Ceanothus and other California natives that make easy-to-care-for garden shrubs are in bloom now in nurseries.
- ✓Potted shrubs and trees enhance outdoor living areas, and tubbed marguerites are colorful companions.
- ✓Now's the time to consider planting dahlias, gladiolus, tuberous begonias, and a host of other summer-blooming bulbs. Nurseries have a wide selection.
- ✓Here are a few items you can plant in the food garden: Seeds of beets, carrots, lettuce, endive, onion, turnips and radishes; plants of cabbage, cauliflower, Swiss chard and Brussels sprouts; and roots of rhubarb, artichokes and asparagus.
- ✓Plant citrus and avocado trees.
- ✓Check now with your nurseryman on crabgrass control.
- ✓Established roses may be fed this month. New roses should be permitted to become established before you feed them.
- ✓If you haven't done so yet, prune your fuchsias.

HERE'S HELP FROM NATURE IN WINNING WAR ON BUGS

A gardener reports using nasturtiums instead of chemical dusts and sprays to help produce healthy cucumber vines.

He sowed nasturtium seeds in the hills along with the cukes. The pretty annual flowers, he says, repel cucumber beetles and squash bugs. There is something about the fragrance of nasturtiums that discourages the insects, he says.

He adds that the tender young leaves, flowers and juicy stems of nasturtiums add zest to salads and sandwiches. They have a spicy, peppery taste.

Other gardeners sow marigolds and radishes in the hills of cucumbers, to help check pests.

Bay Commissioners Approve Dredging Of Saucelito Canal

Army Engineers' Consent Still Needed Before Project Can Start

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The long-sought dredging of Saucelito Canal won unanimous approval yesterday from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

The $945,000 project was proposed by the County of Marin, City of Mill Valley and property owners to provide access to small craft facilities planned in the upper reach of Richardson Bay.

The proposal that the canal be dredged first appeared on state planning maps in 1870, noted commissioner F. J. Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission.

Commissioners, meeting in the State Building, were told by their executive director, Joseph E. Bodovitz, that the dredging and disposal of the 700,000 cubic yards of mud spoils near Alcatraz was "fully consistent with the (BCDC) bay plan's call for water related recreation."

"It will be a substantial improvement of Richardson Bay" said Sonoma County Supervisor Leigh S. Shoemaker, a member of the commission.

Several commissioners suggested at the March 6 hearing on the application that the spoils be dumped only during ebb tides, but the suggestion was discarded on the ground it would not be feasible.

The canal dredging is to extend for 2.5 miles from the Army Corps of Engineers turning basin to Mill Valley's $200,000 small craft harbor, now under construction. The cost is to be shared by the corps with the city and property owners along the canal, who formed the Richardson Bay Channel Dredging District to assess themselves for the project.

The county still must get one more permit before it can go ahead with the dredging. Army regulations require a

School Fire Insurance Rates Up

A 40 per cent raise in fire insurance rates for all types of school buildings in California, to take effect April 1, was announced today by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau.

Most Marin Schools will not be affected at this time, however, according to Kenneth M. Proctor, president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Marin.

Proctor said, "Most school fire insurance policies have two to three years left to run, and others are written with companies that are not making changes at this time."

The bureau blamed violence, vandalism and arson as well as inflation for the boost, which comes at a time when school boards are preparing for bond elections and working on next year's budgets under pressure of mounting demands for higher teachers' pay and

Braved tunnel fire

CHP Officer, Volunteer Fireman's Heroism Lauded

A California Highway Patrolman and a Novato volunteer fireman who braved walls of flame to save lives have been named Marin County Policeman and Fireman of the Year by the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Marin.

Patrolman Robert A. Espagnolle and volunteer fireman Robert Busher, both of Novato, will receive plaques at a luncheon of the association at noon Wednesday at Lyons Restaurant in Greenbrae.

Espagnolle, 50, was cited for rescuing San Rafael construction worker Henry Penning from a flaming drainage tunnel under Highway 101 in Terra Linda last July 19. Penning had been trapped by an explosion at the site of the widening of the highway in Terra Linda.

Espagnolle raced across the highway from his station at the truck scale stop on the northbound side of the highway, entered the blazing tunnel and pulled Penning out. The patrolman, who suffered slight burns in the rescue, later was awarded the Medal of Valor by the California Highway Patrol for his heroism.

Busher's heroic act came the same day. He was credited with saving the live of Novato Fire Capt. Richard Beyer when Beyer was trapped by flames in a brush and grass fire in the Marinwood area.

Busher, who also suffered slight burns, dashed through the flames to Beyer, who had rolled down a hill, and led the captain through a half-mile of flames to safety.

Kenneth M. Proctor, president of the agents association, said Espagnolle and Busher made the "most outstanding" efforts of 1968 among Marin's fire and policemen but added "they are merely indicative of the fine service provided by their departments . . . each day of the year."

THE THIEVES AREN'T HAPPY

Marin Sheriff's Lt. Guido Battaglia smiles as he counts $1,526 in cash and money orders which the thieves of this battered safe didn't get — although they tried hard. The safe, its dial and hinges missing, was found covered with branches yesterday morning in the opening of a tree near Stafford Lake dam by an employee of the North Marin County Water District. The thieves apparently had abandoned the safe after failing to smash it open. Once in the sheriff's office in San Rafael, however, the safe was quickly popped open with a pry bar. The safe was taken from the Greyhound Bus Depot in Petaluma March 10, deputies said.

WHICH BUTTON TO PUSH?

Senators Stage Drama To Test Utility Of Safeguard Missiles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Situation: Russian missiles approaching over northern horizon. Urgent call to the White House. More missiles appear.

"We have three minutes left, Mr. President," says the military commander. "Which button do I press: The antiballistic missile or our 1,054 Minuteman ICBMs?"

"The panic button," came a low voice from the committee table. It was Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., muttering behind a green eyeshade.

Laughter from the spectators' gallery — and from Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., too.

The TV cameras panned in on a grim Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, his eyes narrowed to gray slits after a two-day Senate inquisition under glaring lights.

"This is a deadly serious question, Mr. chairman," the ex-congressman snapped. "It is not any laughing matter. It gets right down to the heart of the matter. If I were sitting in the position of the President, I would like to be able to have an ABM to launch and not have to push the button for an offensive strike."

Gore, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations' Disarmament Subcommittee, which conducted the antiballistic missile system (ABM) hearing on national television, posed the hypothetical situation to Laird.

With that exchange, one of scores in a five-hour session that alternated between high comedy and deadly seriousness, the latest issue in the Senate debate over the ABM was joined.

Laird's argument was a new one. He said the Safeguard system not only would protect the American power to retaliate against a surprise attack but would give the President "flexibility" in determining how to respond.

Gore ridiculed the argument. "No President would push the ABM button rather than the Minuteman button once the missiles started falling," he contended.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said there would be more than adequate time to put U.S. ICBMs into the air after U.S. radar picked up the incoming missiles, and thus there was no need to protect the U.S. deterrent.

Gore said the United States should let the Soviet Union know in no uncertain terms that "if they launch a missile against us, we're launching a massive attack against them."

Saigon Defenders Battle Three-Pronged Red Attack

SAIGON (AP) — The enemy seized the initiative today with attacks on three sides of Saigon, and the U.S. military analysts said Viet Cong and North Vietnam action may be nearing a peak.

Orders went out to field commanders to be ready for "a high point" of enemy activity around the capital over the weekend, but it appeared Saigon itself would not be attacked, unless by rockets.

U.S. officers said main force North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units still did not appear to be coordinated for a major attack on Saigon, although there was an enemy buildup to the south.

Intelligence sources said the Viet Cong has 1,500 men within five miles of Saigon and these could launch an attack at any time against U.S. 9th Infantry Division soldiers guarding the southern approaches.

The 9th Division was involved in some of today's heaviest fighting but this was farther south near the provincial capital of Ben Tre. Ben Tre is 40 miles south of Saigon.

Viet Cong of unknown strength attacked night positions of a 150-man unit of the 9th Division shortly after midnight. The enemy was dispersed after a four-hour battle, in which artillery and helicopter gunships were summoned.

U.S. officers said 42 enemy bodies were found at daybreak. U.S. casualties were given as one killed and nine wounded.

North Vietnamese attacked on the outskirts of Tay Ninh, 51 miles northwest of Saigon, and were repulsed in a two-hour battle by South Vietnamese paratroopers. The paratroopers reported killing 40 of the enemy while losing five killed and 20 wounded.

A unit of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division ran into North Vietnamese troops 47 miles northwest of Saigon and with the help of helicopter gunships killed 10 of the enemy. There were no U.S. casualties.

Marijuana Spices In Birthday Cake?

Six Adults, Two Children Taken In Accidental Raid

A birthday party for a 14-year-old last night featuring a cake believed to be marijuana-spiced and some too-nervous guests led to the arrest of six adults and two juveniles at a "hippie pad" in San Rafael.

The six adults were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possession of marijuana and the two juveniles were cited to Juvenile Hall.

The interrupted birthday soiree took place at 140 Auburn Street, sheriff's deputies said.

Released on their own recognizance for appearances in Marin Municipal Court Monday at 2 p.m. were Robert Patrick Hallatt, 18, of the Auburn Street address; Pamela Ann Sickles, 18, of Portola Valley; Anthony George Evans, 19, 632 Northern Avenue, Mill Valley; Christopher Alexander Blum, 18, 202 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield, and Michael Milton Huffman, 18, of the Auburn Street address.

Jerry Leonard Lane, 28, 106 Baltimore Avenue, Larkspur, was booked on suspicion of being in a place where narcotics were being used. Hallatt was also under suspicion of possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

NOT A RAID

The marijuana bust was not intended as a raid, authorities said. They said Sausalito police wanted to check the address on another matter and requested assistance from the San Rafael police department and the county's drug abuse bureau.

When officers knocked on the front door, they said, one of the occupants of the house bolted out the back door and the others ran for a bedroom.

FOUND WEED

Officers said they found five "lids" of marijuana worth about $50, authorities said.

The Auburn Street house was described by authorities as a "communal pad where all kinds of people live." Five or six other persons showed up at the house while officers were making the arrests but were advised to leave, authorities said.

Ike's Heart Worrying Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army doctors, revealing for the first time that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered serious temporary congestive heart failure one week ago, say "he may well have less reserve strength than previously."

The physicians acknowledged yesterday they were more concerned than ever about the chronic heart condition of the 78-year-old general who is recovering from intestinal surgery.

In answer to questions they said it's conceivable Eisenhower could have further major coronary heart attacks like the seven he has suffered since 1955, the most recent last August.

Despite this concern, a medical bulletin late yesterday from Walter Reed General Hospital said "the general's condition today is favorable . . . he is resting comfortably and his spirits are good."

Word of the congestive heart failure episode came in response to questions as a result of off-the-cuff remarks by Mrs. Eisenhower and a little-noticed Wednesday medical bulletin from the hospital.

Mrs. Eisenhower commented at a fashion show that her husband has "good days and bad" and that last Saturday was a prticularly bad one. It was so bad, she said, that "I didn't take my clothes off for 30 hours" while keeping watch

Student Violence Decried In Report From California

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — President Nixon denounced campus disorders today as a threat to intellectual freedom and civilization itself. But he limited federal retaliation to withholding financial help from students convicted of violating the law.

FIRST STAND

In his first major statement on the wave of violence that has swept over colleges and universities, Nixon soft pedaled any federal action beyond launching "new initiatives toward easing tensions in our educational community."

He said he had directed Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch to start these initiatives.

Nixon spoke out in a formal statement issued during a weekend sojourn at an oceanside villa near this sunny Southern California town some 50 miles south of Los Angeles.

ORDER ISSUED

Simultaneously, a letter was released in which Finch told college and university administrators that the law on cutting off financial aid must be enforced while fully protecting "the rights of legitimate and responsible dissent."

"Under this legislation," Finch said, "the burden of administration falls upon the institutions. We in HEW will do our best to work with you in this difficult area."

The President called the new regulations moderate and justified and said withdrawal of

U.C. APPOINTMENT SHAKEUP DELAYED

Regents Oppose Reagan On Taking Power Of Filling Jobs Away From Chancellors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — University of California regents won't decide for at least a month whether to take back the power they gave campus chancellors over top level faculty jobs.

The nine-campus university's governing board debated for an hour yesterday at UCLA on a proposal by Regent Edwin Pauley which U.C. administrators called threatening and potentially disastrous.

Then, opposing Gov. Ronald Reagan, the regents voted 14-8 for a one-month study of the move to give the board final authority over appointing professors and associate professors. Chancellors got the authority three years ago.

'ANOTHER VIEW'

"It would have shown the people of California there is another view," Reagan said in backing the Los Angeles regent's move for immediate action.

"I don't see how anyone can suggest it is a political issue."

U.C. President Charles J. Hitch, Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, and some other regents led the drive against immediate action.

Monagan first tried to shelve the whole issue. He failed on a 12-10 vote.

The final vote came after Pauley withdrew his proposal, promising to revise it next month. He failed to receive key support from Regent John E. Canaday of Burbank.

"By this action, we discredit the chancellors in an area where they are not at fault," Canaday said. Regents adopted his suggestion that the Educational Policy Committee study of hiring be broadened to include the role of campus academic senates.

MARCUSE TARGET

Hitch said the recent one-year rehiring of Prof. Herbert Marcuse at U.C. San Diego may have prompted Pauley's motion.

Marcuse is a professor of political philosophy under fire from some groups for his views on social change and his popularity among student radicals.

Hitch said Pauley's move would remove important power from chancellors, revert the policy to the centralized campus administration and create a burden for the regents themselves.

Chancellor Ivan Hinderaker of U.C. Riverside said educators would interpret the move "in its present context as no less than a disaster."

The only change Hitch said he was willing to accept would be regents' review of appointments—without any authority to change them.

Regents named James H. Merey, dean of the U.C. College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences, to succeed retiring Chancellor Emile M. Mark on the Davis campus.

The board took no action to oppose Berkeley campus plans to reduce slightly the number of Army ROTC courses that can count for undergraduate credit. Hitch said the purpose was to improve the educational quality of ROTC.

Her Majesty's Forces Try To Mollify Anguilla

ANGUILLA (AP) — Royal engineers are on their way to Anguilla to replace Britain's sunburned Red Devils and try to save face for the Union Jack.

The Defense Ministry announced last night an advance party of engineers would arrive today to decide what projects might best serve the tiny Caribbean island's 6,000 inhabitants and perhaps quell the mockery raised by Britain's Bay of Piglets invasion there Wednesday.

Improvement of the partially-paved airstrip and installation of a telephone system will begin when a reinforced troop of about 100 engineers arrive within a week or so, the ministry said.

The frigate Rothesay, used to land the British invasion force Wednesday morning, is to depart during the weekend, followed later by the two companies of Red Devil paratroopers who came ashore to reassert the crown's authority over the Anguillans.

Events on the island indicated Britain plans to maintain Her Majesty's grip on Anguilla.

Secessionist Acting President Ronald Webster was barred from his office in the island's administration building. British Commissioner Anthony Lee moved his papers and headquarters into the building and said he would govern the island with the aid of an advisory board of Anguillans, for several years if necessary.

British cargo planes shuttled back and forth yesterday, bringing military supplies and squad cars for a contingent of 40 London Bobbies who have replaced the local police.

Adding its voice to a chorus of foreign and domestic criticism heaped on Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government after the invasion, the U.N. Special Committee on Colonialism pronounced itself "gravely concerned" by the British occupation and resolved to send a team of investigators to Anguilla.

Britain, which boycotted the committee's meeting yesterday, was expected to bar the team from the island.

Opposition leaders on the neighboring island of Antigua, which the British used as a staging area for the Anguillan expedition, added their loud voices of protest.

They charged paratroopers encamped on the island as reinforcements for Anguilla were actually there to intimidate Antigua. Opposition spokesman warned there might be violence if the troops display arms on the streets.

George Walter, general secretary of the opposition Antigua Workers Union, said that the British troops were being used to instill fear in the political opposition. He rebuked Premier Vere Bird for allowing the island to be used as a logistics pipeline between London and Anguilla.

Violence Flares In Denver School

DENVER (AP) — A demonstrator was stunned by a shotgun birdshot blast and a policeman felled by a flying rock yesterday during the second day of Mexican-American demonstrations at a Denver high school.

The injured man, identified as Joseph Vigil, 26, and the officer, Forrest W. Wagner, were both listed in satisfactory condition at a Denver hospital.

Police reported two arrests.

Centered around Denver West High School, the sporadic disturbances were ignited by calls for more Mexican-American instruction in the city's public schools. They began Thursday when charges of racism were leveled against a social science teacher.

By nightfall yesterday, demonstrators had moved from the area, leaving a trail of broken windows and streets strewn with bricks, pieces of cement and broken glass.

Rodolfo "Corky" Gonzales, leader of the Mexican-American Crusade for Justice, climbed the steps of a church near the school last night and called on his supporters to calm down.

"The West Side belongs to us," Gonzales said. "But we want no more people shot on the street."

Yesterday's trouble began early as some students left their classes and began taunting police. Principal Earl A. Paul told students there would be no reprimands if they would return to their classes but none returned.

In midafternoon, police arrested a man identified as Bennie Padilla, 43. Officers said he fired five shots that struck a nearby building. He was held for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon. Vigil was held for investigation of inciting to riot.

Police cars were pummeled with large chunks of cement and bricks.

Throughout the disturbances, police moved in quickly to prevent large-scale destruction of property and quelled demonstrators with tear gas. After each incident, police retreated to the perimeter of the immediate area.

Court Action Sought In Ship Loading Row

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a week that saw 400 dock workers fired and tons of container cargo piling up, union and management prepared today to battle in court in the West Coastwide longshore dispute.

A hearing was set for Monday morning on the request by the Pacific Maritime Association for an injunction to force dockers of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union to load and unload containerized cargo.

Since last Monday the stevedores have refused to handle container cargo in their claim that ILWU men, and not Teamsters Union workers, should pack the big vans as well as work them off and on ships. Some ILWU clerks also have been fired.

Two more longshore gangs were fired at Seattle yesterday, with smaller firings reported in the ports of Oakland, San Francisco and Portland. Earlier in the week, men were chopped at Stockton and Long Beach.

Container cargo reportedly amounts to about 10 per cent of the usual volume. Military supplies, mail and food in containers continues to be handled, however.

Cleaning Shop's Owner Released; No Charge Yet

No complaint — pending analysis of a substance thought to be LSD — was filed yesterday by the Marin district attorney's office against two of the men arrested in a raid on a Larkspur cleaning establishment Thursday.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest Zunino said that it would probably take about a week for the evidence to be analyzed.

Robert A. Cogswell, 23, of San Rafael, owner of the Larkspur Cleaners, was released from jail. A co-defendant, John Robert Thiele, 19, of San Rafael is already serving a term for a prior conviction of sale of marijuana.

The third man arrested in the raid, Stephen Cowan, 22, of Larkspur, is also in jail on a prior conviction and was indicted by the Grand Jury Thursday on a new charge of marijuana sale.

Thief Repents Taking Auto

The thief who took Phyllis Maley's car last night apparently repented overnight. Miss Maley, of 23 Grove Street, San Rafael, reported her car stolen from D and Ross streets at 10:15 p.m.

This morning, she told San Rafael police, an anonymous telephone caller told her the car was at a garage at Third and C streets.

Students Donate $186 To Biafra Aid

San Rafael High School students have donated $186.67 to benefit the starving victims of the civil war in Biafra, according to Austin J. Thompson, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

Thompson, who forwarded the money to the Marin County chapter of the American National Red Cross, said the gift "demonstrates that, in spite of the widespread turmoil in our schools today, the majority of students have been instilled with the traditional American spirit of generosity and sympathy for those who cannot help themselves."

Pakistani Students Burn U.S. Flag Near Embassy

KARACHI (UPI)—A band of about 100 students burned a U.S. flag outside the American embassy today while others carrying red banners demonstrated before the West Pakistani governor's house just next door.

There was no violence, however.

The anti-American students brought the American flag with them. They dispersed peacefully after burning the flag.

Three truckloads of police were rushed to the embassy and remained there for several hours. A spokesman said U.S. embassy officials requested the police and four policemen were left behind to guard the front gate.

Earlier, leftist students staged an anti-government demonstration outside the governor's house. The students, waving red banners, blocked traffic but did not cause any incidents.

The demonstrations were the first since wealthy publisher-businessman Yusuf Haroon took over as governor of West Pakistan last Thursday. Haroon said he was confident he could restore calm.

President Mohammad Ayub Khan also named a new governor for East Pakistan in a move to restore law and order in the chaotic east wing.

He is M. N. Huda, East Pakistan's provincial finance minister. Huda will replace unpopular Gov. Monem Khan in Dacca, capital of the east wing.

SIX OUNCES OF GIN

Sirhan's Test In Jail Cell Produces 'A Wild Beast'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After drinking six ounces of gin in a jail cell test, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan became "like a wild beast" and began talking as if Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were still alive, a psychiatrist says.

"He never said he killed Kennedy," Dr. Eric Marcus told the jury yesterday trying Sirhan for Kennedy's murder. "He kept talking as though Kennedy were alive. He said 'that bastard isn't worth the bullet.' With all my prodding he never said he killed Kennedy."

There has been testimony that Sirhan had three Tom Collins before shooting the New York senator in the Ambassador Hotel last June 5. Sirhan says he doesn't remember the shooting but does recall buying several drinks.

The bartender's recipe for the gin mixture was duplicated in the drinks served Sirhan. Marcus described what happened next:

'WENT BERSERK'

"Psychologically he went berserk. He was extremely agitated and restless and cursing and had to be physically restrained.

"He kept grabbing at this throat. He said 'What the hell is going on here?' He thought he was choking. He said 'I'll get even with those Jews.'

"I think he thought he was back at the Ambassador Hotel. Then he started talking about how 20 years were enough for the Jews and Kennedy didn't help them . . .

"The alcohol triggered off some sort of an irritation. He became sort of like a wild beast."

The defense attempt to save Sirhan from the gas chamber is based on showing "diminished responsibility," that he was incapable of planning the slaying.

A second defense psychiatrist, Dr. Bernard Diamond tried to reawaken Sirhan's memories of that night under hypnosis. He had barely begun his testimony yesterday when the trial was adjourned for the weekend.

Marcus said Sirhan had thought about assassinations "for an awfully long period of time." He had been shown two books Sirhan used at a high school in Pasadena in 1964.

In one book, next to a passage about the assassination of President William McKinley, Sirhan had written: "Many more will come." In the second book, Sirhan had underlined a passage dealing with the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary, which touched off World War I.

Ray, Lawyer Huddle; Libel Suit Rather Than Plea Claimed Topic

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—James Earl Ray, seeking a new trial in the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., met in his prison cell today with attorney J. B. Stoner, long associated with the Ku Klux Klan.

The topic of the Ray-Stoner meeting reportedly concerned a libel suit which, Stoner said, Ray was considering filing "against some national magazines . . . which have accused him of a crime of which he is not guilty."

Arthur J. Hanes, former Mayor of Birmingham, Ala., and Ray's original lawyer in the King case, said yesterday he had received a letter from Ray and also might meet with him today.

"I'm not representing Mr. Ray in any criminal case," Stoner said when he stopped off in Chattanooga to visit an attorney friend, Robert Hill Jr.

When asked if he would represent Ray in a criminal proceeding if requested, Stoner replied, "Yes sir, I would if he asked me to."

"I don't think Mr. Ray is guilty," Stoner said. "That's one reason we plan to bring a libel suit. On the criminal matter, I'm not in a position to say anything about it now because I haven't reached the stages yet where I can.

"I think Mr. Ray is a victim of a conspiracy. Certainly certain magazines are part of a conspiracy to libel him and to deprive him of a fair trial. And they apparently did succeed with their libel into pressuring him into a plea when otherwise there was no apparent reason for it."

Ray pleaded guilty March 10 in Memphis to the rifle-slaying of King last April 4. He received a 99-year sentence agreed upon by the prosecution and defense.

Only three days later there were reports that Ray was showing regrets that he had agreed to plead guilty.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Burn Victim Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Shell Oil Co. pipeline superintendent has died from burns suffered in a fire which resulted from the sabotage of a company pipeline in Contra Costa County.

Earl J. Davis Jr., 47, of Pleasant Hill, died yesterday. He was among seven persons injured in the fire at Canyon after the oil pipeline was ripped open by an explosive last Monday.

Easter Scientist

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Douglas Beckman, an eighth grader at St. Aloysius School, is producing Easter eggs by a different method—he's having the hens lay colored eggs.

Douglas acquired some Chilean Araucanas chickens, which lay blue eggs, and some Australorps, which lay brown eggs. Now he's cross-bred the chickens, and the result is a chicken which lays green eggs.

After several generations he has hens producing eggs in various shades of green.

Women Nabbed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two women convicted of spraying red paint in a Presidio court martial room as an antiwar protest were jailed here today after their arrest in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Sali McAllister, 33, and Charlene Pope, 20, both of Mountain View, disappeared before their scheduled Feb. 27 sentencing.

They wrote U.S. Dist. Judge George B. Harris they were failing to appear as a further protest against the military.

U.S. marshalls arrested the two women yesterday in Los Angeles and returned them to San Francisco County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

More Temblors

PASADENA (AP) — Earthquakes continued shaking a sparsely populated area of Mexico's Baja California peninsula intermittently today, but the frequency appears to be diminishing, the California Institute of Technology reports.

More than 40 tremors have been recorded at the site, 260 miles southeast of Los Angeles centered in an underwater area.

Caltech seismologists say the area is connected with California's San Andreas Fault.

They believe there is no threat to populated areas. There were no reports of injuries or damage in Mexico.

Red Moonlet Up

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today launched Cosmos 273 in its unmanned satellite series continuing its program of space research, Tass announced. Cosmos 273 was put into an orbit with a high point of 214 miles and a low of 123 miles.

Italian Quits

ROME (AP) — Italy's embattled education minister, Fiorentino Sullo, has resigned from premier Mariano Rumor's canter-left government.

Sullo declared he was not getting the proper support from some of his fellow Christian Democrats and therefore was unable to defend his controversial university reform bill in Parliament.

Three-Car Crash Hurts Fairfax Youth

A 17-year-old Fairfax youth was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a possible broken nose following a three-car accident on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at El Cerrito Avenue, San Anselmo.

Police said a car driven by the youth, Karl J. Pedersen of 538 Cascade Drive, Fairfax, was stopped in a line of traffic when a car driven by Robert L. Williams, 37, of Santa Rosa hit the rear of Pedersen's and pushed it into another stopped vehicle driven by Carl Ziegler, 42, of 100 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo. The accident occurred at 4:10 p.m.

WOMEN VOTERS EYE UNIFICATION

Marin League Poses Questions On Tam Proposal's Timing, Impact On Budgets

The League of Women Voters of Southern Marin has raised a series of questions regarding the proposed three-district unification plan for the area which now includes Tamalpais High School District and 11 elementary school districts.

The league, which made a study of the proposal in an attempt to arrive at objective conclusions, presented the questions in a statement at the public hearing on the plan at Redwood High School Thursday night, and is to present them again at the hearing Tuesday night at Tamalpais High School.

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin, which includes Ross Valley territory in the school districts involved, has concurred in the objections.

They are, briefly:

1. Timing. The league points out that if a unification election is held next October, only eight months will remain for the reorganization of 12 school districts into three by July 1, 1970, when the new setup would take effect.

2. Finances. "At this time," says the statement, "almost every elementary school district in the area is facing a financial crisis. Tax rate increase elections have been held, or are planned, in several districts." Therefore, 1967-68 financial figures used in preparing the plan may no longer be vailid.

3. Legislation. Noting that various school finance measures have been introduced in the legislature, the league suggests: "It would seem more logical to restructure our school system after the state has clarified its role."

4. School board elections. Because the proposal was not announced until after filing closed, says the league, "it was not possible for people with a deep concern either for or against unification to choose to run for election on this issue."

5. New board election. The league cites difficulty of getting candidates for the boards of the proposed new districts.

As to finances, it raises these additional points:

A. "It becomes necessary to put teachers on a common salary scale . . . The pattern has been to raise all salaries to the high school scale." This would require increased taxes.

B. Neither the Redwood nor the Drake attendance area would have enough bonding capacity for needed elementary schools plus new high school construction.

C. It would be necessary to raise taxes in the new Redwood and Drake districts to meet expenses already current. Also, no method has been worked out for payment to the proposed Tamalpais and Drake districts of their share of the costs of new facilities at Redwood.

D. The Drake area, even with Bolinas-Stinson added, is almost 15 per cent below the Tamalpais district as a whole in assessed valuation per child.

E. Two of the three possible voting methods being considered would permit a minority to impose its will on the majority.

Duplex Hit By Flames

Fire raged through a Petaluma duplex today, causing extensive damage and injuring one of the occupants as he escaped his blazing home.

Firemen said Gary Woodard suffered second degree burns of the elbow and fingers as he left his apartment at 7 Howard Street, about 3:10 a.m. today.

The fire started in Woodard's apartment, possibly from a cigarette in a sofa, firemen said. Damage was heavy.

The adjoining apartment, occupied by John L. Stephens, had extensive smoke damage, firemen said. Stephens escaped without injury.

The duplex is owned by A. T. Moore of 9 Arlington Drive, Petaluma, firemen reported. A dollar estimate of the damage was not available today.

near the general's bedside at the hospital.

The medical bulletin, issued after President Nixon had visited Eisenhower for 20 minutes, said the former president has recovered from the immediate effects of Feb. 23 surgery for a gastrointestinal obstruction. But it also said Eisenhower "continues to be weak and his cardiovascular status remains a matter of concern to his physicians."

The doctors—through Brig. Gen Frederic Hughes Jr., the hospital's commanding general—said in reply to one question:

"Last Saturday, General Eisenhower manifested symptoms of congestive heart failure—such as he has done on occasions in the past.

"There has been no evidence of further infarction (damage to heart muscle such as occurred in at least six of his seven major heart attacks since 1955) or dangerous irregularity of the heart's action.

"His response to treatment measures for heart failure has been favorable but slow, indicating that he may well have less reserve strength than previously. This concern was reflected in the bulletin issued Wednesday."

Congestive heart failure occurs when one or more chambers of the heart fail to empty adequately during the heart's pumping action.

This can lead to an accumulation of fluids in blood vessels supplying the lungs, or other parts of the body, or both.

enlarged school facilities.

The bureau reported that insurance company operating costs and school fire losses from 1963 to 1967 had caused school insurers to pay out $124.50 for every $100 collected in premiums. That amounted, the bureau said, to a total deficit of $3,797,433 for the five-year period.

The changing character of school and college campuses was blamed in large measure for reversing a trend of the 1950s toward lower rates with special deductions for better-than-average-risk schools.

The board said that raises in school insurance rates in 1964 and 1966 had been largely due to rising cost of construction and repairs.

"Since 1966, however," the board said, "the combination of both inflation and violence has produced the sharpest upward surge in losses that has ever been experienced."

The board said, "School buildings are popular targets for fire bombings and other forms of arson." These arson losses plus fire losses normally accompanying school use have run into the millions, the board said.

While the bureau indicated doubt that insurers could continue to offer special school insurance plans that give rate reductions, it noted that its recommendations are for standard rates, from which companies may deviate up and down.

But the bureau concluded: "California taxpayers will certainly face much higher school fire insurance premiums . . . until both inflation and violence are curbed."

Two Youths Hear Charges Of Theft

David Maddox Luce, 21, of San Anselmo, and James Franklin Snow, 21, of San Rafael, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of petty theft stemming from an arrest last Saturday in Fairfax.

The two were allegedly carrying a freezer stolen from an apartment house in the back of a truck when arrested.

Their case was continued to April 11.

Flames Ruin Mill Valley Apartment

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a Mill Valley garage and the apartment above it last night and caused extensive damage to two neighboring homes, fire officials said today.

Asst. Chief Joseph Regalia said the blaze apparently started in the garage at 37 Bayview Avenue. Damage was tentatively estimated at $16,500.

The fire spread to a two-story house at 35 Bayview Avenue occupied by Joan Y. Rosales and Earl Grant in its two apartments. The side of the house, the attic and roof were extensively damaged, Regalia said.

He said the fire also scorched a house at 39 Bayview Avenue occupied by M. C. Scott.

CANAL

special permit to dump more than 100,000 cubic yards at Alcatraz from a project in one year. The dredging is to take from six months to a year.

The dredged channel will be 150 feet wide south of the Richardson Bay Bridge, and 100 feet wide north of the bridge. It will be eight feet deep at mean lower low water. The waterway is unnavigable now at low tides.

Asked if the corps has studied where spoils dumped at Alcatraz end up, Col. Frank C. Boerger, district engineer for the Army, said "it's hard to determine if even a couple of million cubic yards would affect the bay." Most of the mud spoils apparently settle into a deep cone on the floor of the ocean just outside the Golden Gate, he said.

Commissioners also heard, but took no action on an application by Edgewater Yacht Co. to fill one sixth of an acre on the Sausalito waterfront. The vote on the application will be held on April 3.

San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the applicants, appeared before commissioners wearing one of the "save the bay now" buttons passed out at the beginning of the meeting. The fill will be for a landscaped plaza with a public walkway, he said, but would be converted to a parking lot for 28 vehicles if the applicants lost their lease for nearby railroad property.

The parcel to be filled is adjacent to a 101-seat restaurant planned north of Turney Street. The fill, to cost up to $10,000, would take a year to complete, according to the application.

The only other person to speak on the application was Matthew Koppel, San Francisco attorney representing Sam Zakessian, owner of an adjacent restaurant.

Koppel urged rejection of the application on the ground that the new restaurant would depend on use of his client's parking lot.

In other business, commissioners decided not to consider amending their plan for the bay to ease restrictions to allow such development as the one recently rejected for the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera.

"It just confuses the issue to nibble at it," said Dr. William F. Upton of San Rafael, a member of the commission.

Chairman Melvin B. Lane of Menlo Park reported that another bill to extend the life of the commision is about to be introduced by Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-San Mateo. The commission is to go out of existence late this year under current law.

Motorcyclist's Leg Is Broken

Scott D. McComas, 20, of 7 Warner Court, San Rafael, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with a broken left leg and cut face and hands suffered when his motorcycle hit the Highway 101 center divider this morning on Alto hill, the California Highway Patrol said.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 7:45 a.m. when McComas was hit in the eye by a rock thrown up from the roadway.

Hospital officials said McComas may be released today.

NIXON

privileges from students violating rules is one of the oldest practices of universities and colleges.

"Congress has done no more," he said, "than to withdraw federal assistance from those students judged, not by university regulations, but by courts of law, to have violated criminal statutes.

"Almost by definition, given the present tactics of disruption, anyone so convicted may fairly be assumed to have been assaulting the processes of free inquiry which are the very life of learning.

Nixon said, though, that he and the nation are far more concerned with a second issue—preservation of the integrity, independence and creativity of institutions of higher learning.

That led him to declare: "Freedom — intellectual freedom — is in danger in America . . . Violence—physical violence, physical intimidation—is seemingly on its way to becoming an accepted, or at all events a normal and not-to-be-avoided, element in the clash of opinion within university confines."

After getting his campus-disorders pronouncement out of the way, the President enjoyed a let-up day on his first visit back to his home state since his inauguration.

He and Mrs. Nixon are thinking about acquiring a summer home in this coastal area.

This morning, Nixon went out for a drive, but with no immediate indication that it was for house hunting.

This was in advance of visiting the famed mission at San Juan Capistrano and the swallows that have just returned from a winter absence.

Later on, the U.S. ambassador to Vietnam, Ellsworth Bunker, and the deputy American military commander, Andrew J. Goodpaster, were due in by air for talks with the President and the war in Southeast Asia and chances for progress toward peace.

Marin City Youth Dies Of Gunshot

Stanley Curry, 17-year-old Marin City youth who was shot in the chest March 8, died yesterday at Marin General Hospital.

Curry, of 149 Drake Avenue, had been in the hospital's intensive care unit since the shooting. His condition had been listed as fair and on Thursday, the hospital reported he had shown some improvement.

The shooting, termed accidental by Curry and the man who had the gun, Willie Edward Grayson, 22, of 89 Cole Drive, took place at a gasoline service station at 100 Donahue Street in Marin City, according to sheriff's deputies.

Grayson, an attendant at the station, told deputies he was moving the gun from his pocket to a desk drawer in the office. Then Curry said something which caused him to look up to answer and the gun accidentally fired, Grayson told deputies.

A .22 caliber bullet lodged in Curry's right abdomen.

Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan said today the cause of death is pending an autopsy, scheduled for today at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Curry was the son of Alice Curry of Marin City and Preston Curry.

Neighbors Foil Burglary Attempt

An attempted burglary at a Greenbrae home Thursday night was foiled when neighbors summoned the authorities, sheriff's deputies said today.

Deputies said three suspects were picked up in the area of the house but were later released for lack of evidence. The house at 155 Almenar Drive had been ransacked, they said, but nothing was reported missing.

The home belongs to Norman O. Schwein.

OBITUARIES

Garrett Nisidio Dies At 34

Garrett D. Nisidio, a San Francisco fireman who lived in San Rafael, died yesterday, possibly of a heart attack, after fighting a fire in the Chinatown section. He was 34.

Nisidio, father of four children, collapsed in the dormitory of Engine Co. 28 on Stockton Street after returning with his mates from a smoky, predawn blaze in an apartment house at 711 Pacific Street.

A fire rescue squad tried for 15 minutes to revive him. He was then taken to Mission Emergency Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Nisidio, a native of San Francisco, had been a fireman for nearly nine years and was a member of the Widows and Orphans Aid Society of the fire department.

He lived at 44 Maplewood Drive in the Glenwood section of San Rafael.

Survivors include his wife, Suzanne; four children, Kari Laura, 11; Glenn, 5, and 7-year-old twins, Linda and Lisa, and his parents, Silvio and Vivian Nisidio of San Francisco.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 10:45 a.m. Monday at SS. Peter and Paul Church in San Francisco. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Valente-Marini and Perata and Co. Martuary in San Francisco.

ACHILLE RAGGHIANTI

The address of Achille Ragghianti, a retired produce man who died Thursday, was incorrectly reported to the Independent-Journal as 12 Valley Road, San Anselmo.

The correct address is 40 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo, where Ragghianti and his wife, Settima, had lived about two years.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Best Friends Added To List For Very Special Qualities

DEAR HELEN:

I would like to add something to your "What is A" collection:

WHAT IS A BEST FRIEND

A best friend is:

The one you exchange rings and clothes and books and things with.

The one and only person you let know who you secretly like because you know she'd never tell.

The one who fixes you up with the cutest boy when you're pretty sure he'd rather go with her.

The one you cry to when you and your guy break up or anything bad happens.

The one everybody compliments on her looks and personality, but she's modest about it. Even when she goes out with more boys and gets more babysitting jobs than you, it doesn't matter — most of the time.

The kid who gets mad at you when you get jealous of her.

The girl you pour out your problems to and she makes you forget them by telling you hers.

The true blue gal you find out later made everyone dance with you.

The girl you tell when you gain a size in the right place — or even in the wrong.

The one who tells you off when you need it.

She's the girl whose house you sleep over in more than vice-versa.

She's the kid who acts sweet to your brothers when they're really brats.

She's the one you scrimp and save to buy a nice present, and you don't care what it costs.

She's the one you feel lost without when she goes on vacation.

She's the greatest girl in the world, and you'll remember her all your life as your best school pal. — J. C.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm writing to answer "Shut Out." You could say I'm that "precious little teen-age girl" (he describes) whose mother won't let her date an "older man."

Everything "Shut Out" said is true. My boy friend is an older guy (almost 20) and he has a lot more manners and respect for me than the fellows of 16 and 17. But try to tell that to my overprotective Mama and Papa!

They are violently opposed to me and Gary going together because they say older guys only have one thing on their minds. The truth is just the opposite. It is the younger boys that get fresh, and I know from experience!

How can I get my parents to see the truth? — PLEASE HELP

DEAR P. H.:

Your only hope is Gary himself. If he'll come to your house, talk to your folks, show them he isn't sprouting horns and their angel is safe with him, they may change their minds.

Some parents react to "older men" the way other adults react to Beatle haircuts. They never look beyond the obvious to the real guy underneath. Pity! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Here are some more slang words:

"A" — a pretty girl.

"Funky" — good music.

"Bull boy" — a constant liar.

"Biddy" — a crabby person, (Note from H: That's so old it's new again.)

"Soul man" — a person in the groove.

"Delbert" or "Durfus" — a ding-a-ling. — TOD

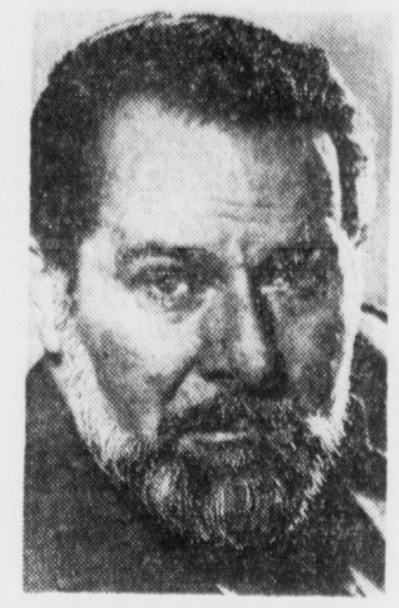
Dramatic Reading Of Psalms Given By Alexander Scourby

By GRACE HENDERSON

"By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion." The resonant voice boomed out the Psalm 137 of the Bible, transporting listeners to the hills of ancient times, in an ancient land. Like magic they were back among early prophets and teachers of religions. Taking his audience to Zion was Alexander Scourby, lecturer and actor, well-known for his readings of the Bible.

Transported into the past by songs of Psalms, members of the morning audience at the Tamalpais Theater needed to only close their eyes yesterday to imagine the voice to be coming from a hilltop, the time five or six hundred years before Christ. The voice could be that of any number of men singing out their praises to their God — or beseeching Him for help.



ALEXANDER SCOURBY

DRAWING A parallel between the psalms and works of art, Mr. Scourby commented that the way to judge potential works is with the question, "Will it say something 50 or 100 years from now?" Lasting works remain forever, he said, but tracing the progress of modern art he noted that beginning with abstract art, the trend went to pop art followed by op art. He observed that modern art is not lasting and therefore is not great.

The 150 Psalms have come down through the ages since their writing, from 500-200 years B.C. Collected up to possibly 100 years B.C., the Psalms have remained true, he stated.

"The King James version of the Bible is most dramatic of all versions. It will never be supplanted by the new Revised Standard Version," he added.

The Psalms carry a complete story of humans. They are songs of thanksgiving, personal lament, historical songs (of Israel), songs of nature, pilgrim songs — on their way to Jerusalem, songs of personal meditation and reflection, and some are blends of several or all.

Mr. Scourby personally recommended Psalm 137 saying, "It is for people like you and me." Pausing for brief comments before giving the last three verses of the Psalm he explained this is the part that bothers most people in that it is cruel in nature.

Suggested for personal reading was "Psalms for the Common Reader," a book by Mary Ellen Chase. This and the "Book of Psalms," a special translation published in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1640, are the two most recommended by the speaker.

The "Book of Psalms" was the first book to be published by the new colony. Printed by the University of Chicago Press, the book utilizes Old World spelling and pronunciation, giving both charm and substance to the works.

Beginning with "The Lord to me a Shepherd is . . . the 23rd Psalm is done completely in rhyme by the author of the little book.

Then, reading his own version of the Psalms, Alexander Scourby fluctuated through the emotional flow, starting with the oneness of the Almighty, with nature and with God as one's protector, he carried the audience through the various emotions common to the Psalms. A small feeling comes and grows, he said, and a person feels abandoned by God. A feeling of despair comes, then pride followed by forgiveness and thankfulness and praise with the final emotion one of complete gratitude to one's God.

MR. SCOURBY recently portrayed Walt Whitman in the off-Broadway production of "A Whitman Portrait" and repeated a portion of the works at his San Anselmo appearance. He has also recorded the complete Bible on three separate occasions for the American Foundation For the Blind and the American Bible Society.

It was through this work that Mr. Scourby became deeply interested in the Psalms as a moving and emotional piece of drama. It was on this background that his talk, the fifth in a series of 6 a.m. programs, was based.

The final program, to be given on "Leonardo Da Vinci" by Dr. Richard McClanathan, will be at the Tamalpais Theater on April 18. The series is presented by the Family Service League of Marin.

Sewing For Crippled Children Made Easier By New Booklet

By EUNICE FARMER

Thank you for the many answers you sent me concerning self-help clothing for handicapped children. The most complete booklet I received came from the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. This booklet is available for 50 cents and may be obtained by writing to the National Society at 2023 W. Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60612. It is filled with marvelous ideas — not only clever but attractive clothing ideas — that would boost the morale of any handicapped person.

May I also mention that this question came up at a very appropriate time of the year with Easter, April 6, just around the corner. The Easter Seal drive for funds to provide services for the handicapped continues until that Sunday. It's a great time to remember those people who are less fortunate than ourselves with volunteer work as well as any donation we can afford.

MRS. D. McINVAILLE, Hartsville, S.C., is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion:

"I made my daughter happy when she wanted one of the new 'Swiss type' jumpers. She also wanted one of the new dirndl skirts and couldn't decide which to make from a piece of material I bought for her. Because she happened to say that she wished she could wear it one way one time and the other the next, I decided to make the straps, put a large snap on the ends to match a snap on the skirt and presto, she can change it as she pleases and does she love it!"

DEAR EUNICE,

Would it be all right to use a linen blouse with my new wool spring suit? Linen comes in such beautiful colors and it seems I could wear my suit longer in the season.

MRS. G. T. H.

DEAR MRS. G. T. H.:

Yes, you certainly may use linen with wool. One of the signatures of George Halley (Seventh Avenue's most expensive couturier) is linen combined with wool. He uses many wool coats and dress combinations and the Empire bodice is very frequently made of linen. Another of his signatures, which make his clothes unusual is the use of a jeweled belt or a band of jeweled trim on these garments at the place where the bodice joins the skirt. I saw his entire collection and found the same detail in tweeds as well as very dressy and heavy double woven gabardines.

DEAR EUNICE,

Are imported cottons actually any better than those made in this country? I actually wonder if the word "imported" isn't just a snob word instead of a word used to describe expensive fabrics?

MRS. E. E.

DEAR MRS. E. E.:

It all depends on the type of fabric you are using for comparison. If you use a good quality cotton that has been made in this country, and compare it with the same quality cotton that has been made in Switzerland, France, Italy or elsewhere, you would find the same basic quality.

The difference in the cost of the two is due to production. Naturally, in this country there is no mill that can afford to offer hundreds of patterns, each in small quantities. European mills are all small, and mostly family type operations and therefore their looms can be set up for smaller yardages and their operation looms can be set up for smaller cost is not the same. Because of this, you will find more individuality in patterns which is immediately important to designers and any of us who want something beautiful as well as different. The minute a product is produced for a few rather than for the masses, you must be prepared to pay more.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am 16 and a junior in high school. Last spring I made a turquoise satin formal with the Empire waistline and a band around it with a bow as well as short sleeves. I only wore the dress once and it's too good to throw away but I would like to change it. Please give me some suggestions.

TERRI C.

DEAR TERRI,

There are several ideas I could give you that perhaps will stir your imagination, (bet you'll come up with something that is even more attractive than the original dress).

You could sash it with a wide ribbon. These come in stripes; moires; old-fashioned, watery-type; printed flowers etc. If you don't wish to use the ribbons where the original belt and bow appeared on the dress, you may use them at the lower edge of the skirt and if it's a long skirt, use the same ribbon in a second row, several inches apart in a narrower width.

Another new idea would be to remove the sleeves, face the armhole and you will have the great jumper look that you see everywhere today. With your satin jumper you can add a lovely sheer, long-sleeved blouse. If the blouse is plain organdy or organza, you can sew several bands of these gorgeous ribbons around the sleeves for another couture look. Because you started with a plain colored fabric, you chances for creativity are unlimited.

For further ideas for what to do with those sleeves, send for Mrs. Farmer's booklet, "All About Sleeves." Enclose 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and mail to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

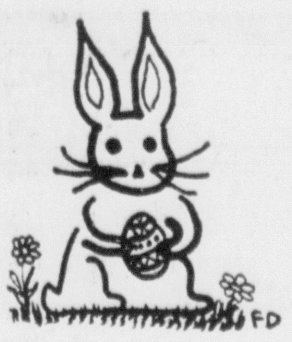
Marin Toddlers To Search For Easter Eggs With 'Bunnies'

Pixie Parents will hold its 14th annual Easter Egg Hunt and Fair Wednesday and Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross and is inviting all Bay Area preschool children and their parents.

As in the past, all children will be given baskets to collect candy eggs, and they will be assisted by Pixie Parents mothers dressed as Easter bunnies.

Among the entertaining events will be a "Peter Rabbit" puppet show, colorful strolling clowns selling balloons and pinwheels, the Humpty Dumpty Houes where children fish for prizes, an amateur art show where the children create their own masterpieces, and a basket toss game.



"The Special Easter Egg," an original Marian Cain Hayes production, will be performed in the barn twice daily by a cast of adult pixies.

Three new attractions have been added this year to the program. You may arrive with a little pixie, but you'll most likely leave with a Peter Cottontail compliments of the artists at the bunny makeup booth. Follow the Footprints and Musical Chairs are the other new events.

Bunny Bag lunches will be served at the Bunny Buffet during the fair. Proceeds are used to help maintain and improve the gounds and equipment at Pixie Place.

Mrs. John Macdonald and Mrs. Willard Stump are co-chairmen of the fair and are being assisted by Mmes. David Adams, William Adams, George Austin, Earl Bailey, Richard Bower, Wendell Brown, Mervyn Burke, Wendell Butler, Joe Campbell, Tracy Cummings, Clark Curtis, Arlen Ellis, Richard Hollingsworth, George Howard, Edward Jahns, Siegfried Kohl, James Miller, Alfred Noble, Harold Oyen, Charles Prugh, George Richards, Thomas Robinson and Andreas Stavro.

PRECEDING THE opening of the Marin Music Chest's annual subscription drive for the summer concert series on April 7, a "kick-off" tea will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Raymond Thayer, 86 Culloden Park, San Rafael, at which time chairmen and workers in the drive will be given final instructions and work kits.

Mrs. John Toole of Ross is hospitality chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ragnar Thaning, reservations. Mrs. Boyd Stewart and Mrs. Eugene Lloyd will register guests. Others on the committee include Mmes. Peter Skaer, John Lesoine, John Weber, R. F. Grambow and Carl Riznik.

Receiving guests will be Mmes. Thayer, John Toole, Samuel D. Archibald and Emmet Rixford, president of the Music Chest. Presiding over the tea table will be Mmes. Carlos Freitas, Wallace Scott, Ernest Kirschner and Peter Palmer.

Following the business meeting a program will be given by two of last year's Music Chest scholarship winners, flutist John Tomlinson, and trumpeter Bert Truax. Members of the executive board, artistic council and board of directors are also invited.

ALL BICYCLE owners from Corte Madera can register their bicycles on Wednesday from 2-4 p.m. at the Neil Cummins School at Mohawk Avenue. A fee of one dollar covers a two-year period. The service is provided by the Peter Pan Chapter of Children's Home Society, a California adoption agency which maintains a file and 24-hour answering service available to all local police departments. For proper registration each bicycle must be brought, since all are listed by frame number, color, make and size.

SANDOR SALGO, conductor of the Marin symphony orchestra and professor of music at Stanford University, will speak Wednesday at the final concert preview given by the Marin Symphony Guild. The preview will be held at 11 a.m. at the San Geronimo Golf Club.

Mr. Salgo will discuss the all-Berlioz concert to be given on March 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the College of Marin gymnasium when he will conduct the "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, the Symphony No. 2, "Harold in Italy" and the song cycle "Nuit d'Ete."

Members of the Symphony Guild and their guests will have luncheon at the club following the preview.

THE SECOND in a series of four orientation programs will be held at Sunny Hills Wednesday at 10 a.m. Volunteers and all interested people in the community are invited.

This series has been planned to help volunteers understand the problems and the challenge of the child with social adjustment problems. Judge Samuel Gardiner, Marin County Juvenile Court Justice, will speak.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Richard E. Mittelstaedt or Sunny Hills.

A MOTHERLY woman who enjoys young children is needed to read to children who have multiple sight and speech problems. Scrapbooks, picture books, story books and paint are used by the teacher as learning aides in the classroom. The volunteer will be working with individual children two or more mornings each week until June. Call the Volunteer Bureau in San Rafael for an interview appointment.

Crittenton Home Girls Tell Fears, Hopes For Offspring

By BETTY FROST

The four young women could have been classmates recalling shared experiences of dormitory life. That they were all pregnant seemed a coincidence instead of the central reason which had brought them together at the Florence Crittenton Home in San Francisco.

In the sunny living room of the Tiburon home of Mrs. H. K. Laymon, they spoke frankly and informally to members of the Marin Circle of the Crittenton Home Tuesday afternoon. With Jean Bolton of Sausalito, director of the home, as moderator, they were the panelists, giving a first hand view of the work of the home for unwed mothers.

WHAT HAD they thought before they came to the home:

"I expected it to be bad, but I thought I was so bad I deserved it. Nobody helped me make plans. I came by myself."

"I thought it would be old, dark and full of people who were weird. Actually it is nice, modern, and the girls are like I am."

"I thought it would be like a prison, and that I'd be the only nice girl there."

"I had to leave my home town. It didn't matter to me where I went. My mom and I made arrangements to visit the home."

Their initial fears were similar, too. That they wouldn't be accepted by the Florence Crittenton administrators, that the cost would be beyond their means, that they would never be allowed to leave the premises, and that the other girls would be mean and pushy.

Elements of relaxation and a home-like atmosphere, a modern kitchen, cheerful rooms, and a large patio provided a reassuring background. A dog, "Flossie," and a canary are popular with the girls.

"Three months is a long time to live with 42 pregnant girls," said one. "We are glad for the freedom to go out in the day, to visit places of interest in San Francisco and feel a little bit normal."

They can go out in the daytime and stay until 4:30 p.m., Miss Bolton explained. "With permission they may go out in the evening, returning to the home at 10 p.m. The rules are not designed for punishment."

The routine at the home includes chores, such as setting the table, doing the dishes, and light cleaning. The girls organize these necessary duties themselves, and the head coordinator is an elective post. Other activities include crafts, and arranging for special events, such as their recent St. Patrick's Day party. They can sign up for special committees if they wish, and "most of the girls feel better if they contribute," a spokesman said.

Hovering over each of the girls is the problem of her coming baby. Their young faces were troubled as they discussed the biggest decision — to keep or relinquish the child. Group discussions and counseling by medical and social service experts help them to see the various aspects of the problem. The actual decision each young woman must make for herself, after the baby's birth.

"YOU HAVE to think about your family," said one girl, "and consider the burden on your parents and younger brothers and sisters. Later if you want to marry, would the child be accepted?" she pondered.

One girl spoke of a relative with two adopted children and felt reassured by the happy family relationship in that home.

In some cases the baby's father assists with the decision. "Fathers are human too," Miss Bolton said. "We encourage the girls to resolve the relationship, not merely to abandon it."

This is not possible in every case. The adamant attitude of the boy's parents prevented any further involvment, so added to one young girls concern over her baby's future, was worry over the boy she cared for, who had no idea what had become of her.

QUESTIONS ABOUT the baby express the fears and hopes of the young women: Will the baby be healthy? Will he be adoptable? If adopted, will the child have the things I can't give him — good housing, an education? If I keep the baby, I will have to go out on my own and arrange for his care. . . .

The opportunity to see and talk to other girls helped by the Florence Crittenton home, some whom have kept their children and others who have relinquished them, helps the girls with their hard choice.

Grateful for the care and protection afforded at the home during the last three months of pregnancy and the week of recuperation after release from the hospital, the girls' honest presentation obviously touched the members of the Marin Circle, meeting in an all day session.

Despite the help at a crucial time in their lives, one of the girls remarked wryly, "But I don't want a return visit."

DRAMA REVIEW

'Rivals' Is Below Par For College Of Marin

By KARL BARRON

Producing the comedies of Richard Brinsley Sheridan is a task in the face of which strong professional producers quail. "The Rivals" is no exception, but it has the incomparable Mrs. Malaprop, a lady whose name has become a dictionary word because of her incredible misuse of the King's English. Given a good Mrs. Malaprop, an otherwise mediocre "Rivals" can succeed.

Unfortunately the College of Marin production which opened in Kentfield last night under H. J. Susser's direction has a Malaprop who is an unbelievable caricature; nor does it have sufficient other merits to make up for the lady's lack.

It has a breakneck pace which still does not cover a certain amount of boredom; it has several commendable performances; sets and costumes by Alonso D. Gonzalez are charming; original music by Mary Rosenquist and Robbie McBeath is delightful, played by its composers plus Laurie Adams and Jean Harris.

What is wrong then? In his production notes, Susser says "The polished formal acting style of the period (1775) has been modified to provide a modern audience an easier access to the inner warmth, truth and humanity of the characters." Good enough, if it were true.

But only three of the cast attain any reasonable feeling of humanity. The rest are two-dimensional, and at times as in the case of Malaprop, complete travesties.

Robert Deckelman as Sir Anthony Absolute attains fine dimensional proportions, making the old man a very recognizable person, filled with his own importance and completely self-deluded. Deckelman's first act tirade in trying to persuade his son to marry is a small masterpiece.

As Lydia Languish, Sylvia Scott takes on a most difficult ingenue and plays her with a ring of truth. Whether allowing her face to convey what she is reading in a book, or petulantly spurning Jack Absolute's advances, she is warmly believable.

Bryan Wittine as the second love interest has a good character working, but makes him too montonously whiney as the play progresses. Added to this are several more minor actors who appear to emulate him until the stage at times seems to be filled with snivelling nose-droppers.

Merike Brown as Mrs. M. comes on teetering in tight shoes with bobbing bustle; grimaces in agonizing fashion; twists her mouth about so that she is seldom even intelligible, and ceases to be really funny after her first five minutes on stage. Miss Brown has shown tremendous potential in previous work, but here she is allowed to run wild.

As Jack, Mark Rasmussen is a bit stuffy and tends to look like Superman coming out of his phone booth, but at least he's not a caricature, as are Jose Carrillo, Donald Carroll and Owen Orser in their roles. Jama Tegeler as a much-pinched maid is an adorable puppet, while Larry Smith and Karen Zide play their parts quite convincingly.

Probably the worst thing I can say of this production is that it is a good college try. We have come to expect more from College of Marin.

"The Rivals" will be repeated tonight and again Wednesday through Saturday of next week. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

NEW UNIFORM ADDS TO FAME FOR NOVATO

As Novato goes, so goes Tucson, that is as far as police uniforms are concerned.

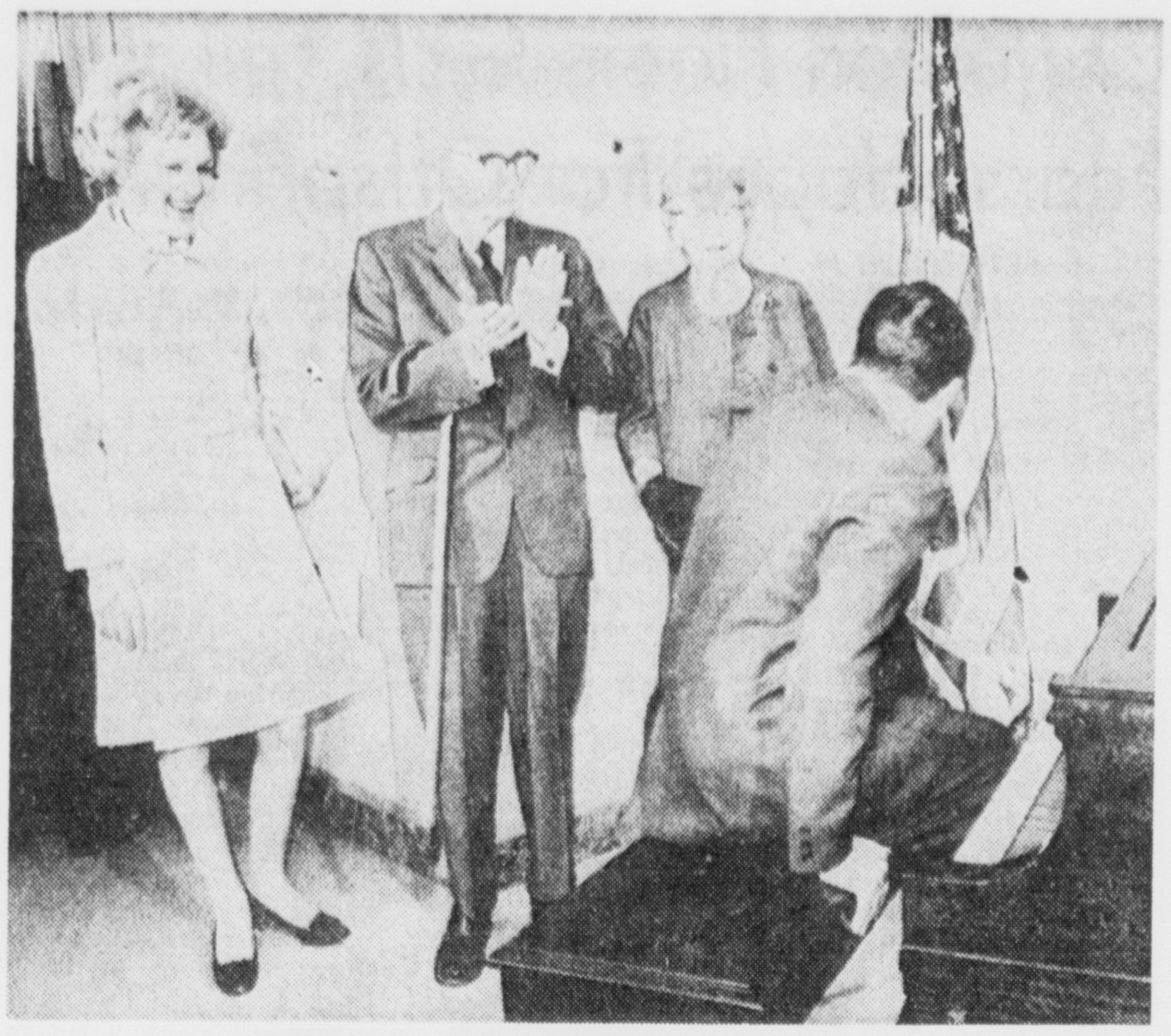
When Bob Hax's Independent-Journal photograph of Novato Patrolman Richard H. Rudy in the new blazer-type uniform appeared on the front page of the Tucson Daily Star, it struck the Arizona city's police as an answer to a better public image.

Novato police Chief Robert Di Grazia has received a call from the police there asking details on the natty uniform. The Tucson department will start using it for supervisors and administrative personnel, Di Grazia said.

Span Crash Injures Tiburon Resident

David A Nixon, 27, of 24 Circle Drive, Tiburon, was treated for a cut forehead and nose yesterday at Central Emeergency Hospital, San Francisco, after a collision on Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 7:10 p.m. when Nixon's car hit the rear of a car driven by Marie M. Duffy, 58, of San Francisco, who had stopped for a stalled car in southbound traffic.



COMMAND PERFORMANCE

Former President Harry Truman applauds as President Richard M. Nixon finishes playing — naturally — "The Missouri Waltz" on the piano Nixon brought with him as a gift when visiting the ex-president yesterday. Looking on are Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Truman, who recalled when her husband played the piano in the White House. (See also, story on page 1.) (UPI telephoto)

Contra Costans Suspected Of Black Point Pot Drop

Three Antioch men were booked into Marin County Jail last night after ditching a batch of suspected marijuana near Black Point, the California Highway Patrol reported.

James Laddie McCoy, 19, was booked on suspicion of possessing marijuana and dangerous drugs. His two companions, Robert Eugene Fertado, 21, and Dennis Holmes Bastian, 22, were booked on suspicion of being in a place where marijuana was being used.

Highway patrolmen reportedly curbed McCoy's car on Highway 37 at 9 p.m. after it was seen weaving along the road.

As the car slowed, patrolmen said, McCoy appeared to put something under his seat and a plastic bag dropped from under the car.

A patrolman retrieved the bag and reportedly found it held nine hand-rolled cigarettes, an ounce of suspected marijuana, and a green capsule.

In McCoy's car, patrolmen said, they found a hole cut in the floorboard, through which McCoy apparently discarded the plastic bag.

McCoy was held on $1,250 bail while Fertado and Bastian were held on $625 bail apiece. They are to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

To Talk On ESP

Russ Burgess will demonstrate his techniques of extrasensory perception at 8:15 p.m., today, in Olney Hall, College of Marin, as part of the Concert-Lecture Series. Burgess, formerly with the Department of Justice, lectures and demonstrates ESP, telepathy, thought control and precognition.

College Board Asks Tighter Residence Rules

Stronger residential requirements for college students over 21, to discourage movement of free-loading students from district to district, have been urged by Marin Junior College District trustees.

Trustees are making this recommendation by letter to the California Community Colleges board of governors, acting president Dr. Louis H. Herkenhoff said yesterday.

The present practice of many such students is to move into a district — often from out of the state—for the sole purpose of acquiring an education without a fair sharing of the costs by fee or assessed valuation of family property, the letter states.

County Sign Controls Due Another Hearing

The county's new sign ordinance, banning billboards and setting specific limits on other signs, will get another hearing before the Marin County Planning Commission on Monday.

The all-day meeting starts at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

Owners of a ranch near the Sonoma County line will ask for permission to set up a rifle range for public use. William and Evelyn Souza seek rezoning of 19 acres, now agricultural, to resort-commercial, which permits firing ranges. The property is on the west side of Alexander Avenue, between Fallon-Two Rock Road and Tomales-Petaluma Road, near the Two Rock Ranch Station military reservation.

The $6 million El Marinero office and commercial center in front of the Civic Center will come up for design review. Architect Gilbert Oliver has designed a four-story structure with two parking levels underneath. The project will be built on five acres of land between North San Pedro Road and San Pablo Avenue.

John Gold Corp. will ask for a service station and boat storage facility next to the Howard Johnson restaurant and motor lodge which are under construction on the west side of Richardson Bay Bridge in front of Fireside Motel.

In the afternoon, planning commissioners will open hearings on a new logging ordinance and an ordinance to control developments in Tomales Bay.

At 3 p.m., commissioners will discuss rezoning of the Merrydale Road area in Las Gallinas Valley. A series of apartments has sprouted along Merrydale Road.

Guitar Classes Set For Terra Linda

GARBAGE IS DELIVERED IN SAN ANSELMO

Mrs. Donald D. Herrick, her son, Marty, 2, and a friend, Pat Mandina, had just left the kitchen at 10 a.m. yesterday when this San Anselmo Garbage Disposal truck, fully loaded, rolled 220 feet down the hill and smashed into the kitchen wall.

"I thought it was an earthquake," said Mrs. Herrick, pictured with her son. Driver Philip Moessner of 2 Skyline Road, told police that the left front brake line had popped. Mrs. Herrick said damages have not been estimated.

College Of Marin Students Tax Class Planning Seers

Many students wanted to enroll in certain classes this semester at the College of Marin for which there was no space provided.

Students for whom the college administration miscalculated demand numbered:

Psychology, 200; art, 160, English 1-A, 110; philosophy, 73; sociology, 70; American government, 40, and drama, 16.

The figures represent results of a survey revealed yesterday by Dean of Instruction Paul Clymer who said that on registration each student was asked to fill out a card listing course he wanted to take.

These figures were then compared with the number of classes the college had projected.

To take care of some of the overflow students, classes were added this semester in philosophy, psychology, sociology and drama.

It was the first time such a survey was taken by the college and Clymer, terming it valuable for programming, said it will be conducted again in the fall.

He warned, however, that one should be cautious about the results.

For example, many of the 110 students who signed up for English 1-A were ineligible to take the course, having to take "bonehead" English instead. Students did not know results of their test for English placement at the time they filled out course preference cards, said Clymer.

Another aspect is that if the college had set up extra sessions, some of the other classes would have ended up with too few students, the dean said.

Clymer said that figures are deceiving because some of the students may have signed up for two or more art courses, hoping that they would get into one of them.

He also said that when students can't get into one class, they usually go into another. "That something else might be just as valuable for them," he said.

Woman Is Freed Of Dope Charge

A methedrine possession charge against Roberta Idell Brust, 21, of Novato, has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Alvin G. Goldstein for insufficient evidence.

She still faces, however, a count of child abusing.

The case was continued until Monday to be reset.

14 Burglaries During February

Petaluma police investigated 14 burglaries in February, but solved none of them, according to the report issued by Police Chief Larry D. Higgins.

Thirty-four thefts were also investigated with four arrests made. Two aggravated assaults were reported with one arrest made. An attempted kidnapping also remains unsolved.

A total of 186 offenses were reported during the month and 537 complaints received. Traffic violations numbered 460 and injury accidents, 16.

Bales Urges Adding Six To His Staff

The district attorney's office needs another lawyer and a secretary now and four more staff members by July 1 because the workload has reached "the breaking point," Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales announced yesterday.

His appeal for more help will go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors on Tuesday. He said his staff is so overworked that a receptionist-typist quit this month and another secretary is about to quit.

As an example of the increase in workload, Bales said felony cases awaiting trial had jumped from 47 in February of 1967 to 107 in February of 1968 and 177 last month.

He said the workload for each of his seven deputies had jumped four-fold.

The district attorney will ask for one deputy now and another in July, one secreary-stenographer now and another secretary-stenographer, a file clerk and an investigator in July.

"In my opinion, this situation requires immediate attention and cannot await consideration at my 1969-70 budget hearing by your board," said Bales.

Rummage Sale Set

Friends of the Larkspur Library will hold their annual rummage sale at 11 a.m., May 3, at the library at 400 Magnolia Avenue. Money from the sale of handicrafts, plants and books will be used to buy library books, Mrs. Samuel Huey, publicity director, reported.

Author Sharply Critical Of 'Good Life' In Marin

Marin "is a lousy place for kids to grow up in," believes a Tiburon novelist who assesses his home county in the spring issue of Horizons magazine.

Kenneth Lamott makes the comment in a contemplative article, "A Few Hazards of the Good Life."

The "good life" in Marin, he holds, "is largely a white adult notion. For the kids, it's great to be able to camp out on the slopes of Mount Tam or dig in Inidan burial mounds or play tennis after school seven days out of 10 the year around or sail an El Toro out of the back yard, but the real thing that's on their minds is 'What's it all about, man?,' and the style of life we've evolved here doesn't give them a very convincing answer."

He suggests that "the good life" may lack meaning for adults, too, pointing out that "for some years after World War II there was a single psychiatrist in private practice in Marin County; last year the yellow pages of the telephone directory listed 43 of them, or about one-eighth of Marin's medical community.

"The pathetic and dreadful secret is out: Nothing really matters very much. Winning a yacht race is just as important as winning a case in court. Playing a first-rate game of tennis is just as important as painting good pictures. Remodeling a house is just as important as taking a class of freshmen through 'Heart of Darkness.' Nothing really matters very much, but the view of the bay is great."

RESOURCE CENTER

Seminary Will Seek $1 Million

Fund drives for $1 million learning resource center and a $300,000 chair of missions and evangelism have been approved by the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary Board of Trustees.

The two fund drives are scheduled for completion in March 1971.

Meeting last week on the Strawberry campus, trustees also approved a 1969-70 budget of $700,355, the largest in the seminary's history. Included in the budget was a 5 per cent cost-of-living increase for faculty and staff. The 1968-69 budget was $719,105.

Trustees also authorized funds to complete architectural design for a pedestrian bridge linking the living and service areas of the seminary.

The board re-elected Dr. Ernest P. Guy of Tiburon, president; Dr. J. C. Segler of Oklahoma City, vice president; Dr. Robert N. Stapp, of Seattle, secretary and Dr. John B. Hines of Garden Grove, associate secretary.

The board also approved seminary President Harold K. Graves' nomination as governor of Rotary District 513 and agreed to distribute some of Graves' responsibilities to other staff personnel.

During the three-day session, Dr. W. A. Criswell, of Dallas, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, spoke at a special dinner commemorating the seminary's 25th anniversary.

In his speech, Criswell, noting, that "I do not suppose that there is a harder place on the face of this earth to preach the gospel than in San Francisco, urged seminary students to be all the more committeed to their ministrys.

"Compared with the men working out here in California, I have it easy," Criswell said. "I am surrounded by millions of Baptists. But you are surrounded only by confusion and hate and other distractions to an effective ministry."

PALM SUNDAY RITES NEXT

The Independent-Journal Church Page will carry a list of Palm Sunday services in next Saturday's edition of the I-J.

Deadline for receiving service information is Wednesday, by mail or telephone.

Instructor For Bible Class Hired

Dr. Wayne Peterson, faculty member at Louisiana College in Pineville, La., has been named associate professor of Old Testament at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Strawberry.

Peterson, who will assume his duties at the seminary Aug. 1, taught for eight years at Ouachita Baptist College in Arkadelphia, Ark., before transferring to Louisiana College last year. He has taught both in the Old and New Testament fields but has placed major emphasis on the Old Testament.

A graduate of the University of Corpus Christi, he received a bachelor of divinity degree in 1953 and a doctor of theology degree in 1963 from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex. He has also studied at the University of Basel in Switzerland.

He is the author of "Sunday School Adults" a series of Sunday school lessons, and has been commissioned to write an interpretation of Ecclesiastes for the Broadman Bible Commentary.

He is married and has two sons.

New Minister Is Announced

Rev. William Perdue, senior minister of the Stone Church of Willow Glen in San Jose, has been appointed the new minister of the Westminister Presbyterian Church in Tiburon.

Perdue, a widower with four grown sons, will begin his new ministry April 7.

He replaces George F. Walker Jr. who resigned last September to become a campus minister at Humboldt State College in Arcata and the College of the Redwoods in Eureka.

Campus Pastor's Faith In Today's Youth Renewed

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A Lutheran minister attending a Foreign Language Music Festival session on the Edwardsville campus of Southern Illinois University, heard his name paged over the public address system.

The minister, Rev. Ronald H. Lind of the Mizpah Lutheran Church, St. Louis, quickly answered the page. It seems he had dropped a check, already endorsed, somewhere in the Student Union Building and a student had found it.

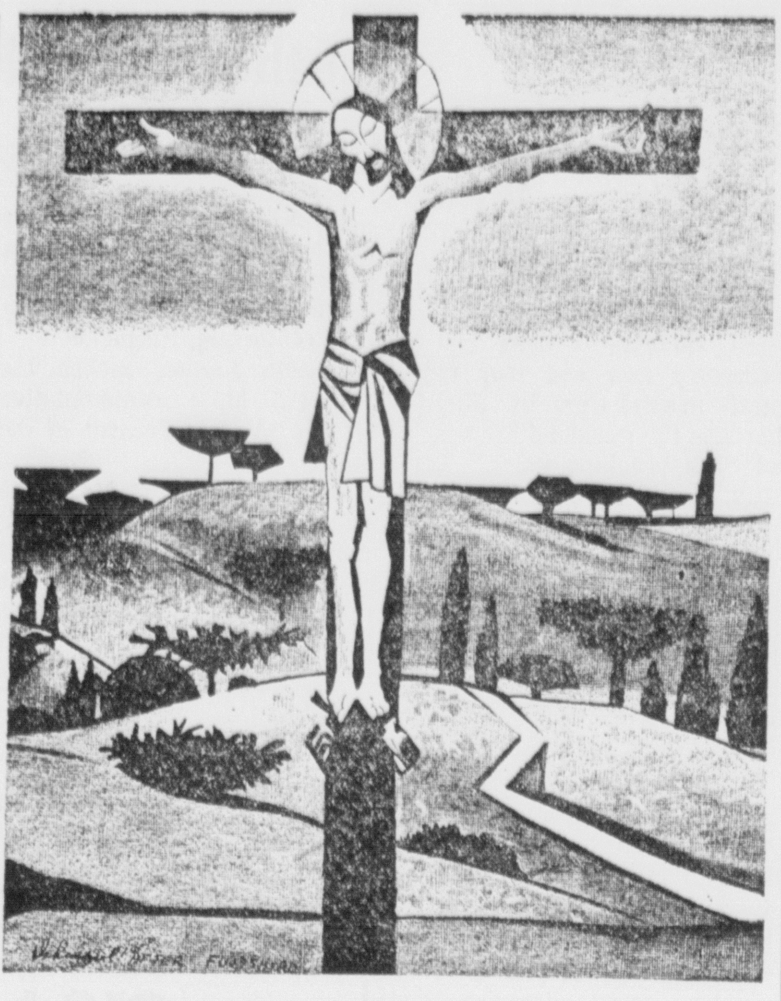
"We hear a great deal these days about the moral laxity of our nation's youth etc. etc.," he said. "But believe me, after this refreshing experience, I'm ready to give the whole SIU student body an 'A' for 'honesty'."

Lenten Tradition Of Giving Dramas

JERSEY SHORE, Pa. (UPI) — The ancient Lenten tradition of presenting dramas relating to the Passion of Christ has been revived by six United Methodist churches in this north central Pennsylvania area.

Newly formed drama groups in the churches each prepared a play with the theme "What Would Jesus Do?" A different play was presented weekly at each church during Lent.

The tradition was started by members of craft and industrial guilds who prepared the plays and then went from community to community presenting them.



THE LENTEN STORY

Japanese Artist Presents Dramatic Christ On Cross

By WOODI ISHMAEL
AP Newsfeatures
(Fifth in a series of seven)

Christians number less than one-half of 1 per cent of the total population of Japan. In view of this it is revealing to see how many artists are Christian and have created works from stories of the Bible.

To appreciate Japanese art we must understand its diversity. The Japanese, while grounded in tradition, have an open mind to the changes and influences of the contemporary world.

They have a rare gift of combining the best of many cultures yet retaining concepts of their own both ancient and contemporary.

The above drawing of Jesus on the cross from the work by Fujishiro is typical of combining a tragic story with modern germetric design in traditional block print style.

Such dramatic works of art break down barriers of communication and provide for a common bond where other means often fail.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — After surviving, at least partially, for more than a decade and a half under the heavy pressure of Red rule, religion in mainland China today is dead in its institutional forms.

That is the conclusion of church experts who piece together the available fragments of information on conditions in that vast, semiclosed country of blanketing totalitarianism.

Outwardly, they say the last vestiges of Christianity, Islam and the ancient faiths of Buddhism and Taoism have been wiped out.

"Organized religion" no longer exists in China, says the Rev. L. La Dany, a Catholic editor of a Hong Kong newsletter. But he adds that "religious belief" still persists among an unknown number of Chinese people.

In other Communist states, religious groups have managed to continue functioning, although usually under sharp limitations. This also was the case in China at least until 1966.

But since the wave of violence of the cultural revolution that swept the country at that time, the last remnants of religious activity apparently have disappeared.

That upheaval brought "an end to external manifestations of all religions," Father La Dany writes in the Jesuit weekly, America. Bibles were burned, temples and churches wrecked or sealed.

At the time, and since then, hopes have been voiced among church leaders that at least some of the worship places would be allowed to resume functioning again, once the turmoil had subsided.

But "there is no sign yet that any church of any religion has been reopened," Father La Dany says, apart from one Muslim mosque in Peking temporarily restored for the visit of a Muslim delegation from Africa.

When Mao Tse-tung came into power 20 years ago, there were about two million Catholics and a million Protestants among China's more than 600 million persons. Most others espoused Buddhism, Taoism and the old, ethical code of Confucianism. About 10 million were Moslems.

Through the ensuing years, all religious activity was brought under rigid state control and rising intimidation. Missionaries were expelled or imprisoned and contacts completely cut off with churches elsewhere.

Catholics, in order to continue their worship, were required to openly repudiate allegiance to the Pope and become part of a separate "Patriotic Catholic Church," set up in 1957. Those who refused to disavow Rome were imprisoned.

But even the "Patriotic Church," considered by many as schismatic now, "has become a martyred church," Father La Dany says. He adds that its 200 or 300 priests, dragged off by rampaging Red Guards, have dropped from sight.

Catholic Bishops Take Union Steps

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops of the United States have taken major steps toward official negotiations with the predominantly Protestant National Council of Churches for what could become a historic Christian alliance at the national level.

A small team of experts from both sides will be named in about a month to study admission of the Catholic Church into the council, it was learned this week.

The council is a voluntary fellowship of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox denominations with 44 million members. The Roman Catholic Church, which has kept itself aloof from the council since it was formed in 1950, claims 47.4 million American members.

Catholic inclusion in the council, still regarded as a few years away, would thus bring together the leaderships of 91.4 million of the estimated 126 million Christians in the United States.

The council holds annual meetings, elects officers and takes policy positions about secular issues but has no control over the creeds of its member Churches.

Although the doctrinal and moral tenets of the member churches are not the council's concern, Catholic membership one day could cause difficulty in trying to develop a council stand on such matters as contraception, where Catholicism and the rest of Christianity sharply disagree.

Catholic dioceses have joined the councils of other Christians on a scattered or state basis so far, the first time in 1964 in New Mexico and the most recent last month in Texas.

The Roman Catholic bishops of the country told the council last September that they were ready to consider national membership seriously. The new development is the selection of a team of experts to work out the details.

The group is being held to 15, already chosen but not yet announced, in the belief that fewer people can get more done. The initial meeting may be as soon as April, a council official said.

"We in the NCC welcome the move tremendously," Dr. Cynthia Wedel, the council's associate general secretary for Christian unity, said.

She said it "won't happen overnight" but estimated it might be four or five years until all the details are firm and Catholicism sits in the council.

A major topic for the panel of experts is the impact on existing council structure of letting in one Church whose followers outnumber those of all other 33 churches together. Voting rules in the council are based on member-church size. Neither Catholic nor council officials want to see the apparatus thrown out of balance, Dr. Wedel said.

Guest Minister Is Announced

Dr. Earle Shipley of the American Baptist Homes of the West, will be the guest speaker at both the 11 a.m. and the 7:30 p.m. services tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo.

The following Sunday the pulpit will be filled by Rev. Terry Burch,

They are filling in for Dr. Ralph J. Fortune, minister, presently convalescing from surgery at Marin General Hospital.

Ecumenical Spirit

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rabbi Alvan D. Rubin, spiritual leader of Temple Israel, led a Jewish prayer service in the chapel of DeMattias Hall for Sisters of the Precious Blood and students of St. Louis University, a Roman Catholic institution. Sisters and students participated in the prayers and in singing liturgical music during the "ecumenical" service.

Tiburon Church Will Host Baptist Leader

'Open house' speaker

Dr. Theodore Floyd Adams, former president of the Baptist World Alliance, will preach at a series of "open house" services beginning tomorrow at the Tiburon Baptist Church, 445 Greenwood Beach Road.

Dr. Adams will open the series, preaching at both the 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. services. The series will continue through Friday with the retired pastor of the Richmond, Va., First Baptist Church, preaching daily at 7:30 p.m.

Also next week Dr. Adams will be presenting a series of lectures at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry.

Dr. Adams, who served as president of the Baptist World Alliance from 1955 to 1960, also serviced the alliance as vice president from 1947 to 1950 and is presently a member of the executive and administrative committees.

In the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. Adams is a past member of the Foreign Mission Board and is presently serving on the public affairs committee.

He received his bachelor's degree from Denison University in Granville, Ohio, and his bachelor's degree in divinity from Colgate-Rochester Divinity School in Rochester, N.Y. He received his doctorate of literary letters from Keuka College, Keuka Park, N.Y.

He is also holder of honorary doctorate of divinity degrees from seven colleges and universities, including University of Richmond, William and Mary, Baylor University and Washington and Lee University.

After 32 years as pastor of the Richmond church, Dr. Adams retired to become the current visiting professor of preaching at the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary at Wake Forest, N.C.

One of his present goals is the establishment within the church of an Institute of Pastoral Care where ministers are trained as counselors.

Dr. J. Lyn Elder, professor of pastoral psychology at Golden Gate Seminary, received his counselor training under Dr. Adams in Richmond.

Dr. Jerry Ashby, pastor of the Tiburon church, said of Dr. Adams' visit: "We are extremely fortunate to have him as our guest. He is a stimulating speaker. . . we invite all to hear him at the occasion of our 'open house'."

Candidate For Pastor Will Speak

Rev. Donald M. Rayment of Hayward will preach at the 9:30 a.m. service tomorrow as a candidate for position as minister of the Novato Presbyterian Church.

After the sermon, Dr. John J. Canoles, acting pastor of the church, will preside at a meeting of the congregation in which a secret ballot will be taken to see if the church will call Rayment as pastor.

William J. J. Smith, who has been chairman of the pastor-seeking committee, will present Rayment as a candidate for the position. The church has been without a permanent pastor since Rev. C. M. Croughan resigned last Aug. 1.

If the vote is favorable, Rayment, now pastor of Mount Eden Presbyterian Church in Hayward where he has been since 1967, will be named the new pastor of the Novato church.

Rayment is a graduate of San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo and former vice moderator of San Francisco Presbytery.

In case the congregation rejects Rayment, the committee will look for another candidate to present.

Episcopal Choir Will Sing Mass

The choir of Christ Episcopal Church, Santa Rosa and San Carlos avenues, Sausalito, will sing the "Messes Solennelle" (a solemn mass) from "St. Cecilia" by Gounod tomorrow at the 11 a.m. service.

Dr. Cecil R. Adams, choirmaster, will direct, and Emily Ross, Christ Church organist, will accompany. Soloists will be Betty Carter, Kenneth Small and David Wade.

Special Session

Marin County Evangelical pastors will meet at 8 a.m. Tuesday for their first fellowship session at the Valley Baptist Church near the Civic Center.

Tired
Of the Life You Lead?

Do you ever wish for a different kind of life? Have you realized it is possible for such a wish to become true? Admittedly, the price of such an astounding happening is great. But you don't even have to pay the cost—someone else already has.

"God loved the world so much that He gave His only Son, so that everyone who believes in Him may not die but have eternal life. For God did not send His Son into the world to be its Judge, but to be its Savior.

"Whoever believes in the Son is not judged; whoever does not believe has already been judged, because he has not believed in God's only Son.

"This is how the judgment works: the light has come into the world, but men love the darkness rather than the light, because they do evil things. And anyone who does evil things hates the light and will not come to the light, because he does not want his evil deeds to be shown up. But whoever does what is true comes to the light, in order that the light may show that he did his works in obedience to God."*

Come out of the darkness and find a new life—through faith—in Christ.

...the way

The fast tempo of these times is enough to make one wonder whether he's coming or going. There's got to be a fixed point of departure and return.

The Christian faith is rooted deeply in the lives of those who have found Jesus Christ to be the beginning and the ending of all their "to and fro" meanderings in the earth.

It was to a confused disciple that Jesus said:

"I am the way, the truth and the life." John 14:6

$1395

We can really say that this is a real creampuff pickup due to the fact that it's our own company truck that we purchased new and have used here at our company for general use and picking up of parts around the city.

This half-ton pickup has just been repainted to blot out our signs and there isn't a mark of wear or damage anywhere. Popular V-6 engine with standard transmission, w/w tires, radio, power steering, Barden bumper, all the chrome mouldings and lots of other extras. A really top-notch truck that's dressed up appearance-wise to look like new. Serviced regularly in our shop so this truck shouldn't need a thing done to it. T68692.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Information Uncovered About Congenital Diseases

VAN DELLEN

Recently more and more conditions have been classified as hereditary disorders. Some abnormalities represent traits handed down from generation to generation.

Still others, such as inborn errors or metabolism, are the result of an inherited deficiency of a specific enzyme.

Lack of a particular catalyst blocks certain chemical processes leading to the abnormal utilization of carbohydrates, proteins, or fats. Examples include phenylketonurio, albinism, sickle cell anemia, and hemophilia A or B.

ON THE OTHER HAND, many are born with congenital malformations that are not necessarily inherited.

Up to 70 per cent of the women exposed to German measles in the first three months of pregnancy delivered children with severe congenital defects, such as cataracts, deafness, or heart disease. In other instances, mothers taking certain drugs during pregnancy gave birth to defective babies. Thalidomide induced deformities among 7,000 infants.

Chromosomal changes produce human malformation and inherited defects. Normal fertilized cells have 46 chromosomes; half are obtained from the sperm, the remainder from the ovum.

CHROMOSOMES MAY vary in number or in structure. Mongolism, for example, is caused by an extra chromosome. There also is a possibility that the measles virus adversely affects the chromosomal pattern. Radiation may do the same.

The malabsorption syndrome that produces a large number of disorders depends upon what substance is not being absorbed. Missing factors may be proteins, fats, carbohydrates or a single component found in these nutrients. Or, absorption of a vitamin or mineral such as calcium or iron is subnormal.

Furthermore, there are reasons galore why these items are not absorbed.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

CORRECTING AN OVERBITE

Mrs. K. writes: Can an overbite be corrected in infancy or is it better to wait until the child is older?

REPLY

In some instances the physician gives the baby calcium and vitamin D to help the jaw develop. Malocclusion may be corrected in infancy but most orthodontists prefer to wait until some of the permanent teeth appear before starting treatment. Eleven years is an ideal age.

SIGNS OF FLATFOOT

A reader writes: Does flatfoot cause symptoms?

REPLY

Not always and the manifestations may not be confined to the bottoms of the feet. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on flatfoot.

CREAMED SOUP

W. Y. writes: Are there any soups that should not be eaten by a person with angina?

REPLY

Avoid creamed and greasy soups if the blood cholesterol is high or obesity is a problem.

MILKY NIGHTCAP

A reader writes: Will taking a cold glass of milk every night, all year 'round, prove harmful?

REPLY

No.

DAILY ICE CREAM

R. S. writes: Is a person harming himself if he eats a large bowl of ice cream every day?

REPLY

No, unless he has a cholesterol or weight problem.

WINE AND OLDSTERS

A reader writes: My elderly sister won't eat unless she has a glass of beer or wine with her dinner. Is there any reason why she cannot have this "tonic?"

REPLY

No. Let her enjoy herself.

UNFINISHED YAWN

E. V. writes: Whenever I feel a yawn coming on, I start and then can't complete it. Why does this happen?

REPLY

Apparently the stimulus is not sufficient to complete the act. Yawning is initiated by drowsiness, lack of oxygen, or suggestion. But since there's no danger when a yawn is aborted, why not forget it?

CHEST PAIN — WHAT TO DO

A reader writes: If a person has chest pains that are due to his heart, what should he do?

REPLY

Find a competent physician who will start him on a plan of treatment. However, if pain comes on suddenly or is severe and steady, hospitalization is needed. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on angina pectoris.

CRAVING FOR CINNAMON

A reader writes: What is wrong with a person who craves cinnamon?

REPLY

Nothing. We all develop tastes for certain flavors and cinnamon is a favorite. This highly aromatic bark is used not only in foods but in medicines, cordials, and carminatives.

Today's Health Hint — Select only reliable persons to baby-sit with your child.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, March 22, the 81st day of 1969 with 284 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, and Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Saturn and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1794 Congress passed legislation forbidding slave trading with other nations.

In 1820 Commodore Stephan Decatur, American naval hero was killed in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington. Barron believed Decatur was responsible for his removal from active Naval service.

In 1941 the Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River began producing electrical power in the Pacific Northwest.

In 1968 President Lyndon Johnson said he was replacing General William Westmoreland as commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: British novelist Cleghorn Gaskel said, "A man is so in the way in the house."

Ocean Garages

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world's largest seagoing garages carry up to 1,150 automobiles for the export and import trade. Cars driven through the stern ramp of Atlantic Container Line cargo ships are parked in special 5 foot-5 inch low-ceiling cargo holds for trans-atlantic passage between U.S. and European ports.

Bidding On A Weak Hand Can Sometimes Locate Key Cards

Much can be said in favor of bidding after an opponent has opened the auction, but there isn't much advantage in overcalling with a pitifully weak hand. You don't interfere with the enemy's bidding, and your bid serves only to tell declarer where the missing high cards are.

BAD BREAK

South won the first trick with the ace of spades, drew one round of trumps with the king and cleared the ace and king of diamonds out of the way. Then he led a trump to the ace, expecting to claim the rest of the tricks if the trumps happened to break 2-2.

When the trumps broke badly, South ruffed dummy's low diamond and cashed the ace of clubs. Then he led a trump to the queen and chased the queen of diamonds to get rid of the ten of clubs.

AT CROSSROADS

If nobody had bid, South might have led the queen of clubs from dummy for a ruffing finesse, expecting to discard a spade if East played low. This play would bring the slam home if East had the king of clubs. Since West had bid, however, South expected West to hold the king of clubs.

West had been forced to discard twice on the trumps and had thrown one low spade and then the nine of clubs. It was clear that West's last four cards were three spades and only one club. South therefore ruffed a club, dropping West's king.

EASY THEN

It was then easy to give up one spade and win the last two tricks in dummy with the last trump and the queen of clubs.

Good players have to know how to bid, it is true, but they should also know when to keep quiet.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens the bidding with 1-no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ K Q 9 7 6
♦ J 7 6 4
♣ K 9 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Jump to three spades, forcing to game.

Partner is expected to raise spades if he has three or more spades in his hand; otherwise he bids three no-trump.

SLOW, HARD DEGREE

Ex-Convict Tells His Story To Teen-Agers

By JOANNE GRANT

"I'm Kalir Shannon. I'm an ex-convict," the sometimes priestly sounding man said into the hushed stillness of the crowded Marin Catholic High School gymnasium.

"I graduated from the finest university in the world — the state penitentiary," he continued. Altogether (including parole time) it will take him 15 years to get his "degree," he said.

Shannon — now working as a busboy in a San Rafael restaurant — appeared yesterday at his own request to propose problem solving sessions between students and ex-convicts in a new phase of his growing one-man campaing to help.

Shannon of San Rafael, already spends most of his free time helping ex-cons find jobs, buy clothes and food and readjust to society.

Many of those he is working with are from the Marin County Jail — men on work-furlough and persons who have "graduated."

"I'm working with 19-year-olds here (at the jail), why wait until they get here?" he said as he explained his student talk in an interview before his appearance.

Shannon, neatly dressed in a suit and tie, didn't look, talk or act like the armed robber he once was, as he faced the high school students yesterday.

He spoke of authority, respect and love: "When you do not have authority you do not have respect and there can be no love unless you have respect."

"I hope you can imagine what it would be like to be in prison for 15 years and come out and see all these freaks running around," Shannon said.

The "freaks," such as those persons with long hair who look for flowers and rocks, do not respect authority, he said with the firmness of a man who has learned such respect the tough way.

Shannon described prison as a hell of extended suffering and terrible loneliness.

Convicts don't dream of women or dope. "There's plenty of dope in the joint" (his term for prison); they dream of getting out, he said.

Shannon reported the Marin Catholic principal told him a quarter of the students were on marijuana and indicated he believed there are more than that. The parolee stressed how unimportant it becomes in prison.

"I have a group of convicts who would be willing to come to the school, any school, and tell it like it is," Shannon said as he explained his plan for small group sessions aimed at keeping the young people out of jail.

Students who are interested in forming such groups may contact their school principals, Shannon said.

Fort Ord Court-Martial April 7 For 14 In Mutiny

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The court-martial of 14 young army privates charged with mutiny will open at Fort Ord April 7, the commanding general of the 6th U.S. Army announced at the Presidio today.

Five GIs in the group of 27 accused of mutiny because they held a sitdown during a roll call at the Presidio last Oct. 14 now are being tried in a court-martial at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Trials for four others among the 27 who were protesting a guard's fatal shooting of Pvt. Richard Bunch of Dayton, Ohio, during an alleged escape attempt already have been held at the Presidio and at Fort Irwin, San Bernardino County.

The remaining three among the 27 have escaped.

In announcing the court-martial next month at Fort Ord, the army said a site other than the Presidio was selected to insure a fair and impartial trial.

Attorney Terence Hallinan of San Francisco, who voiced strong criticism of the court-martial proceedings at the Presidio, will represent the 14 men at Fort Ord.

The Army listed these 14 as:

Stephen Roland, San Francisco; Michael Marino, Vacaville, Solano County; Ernest Trefethen, Ridgeway, Ontario; Richard Gentile, Hampton, Va.; Roy A. Pulley, Clear Lake Park, Lake County; Richard Duncan, St. Helena, Napa County; Danny L. Wilkins, Central, Utah; Francis Schiro and Danny R. Seales, Orangevale, Sacramento County; Buddy J. Shaw, Hayward; Larry Sales, Modesto; Richard Stevens, Centerville, Butte County; Allen L. Rupert, Bellingham, Wash.; and Patrick Wright, Santa Rosa.

Teen-Ager Held In TV Theft Check

A 19-year-old San Rafael youth was arrested Thursday on suspicion of burglary after police officers allegedly found him carrying a stolen television set out of a Sausalito home.

Michael John Pereira of 23 Fairfax Avenue, San Rafael, was held in Marin County Jail in lieu of $750 bail. He is to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment.

Police said officers investigating a complaint by neighbors about a suspicious person at 156 Spencer Avenue found Pereira carrying the portable television set up the front steps from the William J. Troy home.

Tired
Of The Life You Live?

The young mother had just finished reading an article describing some of the great advances in modern medical science.

She read of an artificial heart used to replace a human heart while it was undergoing repair. She read of an artificial kidney which added years of life to people who formerly would have been hopeless cases. She read of artificial lungs, eye transplants, restoration of severed limbs, and other unbelievable ways of restoring injured or worn-out parts of the human body.

"What's the use of replacing parts of one's body if life doesn't seem worth living anyway?" she said despondently to no one in particular. "If someone could discover a way to give a person a new life, then maybe I really would be interested."

The young woman didn't know the truth. It is possible for a person to get a new life! God made it possible.

"God loved the world so much that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may not die but have eternal life."*

For years Christians have been telling this good news. Yet the demand for new lives is not great. The reason is not that most men are satisfied with life as they now live it—for they aren't.

Perhaps they are so ashamed of their present life that they hesitate to approach God about a new one. Is this your reason? If so, you've forgotten that God has already taken the first step. He has made possible a new life at the cost of his Son—if you will come to him in faith.

Isn't the next step up to you?

The king-sized chair, which is 100 years old, was one of many gifts, including a car and a lifetime gold pass to NBA games, which Baylor received. Mays, Marichal & Co. Give San Diego A Good Lesson

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Two of baseball's best, Willie Mays and Juan Marichal, showed the San Diego Padres, newest entry in the National League, how it's done yesterday.

Mays, installed by manager Clyde King as the lead-off batter, ripped a two-run home run and Marichal gave up only one run in pitching six innings as the San Francisco Giants ran up a 9-6 Cactus League victory over the Padres. It was their fifth straight win and 10th in 13 exhibition games.

Mays rapped his four-bagger off veteran Johnny Podres, whose string of shutout innings was snapped at 12 2-3.

On the other hand, Marichal effectively checked the San Diego hitters during his stint which was marred by a solo homer by Clarence Gaston. It was the first run given up by Marichal this spring.

Mays, Ron Hunt and Hal Lanier each collected two hits to pace San Francisco's 14-hit attack off three Padres pitchers.

The Giants went into the ninth with a 9-1 bulge but the Padres rallied for five runs before ace reliever Frank Linzy finally retired the side.

Tony Gonzalez, reportedly being showcased by the Padres who are in need of a catcher, and Bill Davis each paired hits for the losers. In addition, Gonzalez drove in a pair of runs.

In today's action, San Diego travels to Yuma to meet Cleveland and San Francisco gos to Palm Springs to do battle with the California Angels.

McCovey's Sub To Get Pinch Hitting Duties

PHOENIX — Bob Burda would dearly love to qualify for the job Ty Cline held with the Giants last season — relieving Willie McCovey at first base, pinch hitting and substituting in the outfield when necessary.

Burda is a 30-year-old rookie whose baseball career has been spent in the minors. In Phoenix where he has been first baseman the past several years for the Pacific Coast League farm club of the Giants, Burda is No. 1 favorite of fans.

His admirers are convinced that he never was promoted to the big club because of circumstances, not lack of ability. The circumstances in Burda's case were created by a couple of standout first basemen, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey.

When McCovey staged a holdout this spring, Burda got a golden opportunity to play every day. And he made the most of the opportunity. He hit just like Clyde King said he would. King, now manager of the Giants, learned all about Burda last year when he managed Phoenix.

Approaching the midway mark of spring training, Burda was batting .395. He had four extra base hits, all doubles; eight RBIs and six runs personally scored. He struck out only twice and drew six walks.

"Naturally," said Burda, "I don't expect to beat out McCovey. He's the best first baseman in baseball. But I think I'm better suited than some players coming off the bench. I can make contact. And that is very important for a pinch hitter."

Only 18 Whiffs In 500 At-Bats

The fact that Burda struck out only twice in a consecutive string of 45 plate appearances while McCovey was negotiating a new two-year agreement, speaks for itself. In 500 trips to the plate for Phoenix last year he struck out only 18 times.

This will be Burda's 12th season in pro ball. He's come a long way since his first professional time at bat for York of the Eastern League in 1958. In his travels through the International, Southern Association and Pacific Coast Leagues he has been at bat nearly 5,000 times.

In brief periods with the Giants in 1965 and again in 1966, Burda got to bat just 84 times as a major leaguer. That is the extent of the 30-year-old rookie's big time experience.

There is no doubt Burda could do a commendable job filling in at first base for McCovey Whenever necessary. But Burda is no outfielder. That became quickly evident when King put him in rightfield for a three-inning stretch March 15 against the California Angels.

An Embarrassing Experience

Burda couldn't catch up with a fly ball off Jim De Neff's bat in the right center lane and it rolled to the fence for a two-run triple that scored Jim Spencer and Tom Egan.

King knew that Burda wasn't an outfielder. Was King trying to embarrass Burda? Far from it. Burda knew what King was up to. The new manager of the Giants (who never played Burda in the outfield at Phoenix) hoped Burda's ineffective patrol work would prompt one of the less competitive-minded youngsters on the roster to volunteer for patrol work.

No volunteers approached King or his coaches to say: "I can do better than that guy out there."

Seals Vs. Kings In Big Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Both the Los Angeles Kings and Oakland Seals have a lot at stake in their National Hockey League clashes tonight at the Forum and tomorrow at Oakland.

The Kings have a 4-0-2 record against the Seals this season but remain in third place behind Oakland in West Division play. Los Angeles brings a winning streak into the match, though, with a 3-1 victory Tuesday over Oakland, followed by a 4-2 decision over Detroit Thursday night.

The Seals have played two more games this season than the Kings so they realize how important the weekend contests are.

MIKE HIGGINS

Ex-Manager Mike Higgins Dies At 59

DALLAS (AP) — Former Boston Red Sox Manager Michael "Pinky" Higgins, American League Manager of the Year in 1955, is dead at the age of 59.

A spokesman at St. Paul's Hospital said Higgins died yesterday afternoon shortly after he was admitted to the emergency room with a heart ailment.

Higgins' death came only two days after he had been released from prison at Francisville, La., where he served two months of a four-year term on a negligent homicide charge.

Higgins pleaded guilty to a charge that his automobile killed a highway worker in 1968. Police said Higgins was driving while intoxicated.

Under Louisiana law, a first offender may be considered for parole at any time if his sentence is less than five years.

Higgins broke into the major leagues in 1930 with the Philadelphia Athletics.

SCARED ROOKIE

When Higgins was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in 1965, he recalled how scared he was making the train ride from Texas to join the Athletics.

Higgins said he thought he had to furnish his own bats, so he carried two on the train with him. He was so afraid of losing them, he said he carried them everywhere and even slept with them.

In 1938, Higgins established a major league record of 12 consecutive hits. The record still stand, although it was later tied by Walt Dropo.

FIELDING RECORDS

Two years later, while playing for Detroit, Higgins set three World Series fielding records that still stand. They include most chances in a game, 10; most assists in a game, 9; and seven-game series record of 34 chances, four putouts and 30 assists. His lifetime batting average was .292.

The Red Sox were rated a second-division team when Higgins took the helm in 1955 but he guided them to a fourth-place finish and was named Manager of the Year.

Funeral arrangements have not been made, pending arrival of relatives from overseas.

Warriors Wind Up Schedule

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors conclude their regular National Basketball Association season against New York tonight hopeful they'll get a better turnout for Fan Appreciation Night at the Cow Palace.

A slim turnout of only 2,897 showed up at the Oakland Coliseum Arena last night for the East Bay fan night as the Warriors, with reserve Bill Turner pumping in key baskets, hustled to a 103-100 victory over the fledgling Milwaukee Bucks.

PLAYOFF BERTH

Turner scored seven of the last night points as San Francisco assured itself of at least a .500 season record. The win upped the Warriors' record to 41-40, good enough for third place and a Western Division playoff berth.

The Warriors led by as much as 14 points midway in the final quarter when the Bucks went on a 14-5 tear to cut the deficit to 94-89.

That's when Turner swung into action with his key baskets. All told, he wound up with 23 points, three less than teammate Jeff Mullins, who tanked a game-high of 26.

RACING'S SENIOR CITIZENS

Brennen, Leslie At Sears

Two senior citizens of road racing, Merle Brennen of Reno and Ed Leslie of Monterey, will be driving as the San Francisco British Motor Cars team entry next Saturday and Sunday in the Sears Point International Raceway's first road race.

The event, sanctioned by San Francisco Region of Sports Car Club of America, is the first race of the season for SCCA.

The two well known drivers have been longtime favorites in Northern California. Brennen, in his MGB, and Leslie, in an MGC, will have extra assurance in cars prepared by veteran designer - builder Joe Huffaker of Novato.

Brennen, who thrilled fans with his ability in an XKE, has recently been driving a very reliable McLaren. Leslie, a grandfather, has been seen on tracks from Cotati to Sebring, Fla. He co-drove a Lola-Chevy to second place in the recent Daytona 24-hour endurance race.

Jim Dittemore of Redondo Beach, driving a C-Production TR-6, and Lee Mueller of Lynwood in an F-Production Spitfire, will enter as Triumph Team, both cars Kastner-prepared in Los Angeles.

More than 200 entries have already been received for the two-day meeting at the new raceway, located off Highway 121 near its junction with Highway 37 in southern Sonoma County. Races will be for regional and national points, with some of the new drivers out of the SCCA training school getting their first try, also.

Qualifying for national drivers begins at 9 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday. Racing begins at 11 a.m. Sunday. Admission is $5 either day, or for the entire weekend.

Six-Way Logjam In Golf

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino, the voluble Latin who learned his golf playing in tensomes with a Dr. Pepper bottle, threw down the gauntlet today to his fellow pros.

"I think I can win the Masters," said the colorful Mexican-American, who is reigning U.S. Open king.

"All you got to do at Augusta, Ga., is putt — don't three-putt any greens. And I feel real good about my putting. Honestly, I believe I can do it."

Trevino's confidence was buoyed by his second straight 69 yesterday in the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open, which put him into a rare six-way tie for first place at 138, six under par.

Lee has pretty powerful company in the form of comebacking Arnold Palmer, who has shown he can still explode birdies in the stretch; 41-year-old Lionel Hebert; Gardner Dickinson, the same age; Ken Still, who won a couple of weeks ago at Orlando, and the 20-year-old Bobby Cole of South Africa, who can belt a ball as far as Jack Nicklaus despite a 135-pound physique.

SLIM LEAD

This front-running sixsome has only a stroke lead over a half-dozen others going into the third round over the 7,221-yard, par 72 Deerwood course.

The runner-up group at 139 includes Australian Bruce Crampton, Jack McGowan, Ray Floyd, Bob Smith, Frank Beard and the astonishing Rives McBee.

McBee equaled the day's best round—a 67, shared by the veteran Bob Rosburg—and thus brought back memories of the record-tying 64 he shot in the National Open at San Francisco in 1966.

Beard shot a 70, although he was informed on the second hole that his wife in Louisville had just given birth to their third child, a girl.

BASEBALL GRIP

Rosburg, 42, user of an unorthodox baseball grip and an infrequent tour player, is one of a half-dozen at 140, while some of the game's most dangerous players are another shot back at 141.

These include Nicklaus, 69-72; Bill Casper, leading money-winner of 1968, with 71-70; South Africa's Gary Player, 72-69; Tom Wieskopf, 69-72, and Doug Sanreds, 71-70, not to mention half a dozen others.

Trevino, who is threatening Palmer for gallery appeal, continued his wisecracking repartee with the crowd while tossing in his pars and birdies, but he said such antics don't disturb him.

"Man, I can joke with a guy in one second and turn it off just like that," he said. "When I get ready to make my shot, I am in a shell. I forget everything and everybody."

He said he almost won the Masters a year ago.

"Going into the last round I

Some Progress Reported In Realignment Meeting

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — The 26 club owners of the American and National Football Leagues scattered for home today, thoughts of 4-4-5 dancing in their heads.

They also were thinking of April in New York, because that's when and most likely where they'll start negotiating again on realignment for 1970.

The leagues recessed their winter meetings last night after making some progress in five days of separate and joint sessions but not nearly enough to determine the form pro football will take after this coming season.

The key to a solution lies in the 4-4-5 concept—divisions of those numbers of teams in two 13-team conferences. Using this philosophy, which the AFL likes but which the NFL is cool about, realignment could be achieved in one of two ways:

MOVE TEAMS

1. Move two or three NFL teams into the AFL. If two, divide the 12-team AFL into three units of four and the 14-team NFL into two fives and a four. If three, divide the resulting 13-team conferences into divisions of four, four and five. Each of the NFL teams would go into different NFL-AFL divisions.

2. Take the two four-team divisions in the NFL's Western Conference and place them with the AFL's five-team Eastern Division, and place the two four-team divisions of the NFL's Eastern Conference with the AFL's five-team Western Division.

While the first idea seemed far-fetched a few days ago because it seemed unlikely that any AFL teams would be willing to switch, the Associated Press has learned that at least one and possibly as many as three NFL teams have expressed some sympathy toward the move.

Baltimore appears to be the key team, with owner Carroll Rosenbloom reportedly willing to move if he can name the other team or two that would go with the Colts.

Minnesota and Dallas are other possibilities, although General Manager Jim Finks of Minnesota denied that the Vikings would go along.

The AFL, of course, would be delighted to have these teams. The NFL, on the other hand, is not exactly thrilled with the prospect of giving up three of its four division champions from last season.

The second plan would keep present divisions intact and would solve at least two problems. It would place the two New York teams, the AFL Jets and the NFL Giants, in separate conferences, and it would put the AFL Cincinnati Bengals in the same conference with the NFL Cleveland Browns.

TV MARKET

The New York separation is dictated by television—both of the two networks that would handle the two TV packages would insist on the New York market, the nation's largest.

When the AFL owners recessed after 9½ hours yesterday, league President Milt Woodward said: "Our people are interested in nothing else but getting equality in the two divisions. We want equality. There's no doubt about that. We'll take any good arrangement of 13 and 13. We can work it out."

With these feelings rampant, the AFL owners quickly rejected an NFL proposal yesterday to institute the 16-10 with interleague games for a period of time starting in 1970 to see how it would work out.

Most Prep Sports Washed Out But Swim Favorites Triumph

Rain and wet grounds yesterday cut a thick swath through high school sports activities except the one in which water counts the most.

The 1969 Marin County Athletic League swimming season opened right on schedule with the three major expected powerhouses taking easy dual-meet victories, but the track season failed to open as three league-opening MCAL meets went down the drain because of wet tracks.

Also washed out was an entire baseball slate, as only a non-league track meet and a spatter of tennis matches came off.

WEAKER FOES

In swimming, Tamalpais, of Mill Valley, Redwood and Novato blasted weaker opponents in grand fashion. Tam's Indians whipped Terra Linda, 65-29 as veteran Bruce Averill won the 200 yard individual medley and the 100 backstroke and Tom Smiley also won a pair of events.

Redwood, as expected handled San Marin easily, 74-19 at Larkspur with sophomore Brian Hennesey winning a pair of events. Mike Roark set a Redwood record of 2:14.3 in the 200 I.M., and Ken James set a mark of 4:11.4 in the 400 freestyle.

Novato's flock of talented freestylers took care of host San Rafael, 72-23, as Bill Kuhn won a pair of events.

TAM SECOND

In other prep sports, Tamalpais finished second in a four way track meet at Ukiah, behind Santa Rosa and ahead of Ukiah and El Molino of Forestville.

Luther Brown, hurdling for the second time in his track career, won both the high and low hurdles for Tam, in 15.1 and 20.4 seconds. The Indian mile relay team turned in a winning 3:32.2 effort behind Bill Baker, Pat Bowen, Mark Miller and Brown. Miller won the 880 in 2:03.7 and Kit Healy captured the two-mile run in 10:06.

In tennis, Tamalpais whipped Vallejo, 5-1, at Mill Valley as Andy Moffat, Jeff Griffeath, Jan Brink and Andy Stevens won in singles and Bill Everetts and Tim Morgan took a doubles win.

Terra Linda lost to Alameda, 4-2, at Terra Linda.

Also in tennis, unbeaten Redwood (3-0) blanked Washington of San Francisco, 6-0 at Redwood.

Baltimore's Ugly Ducklings Now Cinderella Fellas

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Baltimore Bullets, the ugly ducklings of 1968, are the glamorous Cinderella team of 1969 in the National Basketball Association.

The Bullets clinched the Eastern Division championship by whipping the Chicago Bulls 115-103 last night. They thus became only the second team in NBA history to jump from last to first in one season. Indianapolis did it in 1950.

Paced by Earl Monroe's 41 points, the Bullets pulled away in the last five minutes with a string of 12 straight points that broke an 89-89 tie.

Gene Shue, the happy Baltimore coach, gave full credit to Monroe. "The turning point in our success came last year when Monroe assumed the leadership of the team after we traded Don Ohl to the Hawks," he said.

"Everyone thought we would fold two months ago when Gus Johnson, our leading rebounder, was injured," continued Shue as he was doused with champagne by his players in the dressing room at Chicago.

"But we not only came back, we did even better than anyone expected. Monroe has been unbelieveable this year and his play has given this team the lift that it needed. As a team, I've never seen such a complete effort."

The New York Knicks, fighting to overtake Philadelphia for second place, crept within one game of the 76ers by routing the Phoenix Suns 139-104.

Boston walloped Cincinnati 145-119, Detroit downed Seattle 110-104, San Francisco edged Milwaukee 103-100 and Los Angeles scored a 116-103 victory over Atlanta in other NBA games.

Sam Jones' 23 points paced the easy Boston victory over the Royals. Dave Gambee tallied 32 points in leading Detroit over Seattle. Dave Bing of Detroit got four assists to set a club record of 531 in one season. Shue held the old mark of 530, set in 1961, before he became the Baltimore coach.

The Knicks exploded for an 80-point second half to rout the Suns behind a balanced attack led by Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier, both with 24. Jeff Mullins paced San Francisco over the Bucks with 26 points.

The Lakers held an Elgin Baylor Night and the veteran 34-year-old Laker captain responded with 21 points against Atlanta.

Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the NBA, and Baylor's parents were among those who honored Baylor in a 40-minute ceremony before the game. The former Seattle University star received numerous gifts, including a lifetime NBA pass and a car.

Tribe Ace Seeks 20-Victory Mark

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam McDowell, the strikeout king of the American League, has set his sights on becoming a 20-game winning pitcher for the Cleveland Indians this season.

McDowell, a 26-year-old lefthander, rang up 283 strikeouts last year and, while he had a tidy earned run average of 1.81, he also led the A.L. in giving bases on balls, 110.

This tendency to wildness got McDowell in trouble on numerous occasions and turned what might have been a great season into just an ordinary one. He finished with a 15-14 record.

"I'm concentrating this year on keeping the ball down," he said after pitching five scoreless innings as he and Jack Hamilton combined for a four-hit 3-0 shutout of California in an exhibition game yesterday.

McDowell's concentration apparently is doing fine. He did not issue a pass in the five innings he worked against the Angels, while yielding three hits and striking out only one.

SIMS HOMERS

Tony Horton's sacrifice fly and a home run by Duke Sims gave Cleveland two runs in the sixth and gained Hamilton the victory. Hamilton was touched for just one hit in four innings.

Los Angeles snapped the six-game winning streak of the New York Yankees 9-0 in a night game and St. Louis had ended the five-game streak of the New York Mets 5-3.

Wes Parker's two-run homer in the second gave the Dodgers all the runs they needed as Don Drysdale, Bob Darwin and Jim Brewer yielded only four singles to the Yankees. An error by third baseman Amos Otis led to three St. Louis runs in the seventh as the Cardinals came from behind to down the Mets.

Baltimore erupted for 11 runs in a big fifth inning and went on to rout Washington 11-2 in a night game. A ninth-inning homer by rookie infielder Syd O'Brien gave Boston a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox and Detroit also came up with a ninth-inning rally to defeat Philadelphia 4-2.

Las Vegas Raceway Is Closed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Stardust Raceway, site of one of the six Can-Am auto races, will close permanently, a spokesman for the owners said yesterday.

Nat Fields, raceway publicity director, said damage caused by recent rain makes the two-mile track west of Las Vegas uneconomical to repair.

The Can-Am is the second major sporting event to leave Las Vegas in two months. The Tournament of Champions golf tournament was transferred Feb. 3 from the Stardust Country Club to Rancho La Costa, Calif.

The Stardust Hotel was sold just before that by a group headed by Moe Dalitz, who has holdings in the Rancho La Costa course, to the Parvin-Dohrmann Co. of Los Angeles.

SEVERAL EVENTS

The track, which opened in 1965, hosted the Can-Am events in 1966-68, two United States road racing events in 1967 and 1968, the Stardust 150 in 1968, the Trans-Am in 1967, three drag racing open events and regular Saturday night drag meets.

Fields said the racing events "couldn't make it in Las Vegas." He said the track needs 15,000 to 20,000 spectators to break even at a big event. Not enough hotel rooms in Las Vegas were allocated for the event, he said.

Fields said Las Vegas' proximity to Riverside (about 250 miles) and the Can-Am being the third one in the West each year were other drawbacks.

Other Can-Am races are held in Riverside, Monterey, Bridgehampton, N.Y., Elkhart, Wis., and at Edmunton, Alta.

Cover Up Shooting Is What It's Called

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — "I wouldn't say I got a poor shooting ball club," said Michigan State basketball coach John Bennington.

"But the other day the players had been firing away for some time before they realized the canvas covers hadn't been removed from the baskets. Funny thing, but the coaches hadn't noticed it either."

Athletics Snap Losing Streak

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—The Oakland Athletics, fresh from snapping a three-game losing streak, faced Cleveland today in a Cactus League exhibition game.

In a windy, 32-hit slugging match, the A's scored seven runs in the second inning yesterday and routed the Chicago Cubs 15-8.

Oakland belted out pitcher George Bosworth, sending 12 batters to the plate in the hot inning. The winners blended eight hits with a walk, error and balk.

Pitcher Chuck Dobson helped win his own game by bashing a double that ignited a string of seven straight hits. Included in the carnage were two A's homers by Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson, the latter an inside-the-park blast.

Clendenon Deal Still In A Snarl

NEW YORK (AP) — The controversy over Donn Clendenon involving the Montreal Expos and the Houston Astros hasn't ended, even though Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has stepped into the case.

The fuss began in January after the Astros traded Rusty Staub to Montreal for Clendenon and Jesus Alou followed by Clendenon's announcement that he was retiring from baseball to enter business in Atlanta.

Kuhn ruled yesterday that Clendenon's contract reverted to Montreal and ordered the Expos to place him on the voluntary retired list by March 31 unless they can persuade him to play again.

Kuhn also upheld the Staub-Alou swap and told the clubs to reach an agreement on a replacement for Clendenon by March 26. If they do not, Kuhn said, he will hold a hearing March 27 to determine a fair settlement.

NO RIGHT

Kuhn's statement brought a retort from Spec Richardson, vice president and general manager of the Houston club, that in the Astros' view the commissioner did not have any right to make a settlement even though the Expos and Astros are at an impasse.

"We plan to go to court over this matter," said Richardson at the Houston camp in Cocoa, Fla.

He said Judge Roy Hofheinz, president of the Astros, would hold an important press conference today in Cocoa.

Sifford Blames PGA For Masters Barrier

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Sifford puffed hot smoke from a black cigar and blamed the Professional Golfers Association for the fact that a Negro has never played in the Masters tournament.

"They're just scared of that man Clifford Roberts, who conceived and directs the famed April spectacle in Augusta, Ga." the 45-year-old black professional said yesterday.

"If they had spunk, they'd tell that man that the top 60 money-winners must play or they will hold their players out."

Sifford, who failed to make the cut after shooting 75-72—147 in the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open, has long waged a campaign to break the color barrier in the Masters.

Roberts has consistently insisted that Sifford—or any other Negro—would be allowed to play if he met the qualifying standards. The Masters has certain qualifying procedures, but some players— such as foreigners—are invited carte blanche.

"We have rules in other tournaments and we once made the Colonial accept the 60 top money-winners," Sifford said. "I think the Masters should be made to do the same."

Then the mustachioed Negro veteran shrugged his shoulders and sighed:

AFFECTS GAME

"I don't give a darn about the Masters," he said, "but it's beginning to bug me. People are always saying things about my not playing there when I ought to. It's affecting my game."

Former Australian Jim Ferrier said the Masters field is one of the weakest on the tour because it is padded with amateurs and foreigners who don't play up to the pro tour standard.

"I have carried on a long writing campaign with Bob Jones," Ferrier said. "Bob has been nice, but he insists that the Masters doesn't want to change its format."

Doug Ford, a former Masters champion and ex-member of the PGA tournament committee, said:

"We are always talking with Roberts, trying to get the tour winners and better players into the tournament, but he won't budge. It's a losing battle."

Andretti Raps Slowpokes In Sebring Unduro Field

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A field of 65 sports cars starting the 12-hour Sebring Endurance Race today included only 16 serious contenders for the championship, and some of the world's best drivers in those contenders would like to weed out the slower chaff.

"Does that car going 60 miles an hour add to the show?" asked Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., pointing to one of the slowest qualifiers. "I doubt that," he answered his own question. "You can see that on the freeway."

Andretti, a winner at Indianapolis, around the American big car stock racing circuit and all over the world in sports cars, had the fastest car in qualifying. His driving partner, Chris Amon of New Zealand, was at the wheel of the brand new 12-cylinder Ferrari which turned a lap of the flat 5.2-mile course at just under 117 miles an hour.

Another major contender, Lucien Bianchi of Belgium in a new Alfa-Romeo, echoed Andretti's sentiment about racing fast and slow cars together.

REQUIRED SPEED

"It's terrible," Bianchi said. "In Europe, there is a required speed to qualify for a race."

Jackie Ickx, fast-rising Belgian star who is driving a Ford GT40, said he feels there are too many cars in the corners at Sebring. But he wouldn't go as strong as some of the more experienced drivers.

Mark Donohue of Philadelphia, second fastest qualifier in a Lola Chevy, wouldn't criticize the slow cars or drivers at all.

"If you don't like the guys you are racing against, you don't have to race," was Donohue's comment. "Let everybody race is the way I see it. It makes it just as tough on the next guy trying to pass in the turns as it does on me."

The fast field at Sebring was more diversified than in recent years. Two Ferraris, four Lola Chevrolets, two Ford GT40s, three Alfa-Romeos and five Porsches were the real contenders.

Others were racing for honors within various classes or just for the privilege of telling their friends and relatives how they competed against the best in the world.

Bowlers who wish to roll consistently must pay attention to the position of the thumb at address, or when the ball is held at the waist line prior to the pushout. Today's bowler has positioned her thumb slightly left, or at about 11 o'clock, to obtain a hook. The wrist is held rigid throughout the approach until the release, when it turns slightly counter-clockwise.

COMBINED AP & UPI

ALBANY — It was almost like a page out of a happy-ending novel or movie.

Steve Goldsmith, who was told he may never ride again because of shrapnel wounds suffered while serving in Vietnam, celebrated his return to racing yesterday when he booted home both ends of a $732.40 daily double at Golden Gate Fields.

The victories were only the second and third of the purple heart winner's career. He scored his only other victory at Caliente in 1966, and a week later was in the Army.

Yesterday, the 22-year-old jockey scored on Woman Driver $43 and Panda Kid $80.80. A total of 104 $2 tickets were sold on the 3-8 combination.

AUTO RACING

LONG BEACH — Mickey Thompson, who has driven cars more than 400 miles per hour, was stopped short yesterday.

He was also virtually speechless at a surprise party in his honor when a special California State Senate resolution lauding his racing accomplishments was presented by Sen. Joseph M. Kennick of Long Beach.

Thompson also received a "key" to Long Beach where his automotive factory is and an award from Alhambra where he was reared.

FOOTBALL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Albert Favill, president of the Indianapolic Capitols of the Continental Football League, said he has agreed to pay O. J. Simpson $400,000 for one season, but set April 1 as a deadline for Simpson to accept.

BALTIMORE — Ordell Brase, 37-year-old defensive end for the Baltimore Colts, who played 12 seasons with the National Football League, announced his retirement.

WHEN WILL AMERICA LAND A MAN ON THE MOON?

When will the first American Astronaut set foot on the moon? This June? This summer? Exactly when? You can share in the excitement of the momentous event by guessing precisely when it will be. And if you win—well, take a look at the prizes!

WIN

A 2-week trip for two anywhere on earth!

2ND PRIZE a 2-week all-expense vacation for two, Cocoa Beach, Cape Kennedy

to view a future space shot

3RD PRIZE $100.00 in cash—for fun money

ENTER THIS EXCITING CONTEST NOW!

IT'S STRICTLY FOR FUN. YOU CAN WIN!

Here's all you do:

Fill out the entry blank shown (or use a postal card facsimile) to guess the year, month, day, hour, minute and second that the first American Astronaut steps on to the surface of the moon.

Why the contest?

The contest, co-sponsored by the Independent-Journal and Today, the newspaper of Cape Kennedy, is offered as a novel guessing game for our readers — and as a means of recognizing the nation's space program. It's fun, it's out of this world!

SOME TIPS TO AID YOU ON YOUR GUESS

The Space Agency (NASA) has provided for readers the most likely times for the first landing attempt. These "windows" are the days when the Apollo spacecraft can reach pre-selected sites on the moon. The best "window" days include: April 18-24; June 16-22; July 15-22 and August 14-21. While most space experts talk of a June, 1969 landing, some predict it could come as early as April. Others believe it will not come until August. Watch for further news from NASA on the moon landing. And keep the above dates in mind in making your best guess. Happy landing!

Sponsored by the

Independent-Journal

and TODAY the newspaper of Cape Kennedy

RULES

1. ANY MAN, woman or child in the U.S. is eligible to enter except employees of the Independent-Journal and Today, the newspaper of Cape Kennedy and families.)
2. DEADLINE for entries is May 1, 1969. Entries must contain year, month, day, hour, minute and second to be eligible. Official time will be that registered by NASA as the time the first astronaut steps onto the surface of the moon. If astronauts do not leave the lunar module, the time will be the instant the module landed on moon's surface.
3. THE WINNING ENTRY will be that with the exact EASTERN STANDARD TIME or closest to it. Do not worry about difference in the time zones. The time you send in will be judged on the assumption it is Eastern Standard Time.
4. ENTRIES must be mailed to: MOON CONTEST, INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL, P.O. BOX 330, San Rafael, Calif. 94902. Use entry blank herewith or facsimile.
5. FIRST PRIZE: Two-week all-expense paid vacation for two anywhere on earth winner selects. Trip must be completed within one year from date of notification. Second prize: 2-week all-expense paid vacation for two to Cocoa Beach at Cape Kennedy to view future space shot. Third prize: $100 cash. Decision of the judges final.

Bridge District Bus Plan: It's Time To Take Plunge

"I CAN'T FOR THE LIFE of me understand this euphoric expectation that all our troubles will be solved if only the bridge district relieves Greyhound of its bus obligations and buys 'new modern buses.' Commuters aren't going to patronize the latter for such a reason.

"The only way commuters will turn back to buses is if they provide faster service than private cars. But I have heard nothing about really setting up special lanes; on the other hand I've heard it likely can't be done.

"Isn't this thing really a snow job, to perpetuate the bridge district and bail out Greyhound in one fell swoop?

"The suggestion that the bridge district devote its revenues to a true rapid transit system and a tube makes a lot more sense. I am not objecting to continued tolls if the money goes for a good purpose. What I am objecting to is wasting it on a bus system no speedier — and likely less extensive — than what we have, operated by a firm with no bus experience.

"This is not a 'letter to the editor.' I'd simply like to see the I-J get to the heart of the matter."

THE COMMUTER WHO wrote the above did a pretty good job of setting forth views commonly held, and raising questions commonly asked.

Let's examine some of those views and some of those questions (not necessarily in the order in which they were stated).

Let's look first at the rapid transit system with tube. If everyone could agree today that we want to proceed full steam toward a rapid transit rail system to haul commuters to and from San Francisco via underwater tube, it would take perhaps 10 years to bring the project to function.

Everybody is not agreed. It would take longer.

Marin conceivably would agree to finance its end; that is, all construction from water's edge to wherever it may go in the county.

The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District conceivably could agree to underwrite (perhaps with federal and/or state assistance) the construction of the costly underwater tube from Marin to San Francisco.

But it is difficult if not impossible to imagine the City and County of San Francisco readily agreeing to meet the costs of adding its end of a Marin leg to the rapid transit system now a-building.

In any event, it is certain that present congestion would become unendurable before such a system could be brought into being.

IF WE ARE TO REMEDY the rapidly-worsening situation even on an interim basis we cannot wait for rapid transit.

That leaves ferries and/or buses.

If you look at downtown Tiburon during the business day, you see one large headache connected with either trains or ferries. There must be acres of space to park cars.

The present Tiburon ferry carries only a relative handful of commuters but those few jam Tiburon parking each day. Imagine how much parking space would be necessary for all commuters to ride ferries! Or trains!

Only a bus has the capability of running around city streets to pick up passengers near home, making it possible to leave cars at home.

A bus on a reserve lane could do the job. It could get started sooner with far less capital outlay.

RESERVE LANES?

If it is not possible to amend state law to authorize and direct the state construction of reserve lanes for buses, perhaps a local authority (the bridge district?) could float revenue bonds to build a special overhead roadway for buses, similar to the overhead rail lines which BART will utilize in places in the East Bay. Unlike rail cars, buses can come down off the overhead and circulate about the surface to pick up passengers.

One manufacturer is even experimenting with an electric bus which would carry batteries big enough to permit it to operate briefly on city streets before returning to its trolley or third-rail on the overhead.

Such a bus system could use the present Golden Gate Bridge. Trains on rails could never do that very satisfactorily.

In San Francisco, it may be possible to establish a one-way buses-only route into and out of downtown, similar to the one-way, buses-only routes into and away from Candlestick Park at game time.

WILL PEOPLE RIDE buses?

A/C Transit in the East Bay has experienced something like a 70 per cent increase in passengers since it replaced the old Key System buses.

Better equipment, better schedules and better service does result in increased traffic.

Even on an interim basis until reserve lanes are established (or constructed) it is not unreasonable to expect that a new operator would give better service and attract more passengers to buses.

A/C Transit runs an operating deficit of about 1.5 million dollars a year.

The Golden Gate Bridge presently makes a "profit" of about 3 million dollars a year.

The bridge obviously could operate a deficit bus system, if need be, without putting any increased tax burden on property owners.

CAN THE BRIDGE DISTRICT DO the job where Greyhound has failed?

The new look in the operations of the Golden Gate Bridge District would indicate that prospects would be good. There have been more constructive improvements in bridge operation in the past few months than in the previous decade.

The district has fresh, vigorous new staff management (headed by Dale Luehring) and a revitalized board showing many new faces.

Luehring, himself, has had considerable prior experience in various phases of transportation.

For more than a decade Greyhound hasn't tried. Deterioration has been allowed to take its toll.

A change could NOT make matters worse.

A public agency responsive to public needs and wishes — as the newly constituted bridge board is more likely to be — would be a far better bet than Greyhound to succeed.

WHAT HAPPENS TO MARIN TRANSIT District?

It should continue in being and set about the job of preparing to meet the growing need for inter-county public transportation which a bridge district-operated commute system cannot be expected to provide.

Step one can be taken now — get the bridge district into the bus operation business (while the getting is good).

Step two can begin now, too — start toward providing reserve lanes (or overhead exclusive roadways) for commute buses.

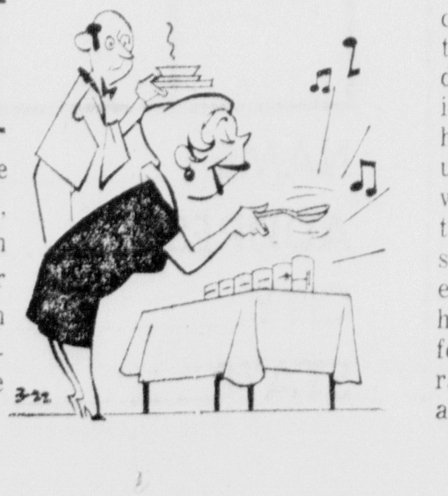
Greyhound's past failures and the bridge board's past mis-deeds should not be used as measuring sticks for finding a new bus plan wanting.

It's time to quit talking (and quit paying for endless studies). It's time to take the plunge.

—Jack Craemer

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF



A neatly dressed lady entered a lunch room recently, calmly ordered five glasses and a spoon, filled the glasses with verying amounts of water, and proceeded to play "Melancholy Baby" on them. Other customers stopped eating to applaud her performance, and the irate proprietor told her angrily, "Hey, you can't do that in here! Why don't you play your song with glasses in your own kitchen?" "I can't," she explained patiently. "All we've got home is paper cups."

Divorce Reform Should Proceed

Now that California divorce reform is conforming to United States Divorce Reform's concept of "no fight" divorce, the concept should be carried out in full, with "arbitration boards" set up to hear the troubles and made the decisions.

Senator Grunsky says adversary proceedings are being eliminated, so we do not need attorneys. The money now being paid to attorneys would go into the county treasury to offset the cost of the arbitration boards.

In Marin County this would result in a rather tidy sum. Additionally, the taxpayers would benefit in the reduced cost of the byproducts of divorce, aid-to-needy children, welfare, delinquency, crime, etc.

Most important, we would stop exploiting the family for profit, and start stablizing it.

Dismayed By Vote On Rev. King Day

I was dismayed to read in tonight's (March 14) Independent-Journal that Sen. Jack McCarthy voted with the majority in the Senate Rules Committee to table the resolution declaring April 4 as Martin Luther King Day. It is difficult to believe that anyone who has ever read one of Dr. King's speeches or books all the way through could seriously think that he was influenced by or associated with communism . . .

In my opinion Dr. King was one of our greatest and truest Americans; this opinion was shared by a great part of the rest of the world. The rejection by the Senate Rules Committee is no reflection on Martin Luther King, but it does seem a sad reflection on the California Legislature.

Blue Shield Rapped For Slow Service

It was interesting to note that in the recent meeting of the California Medical Association three new trustees were appointed to direct the affairs of the California Blue Shield, (non-profit) now processing (or attempting to do so) Medicare claims.

One of the new appointees, a medic, resident of Downey, Los Angeles County, being one of the two counties in California serviced by Medicare recipients by the Occidental Insurance Co. Payments for legitimate and proper claims are made in a maximum of 14 working days.

In contrast the numerous thousands mis-serviced in the rest of California by California Blue Shield Medicare members must wait for 30 days minimum to as long as five months to be compensated for their Medicare monies paid to physicians.

The writer sincerely hopes the new trustees will correct this sloppy and inefficient manner California Blue Shield is now processing Medicare claims.

Is is necessary for a picket line of 65'ers marching in front of the California Street address of Blue Shield to get action? I hope not.

LINES ON LIVING

Self-Ignorance Can Destroy Joy Of Life

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

The Roman philosopher, Boethius, was not exaggerating when hundreds of years ago he warned his contemporaries: "In other living creatures ignorance of self is nature; in man it is vice." Worse yet, it is self-destructive.

Self-ignorance inevitably leads to self-affliction and self-denial. A person who has no real awareness of himself and of his needs will soon deny himself his legitimate and necessary requirements to keep body and soul alive in unitive harmony, and thereby constrict his total personality. His unfulfilled potentialities, the need for personal fulfillment and the reality of his self-repression, will cause him neurotic conflict and misery. His unused powers will bring upon him the inner torment which will make him turn against himself by sinking in morbid self-rejection, futility and self-strangulation. He will be anguished by the distemper of intellectual shrinkage echoed in William Blake's classic warning: "He who desires but acts not, breeds pestilence."

THE MALADY of neurotic conflict in our society is conspicuous by the absence of creative and inspirational activities in the life of the individual. There is a void in the individual's inner sanctum of his true self; there is a lack of unity and dignity of personal worth, of inward integration; there is a separateness in the soul, a bleak and shadowy emptiness in the dark cave of his hidden self whence crawl forth constricting fears, irrational impulses, irritability, and a general distaste for life.

Neurotic fear, modern psychologists explain, is real. But the person who is afflicted with it is masking himself and his true feelings — from himself, against himself. He is its first victim. He conspires in committing self-suicide on the installment plan. He lives without the enjoyment of life; he works without the satisfaction of creative fulfillment.

THE INSIGHTS of religion and psychology can bring us to new insights, revelations and experiences. We can shed our exterior subjective selves to witness the light of objective truth, to discover some new ethical and divine possibilities of standing "outside ourselves," so that in the end we may find our true selves.

All of us can witness the wonder of the Burning Bush in the arid desert of what may be a meaningless and unfulfilled existence. Each human person has the potential for the revelation of inward bliss.

Hanoi Withholds Offensive; Pertinent Question Is, 'Why?'

SAIGON — Secretaries of defense have come and gone in the nearly eight years of this Americanized war, with full pomp and ceremony, and in the end the impact more often than not has been that of a feather falling gently on velvet. Melvin Laird, speaking privately not only with the authority of his office but with a shrewd knowledge of how short is the grace period for the Nixon administration, made a deep impression.

In talking with President Nguyen Van Thieu and the top Vietnamese, he put it firmly but politely. Yes, he said, we have a new administration in Washington. We have some time. No one can say how much time. It may be as little as six months, possibly 10 months.

Laird meant, of course, the deadline for beginning the withdrawal of American demonstrating that the war can gradually be brought to an end. In light of the shortness of the grace period before the Nixon administration is saddled with the onus of the war as was the Johnson administration, this is one of the most delicate and difficult moments in the long and tragic conflict.

THE UNCERTAINTY lies in what this reporter is convinced is a little understood fact. The offensive of the National Liberation Front and North Vietnam that began on Feb. 23 is being deliberately limited. The resources of men and weapons the communits have at their command could stir up almost as much of a storm as in the Tet offensive a year ago. While in the end they would be stopped, they could give United States-South Vietnamese forces a very bad time.

The question is whether they mean to continue to limit this offensive. If they do, then in the view of the highest American authority here there is no reason why troop withdrawals cannot be planned to begin some time in the late summer or early fall.

That is the American intention as from day to day, from hour to hour, the offensive is monitored. The communists have more than 40,000 troops within 45 miles of Saigon. They have not moved those troops up for an attack on the capital.

If they were to be committeed to an all-out assault, if the sporadic pocketing of the cities should be greatly increased, all bets on withdrawal would be off. President Nixon would be compelled to retaliate in one way or another. The war would again seem to be endless, with the fearful drain of men and resources continuing into and indefinite future.

THE PERTINENT question is why the communits should deliberately limit their offensive. American officials reply that, while they have the resources for a much more extended attack, they are hurting.

But let's say for the sake of argument that this appraisal by American officialdom is, as frequently in the past, an exercise in wishful thinking. There would still be a reason for limiting the current attack. Having established that they can launch an offensive at any time they choose, they can be holding the present attack to a relatively moderate limit to open the way for a compromise settlement of the war.

They think in terms not of one year or two or three years but of decades. Therefore, with even a minority position in the government in South Vietnam they could anticipate that in five years or 10 years after the Americans had moved out, they could achieve their goal of control of all Vietnam. During this interval they could take full advantage of the American aid offer to rebuild the stricken country.

PRESIDENT THIEU has said publicly that he anticipates the withdrawal of up to 100,000 American troops this year. That is roughly double the number being considered in American planning. It would be made plain, however, that this is only a beginning.

Thieu never speaks of withdrawal but of replacement of American units with South Vietnam units. In a recent talk with a high American official he remarked, "We are so strong now that we can afford to take some bacteria into our system." This was interpreted as meaning that his government could stand the incorporation of communist elements, presumably in a compromise settlement.

Poverty Has Gone Out Of Style; No Fun Being Poor Any More

WASHINGTON — My friend McAlister, the only poor person I know who will admit it, was very depressed the other day.

"I knew they'd get tired of us very fast."

"What do you mean, McAlister?" I asked him.

"Poverty is out. You don't hear people talking about it any more. This year's big thing in Congress is hunger."

"WELL, YOU HAVE to be realistic about this, McAlister. Congress can't be expected to stay with one problem very long. They've already had their hearings on proverty. They have to go on to something else or the American people will lose interest."

"I guess you're right," said McAlister. "Don't get me wrong. I don't have anything against hunger. Some of my best friends are hungry. But I was hoping that they would at least solve the poverty problems before they went on to hunger."

"Your mistake, McAlister, if you don't mind my saying so, is that you don't understand the attention span of the American people. They can't stay with any subject too long. They gave poverty a fair shake. That's all we heard about for two years. That's plenty long enough. If you can't solve poverty in the United States in two years, then it's obviously unsolvable. Besides, it's not much fun to be reminded all the time that the United States has a poor-people problem."

McALISTER SIGHED. "I understand all that, and I was under no illusion that anyone could solve my problems. But it was all the attention I got that I miss. Do you know I was interviewed by four different foundations in one week? Reporters used to buy me drinks in exchange for me telling them what it was like to be poor. There were TV camera all over the neighborhood. College kids from Vassar and Swarthmore moved in during the summer to pull us up by our bootstraps. It might not have done much good, but the excitement sure relieved the tedium of being poor."

"OK, McAlister. You people had your day. But we can't stay with poverty forever. It doesn't have any sex appeal. The more you talk about it, the madder people get. And if you try to do anything about it, then you're really stepping on people's toes. Now hunger is a different kettle of fish. All you have to do with hunger is give people food."

"WHY DIDN'T they do it in the past, if it were that simple?"

"Because Congress didn't know you could make hunger a political issue until this year. You've got to think of them, too."

"There I go," said McAlister, "only thinking of myself."

I started to feel sorry for him. "McAlister, don't get discouraged. Poverty may make a comeback. Perhaps it won't be called poverty, but they'll call it something else."

"Maybe they could call it pro football," McAlister said. "Americans don't seem to lose interest in that."

"Let's not lose our perspective," I said angrily. "Pro football is not a joking matter."

NEGRO POPULATION

Migration A Major Factor

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the most remarkable facts about the Negro population in the 20th Century has been a great change, not in percentage of total, but in location.

Large numbers of Negroes have been moving out of the rural South and into the urban areas of the North and West — and into the urban communities in the South as well.

This migration of Negroes to cities in the South, North and West — which greatly accelerated during the two world wars—has widened the range of economic opportunities for the Negroes, but at the same time has created racial tenisons in numberous social and economic areas.

Labor Department statistics, for example, indicate that the economic and social status of the Negro has improved in recent years. But the Negro still is in about the same relative position.

The median nonwhite family income in 1966 was 60 per cent of the median for white families. This compared with 55 per cent in 1960. But at the same time, the income of slum residents declined.

Another effect of the migration has been to increase the political power of the Negro to hold public office — and affect the outcome of close elections.

The beginnings of the American Negro population can be traced to Jamestown, Va., 1619, when 20 Negroes landed with the settlers, all earmarked for slave status within the plantation system. By 1690, of the 16,729 slaves in the Colonies, according to figures in the recently published Negro Almanac, 13,389, or about 80 per cent were to be found in the South.

During the pre-Revolutionary War period in the North, many Negroes originally imported as indentured servants had acquired their freedom and were becoming an important factor in the Negro population. By the time of the first census, in 1790, there were 757,208 nonwhites in the population, about one-fifth of the total.

By 1860, helped by demands for cheap raw material, particularly cotton, created by the Industrial Revolution, the Negro population had grown to 4,441,830, or about one-seventh of the total. The spread of the plantation system to parts of the Southwest brought a Negro shift to new areas in Texas and Louisiana.

The increase continued after Emancipation, with 15,042,286 nonwhites counted in 1950, or about 10 per cent of the whole.

But the rural character of the Negro population remained intact.

Until the start of the 20th Century, about 90 per cent of all Negroes resided in the South. The first large northern migration came between 1910 and 1920, when the Southern Negro population dropped from 89 per cent to 85 per cent. By 1940, the figure was 77 per cent.

Since then, about 3.3 million Negroes have migrated northward. Most of them have settled in the Northeast and North Central regions.

Most recent statistics show a trend toward the West. As of 1960, Negroes accounted for half the nonwhite residents in the West, including Hawaii and Alaska. Not counting the last two states, Negroes accounted for 62 per cent of the nonwhite population. Virtually all nonwhites — about 90 per cent — in other regions were Negro.

While the shift geographically has continued, the percentage has been relatively stable since 1900. It dropped in the 1900-1930 period from 11.6 per cent to 9.7 per cent — the lowest in U. S. history — and increased in the 1930-1960 period from 9.7 to 10.5 per cent. Most recently, it has been given as 11 per cent of the total U. S. population.

Biafrans Looking To Rainy Season

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — Biafrans are now counting the days until the first strike of Egbe Elu Igwe, "The Gun from Heaven."

The expression is the Ibo language term for the first blast of the rainy season, due about April 1 and lasting until October.

The Biafrans feel that the rain, by washing out roads, slowing armored vehicles and grounding Nigerian planes, will fortify their military posiion. It should also improve local food production and lessen some of the reliance on relief supplies.

Already, the sky trembles every night with white flashes of electricity, and thunder rolls as loud as the Nigerian bombs that gouge Uli airstrip.

Like the Russians who blessed the murderous Stalingrad winter, and the North Vietnamese who waited for the monsoon season to interrupt U.S. tactical bombing, the Biafrans consider the weather to be their best ally.

They point to Nigeria's dependence on British Saracen and Ferret armored vehicles, which are expected here to flounder in the mud. Nigeria's supply lines, longer than Biafra's, will become like rain-soaked rope, difficult to knot or untangle, authorities say.

A military man took an illustration from the early days of the war in July 1967.

"We were in Enugu with about 40 rifles to go around," he said. "The Nigerians were at Nsukka, about 40 miles down the road. In the rain and against really minimal firepower, it took them four months, until October, to get to Enugu. And now we have more arms."

It took another four rainy months for Nigerian forces to get from Port Harcourt to Owerri, "and this was during a time when we had no ammunition," the officer said.

Biafrans now feel that with more stable fronts and a continuing supply of ammunition they will be able to advance during the rainy months and regain some of the ground they have lost in the civil war.

An official said that a substantial percentage of Nigeria's ground forces are members of the Hausa tribe from the northern dry areas where there is no experience of day-long, percussive rains and debilitating humidity.

"If you are 10 minutes late here, your boss won't accept the rain as an excuse," A Biafran said. "It's part of our life."

Although the rain will cut down on bombing raids, it might also frequently block the air bridge between Uli and relief supply points in Cotonou in Dahomey and the Portuguese island of Sao Tome.

It may also affect the arms that are acknowledged here to come from Libreville in Gabon and Lisbon. There is no explanation given here of how a possible arms gap would be filled, but the rain ought to take care of some of the food problems.

Crops are expected to improve. A series of early rains indicate that the season will be wet enough to assure a good-sized harvest of cassava, the staple of the Biafran diet.

Through U.S. Millions Laos Mixes Weapons, Luxury Items

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Thanks largely to American aid millions, Laotian merchants stock a wide variety of luxury goods from all over the world at bargain prices.

Surprisingly few of them are stamped, "Made in U.S.A."

After 10 years of insurgency, Laos has found a way to have guns with butter—imported French butter, together with delicacies like caviar, pate de foie gras with truffles, Danish sausage, Napoleon brandy and even perfumed British cigarettes. The latter are slightly higher than the 27 cents a pack that premium British and American cigarettes command.

LUXURY ITEMS

The luxury goods and the other items such as the estimated $4.3 million worth of autos, motorcycles, whisky and beer imported during the last reported year were not destined for the common Lao people or to build the Lao economy, the two major interests of the $52-million U.S. aid program here.

Instead they go to Chinese and North Vietnamese who dominate the country's business scene, foreigners and those Laotians in official positions who have amassed what passes for fortunes in this country.

Wandering through the unimposing shops of Vientiane, it is difficult to believe it is the capital of an impoverished country torn by a Communist-directed civil war that has been going on intermittently since 1948. The per capita income in Laos is some $70 a year, the lowest in Southeast Asia and thus one of the lowest in the world.

GOLD SMUGGLING

Some 2,000 tons of gold arrive in Vientiane monthly, mostly for re-export and smuggling into neighboring countries. But a lot of it stays to adorn the necks and wrists of the wives of what are called "important personages" here.

Statistics tell a much different story of the lives of those through the rest of the country. The war and incessant U.S. bombing of contested areas aside, the rural Laotians live in an abject poverty that often dips just below the survival point.

U.S. officials are far from happy that U.S. aid money directly and indirectly supports such a luxury market in Vientiane and to a lesser extent in other major cities here. They are pressing the government to drive up import duties that would help cut the budget deficits the United States is pledged to make up and push prices up for nonessential goods. Neither Lao nor U.S. officials will estimate the total amount of luxury goods imported.

Rice is the biggest import item, followed closely by gasoline for all those autos and the fewer essential trucks and buses. Then come alcoholic beverages and automobiles, a customs official said. Over-all the Laotians import about $26 million annually and exports bring in only $800,000.

Of the $52-million aid budget, the United States will contribute $16 million to $17 million to support the kip, Laotian currency. This has made the kip as hard as the U.S. dollar. Any one with enough kip in his possession can change it for dollars and import pretty much what he wants.

LACKING CONTROLS

Other countries use stiff import taxes to hold down luxury imports and keep their balance of payments in line. So far these fiscal controls are virtually unknown in Laos.

European autos generally are far cheaper here than in the United States. Large portable radios sell for about $200 and the shopkeeper will show advertisements from U.S. magazines to make the sales point that in America the same radio sells for $325.

The total U.S. share of Laos' market is $2.8 million and most of this is essential commodities. American luxury goods, a U.S. official said, arrive with a too-high price tag and are driven out of the market by Japanese and European goods.

OTHER PAYMENTS

The French, who pay about $1.5 million in direct aid to the Laotian economy, send about $1.6 million in goods. Red China sends about $500,000 worth a year and is the key backer of the Communist-led insurgents.

An American expert said that far larger tax revenues come in now per U.S. aid dollar spent than in previous years. The hope is that the ratio will rise.

Some tax measures have been enacted recently or are proposed. Three months ago all those renting houses were ordered to pay one month's rent each year to the government instead of the landlord. These mostly are officials or important businessmen who simply refuse to pay the tax themselves, law or no law.

DeGaulle Will Stake Future On Referendum

PARIS (London Express) — President Charles De Gaulle is believed to be staking his future as president on the outcome of next month's referendum on regional reform and the reform of the Senate.

Recent indications are that the referendum issues are so little understood by the French voters that millions will abstain. Opinion polls are showing that the vote could go against the government.

Until now the General — while insisting that the referendum is held, to the dismay of many top Gaullists — has refrained from linking his own future to the outcome of the vote.

In past referendums he has always insisted that the vote is a vote of confidence in him as president and has made it plain that he will go if the result goes against him. Now it looks as though DeGaulle is going to force the pace on an issue which bores most loyal Gaullist voters — by putting the whole future of his regime on the outcome of the poll on April 27.

Clue to his new stand came after his cabinet meeting this week when Information Minister Joel LeTheule announced that DeGaulle would go on television for a referendum question and answer session on April 10.

The general will use this television appearance, said the minister, to let it be known publicly to what extent he is himself concerned in the referendum result "and in particular how important is the question of confidence which is being put to the French people."

This phrase is being widely interpreted in Gaullist circles as a plain indication that DeGaulle intends, whatever the risks, to engage his future as president on the referendum outcome.

Obviously DeGaulle believes that by putting his own future at stake he will assure the acceptance of social reform measures which he considers vital for France.

But there is open alarm among Gaullists who believe DeGaulle is sailing very close to the wind on a most treacherous issue.

Exclusive Club Meets Daily Under The San Francisco Bay

By IRA RIFKIN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — More than 120 feet beneath the waters of San Francisco Bay and one and one-half miles from the shore an exclusive club has its headquarters.

Members of the Mile & Half Club are workmen building the Bay Area Rapid Transit System (BART) trans-bay tube, the longest and deepest underwater transit tunnel in the world.

To become a member, you must walk, not ride a bicycle as some workers do, one-and-a-half miles out from either the Oakland or San Francisco end of the tube and back.

Originator of the club is Don Hughes, an engineering inspector on the job who also hopes to be the first person to walk the entire four mile length of the tube when it is completed sometime next April. The 75-mile transit system has a 1971 target date.

A walk through the completed part of the tube with Hughes, a veteran of sewerage tunnel building in Philadelphia and hydroelectric tunnel construction in Northern California, is similar to a guided tour of a still unfinished apartment building.

The air in the tube smells of fresh cement and feels chilly and damp.

Dust kicked up by workmen hangs suspended in the light from the seemingly endless string of bulbs along the ceiling of the tunnel.

Ragged ends of steel cables jut out from the walls, floor and roof. And the steel plates that connect the tube sections peel red flakes, a result of being exposed to the bay waters while being set in place. When completed, the steel will be scraped down and painted grey to match the surrounding cement.

But instead of looking at bare cement and visualizing a roomful of furniture, Hughes looks at the bare cement of the tube and sees commuters, hundreds of thousands of them riding BART's total 75-mile length and passing through the vital link between east and west bay areas—the trans-bay tube.

Fifty-one of 57 steel and concrete sections of the tube, each 330 feet long and weighing more than 10,000 tons, have been lowered into place by trans-bay constructors, a joint venture of four marine construction firms, under a $90-million contract awarded by BART. Divers align and weld the sections together.

Twenty-six of the double barrelled sections have been connected from the Oakland side of the bay and 25 from the San Francisco side, currently placing the twin hull barge used for lowering the sections beneath the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

This Week In The World

By United Press International

The Nixon administration pressed the need for antimissile defenses during the week, arguing that failure to install at least a minimum system would give Russia a dangerous advantage in the prevailing "balance of terror."

In testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird cited previously-secret intelligence reports to indicate that the Soviet Union is striving to forge a weapons system strong enough to knock out the United States in a sneak attack.

Laird said the Russians are emplacing intercontinental missiles with 25-megaton warheads and turning out missile-armed atomic submarines at a rapid rate. He also hinted the Soviet Union may be putting nuclear warheads into orbit around the earth.

The defense secretary argued that the Safeguard antimissile system advocated last week by President Nixon should be emplaced now to prevent the Russians from gaining a dangerous advantage in the nuclear arms race.

The Safeguard system advocated by Nixon would protect the U.S. intercontinental missile array rather than the large population centers which former President Lyndon B. Johnson's proposed Sentinel system was to have guarded.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Saigon: U.S. battle deaths totaled 351 last week, increasing the toll of the Communist spring offensive in Vietnam to 1,140 American dead The focus of the fighting in the third week of enemy attacks was on the provinces surrounding Saigon and extending west to the Cambodian border.

Anguilla: British paratroopers landed on this tiny Caribbean island Wednesday to quell a two-year-old revolt against an inter-island federation which linked Anguilla with St. Kitts and Nevis. Islanders demonstrated against the "brutish British" but offered no serious resistance to the occupation forces.

Memphis, Tenn.: Judge W. Preston Battle said Wednesday James Earl Ray is having second thoughts about his plea of guilty in the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. and is seeking a review of the case.

Moscow: Russia reported further border fighting between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Ussuri River border. Diplomats in Moscow said the combat reports may be intended as an effort to persuade other Communist nations to disavow Red China.

Detroit: General Motors recalled more than a million cars, trucks and school buses to check possible safety defects in the brake systems. A GM spokesman said the death of a 15-year-old boy in a school bus accident apparently was due to a brake defect.

Bond Market Rallies A Bit After Hitting Record Low

NEW YORK (UPI) — Several sectors of the bond market rallied this week after touching record lows, Salomon Brothers and Hutzler reported.

The investment firm said the early selloff was largely in reaction to Monday's half point increase in the prime rate while the subsequent rally followed rumors of progress in the peace negotiations.

The late-week rally in governments allowed intermediate and long term issues to close the week with net gains; the first net advance since mid-February.

Treasury bill rates declined for the third week while most other short term rates remained unchanged. As a result, Salomon said, yield spreads of competing money market instruments from bills widened still further. Europe-dollar rates rose briefly to new record highs following the prime rate rise. Federal funds continued very tight.

New corporate bond yields rose to record highs and attracted substantial investor interest. The release from syndicate restrictions of a largely unsold telephone issue and the sellout of the week's new offerings reduced underwriter inventories to nominal levels. The burden on the new issue market this week was reduced when three scheduled offerings were postponed. Prices on seasoned issues declined further, but the more actively traded recent issues advanced following the favorable reception accorded the week's new issues. Next week's calendar will be moderate — $200 million — and the total for March will be a little less than the $950 million February volume. The April calendar remains moderate — about $550 million, according to Salomon.

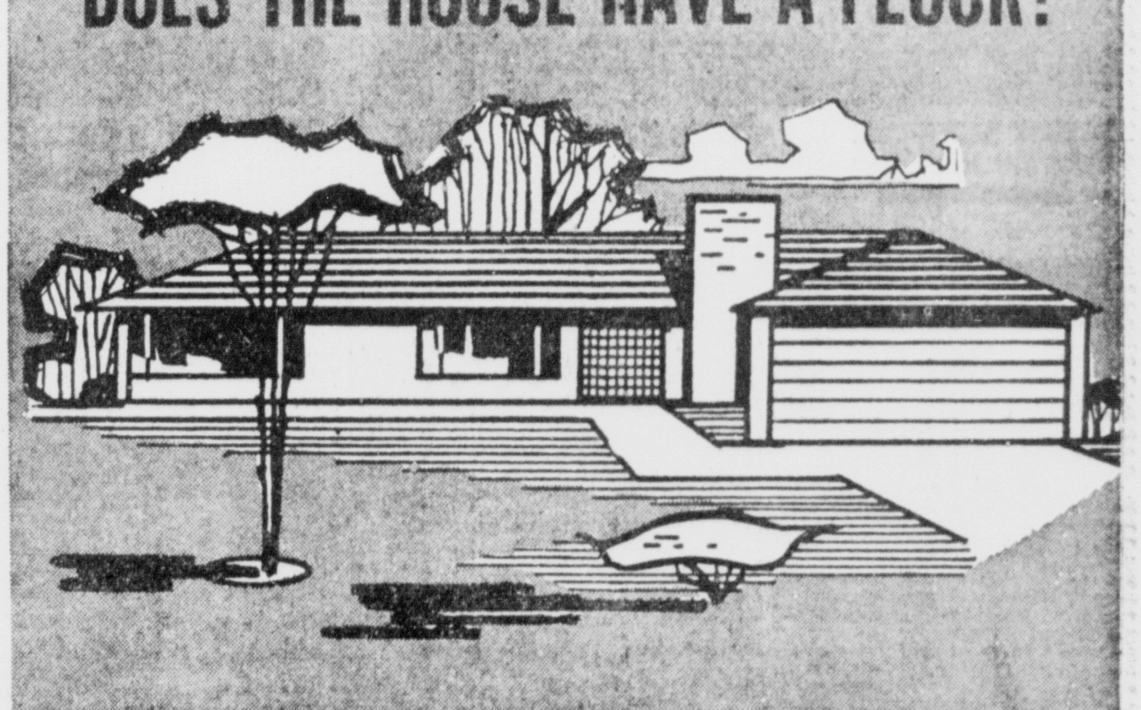
DOES THE HOUSE HAVE A FLOOR?



Buying a house with wall to wall carpeting?

Before you buy -- Specify . . .

HARDWOOD FLOORS

Beneath that deep pile rug may be nothing more than bare concrete, plywood or plank subflooring. If you want the house in this condition, fine. Just be sure you realize that the best carpet lasts about eight years. But Hardwood floors last a lifetime! Then too, when it's time to sell the house, you may have to replace worn carpeting to attract a buyer. So if you are buying a carpeted house, new or used, the best way to avoid a floorless surprise is to ask the builder or owner to pull up part of the carpet. Seeing is believing.

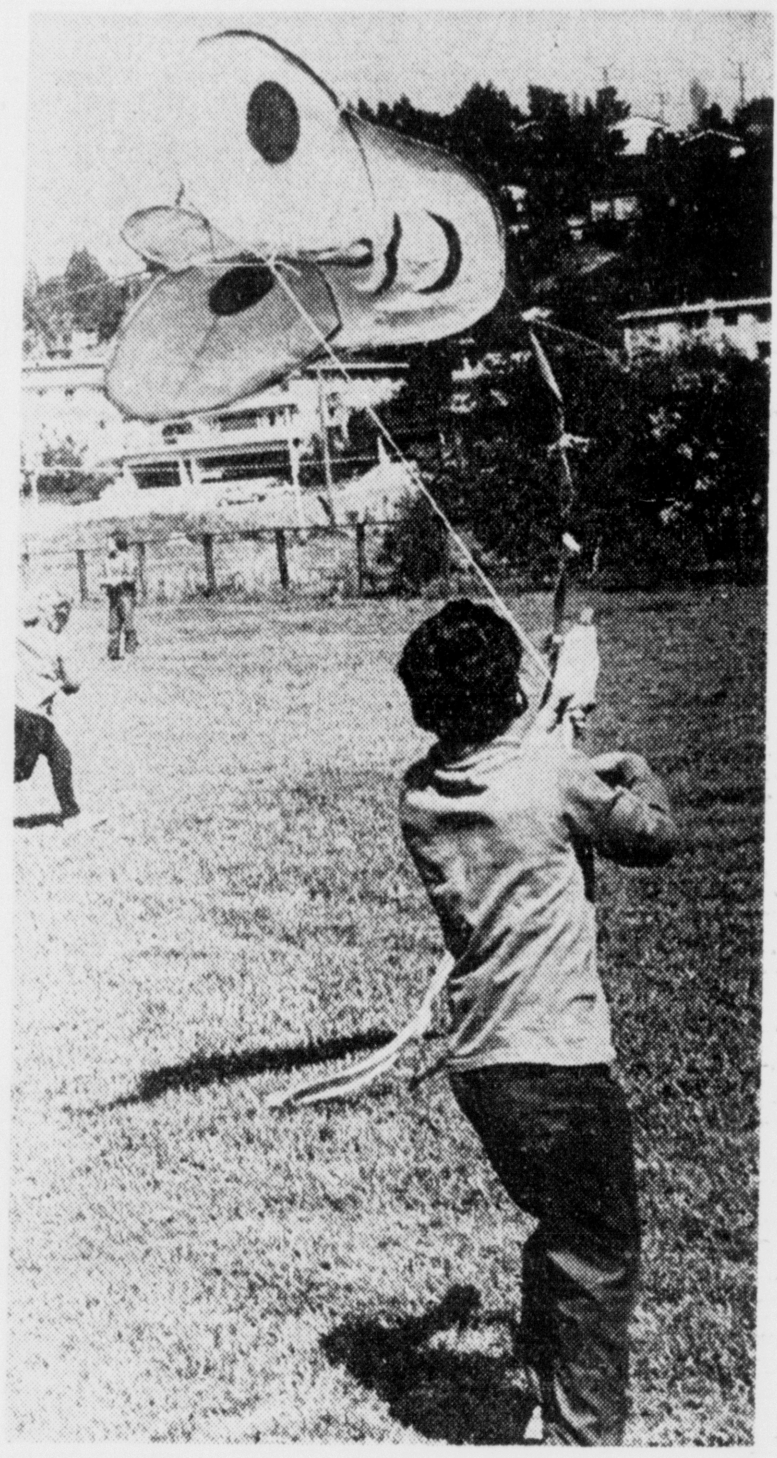
TRAFFIC JAM — Contestants struggle to keep their lines unsnarled, but for many it was a losing fight. But it was a beautiful day, warm and sunny, and the hills were green.



HAPPY KITE—Don Herve displays one of the many original kites—not all of which were as successful as his in getting off the ground.

HOT PURSUIT—Two kites chase one another across the sky as they soar upward in a try for highest flight trophy. The bird kite only appears to be biting the tail of the upper kite.

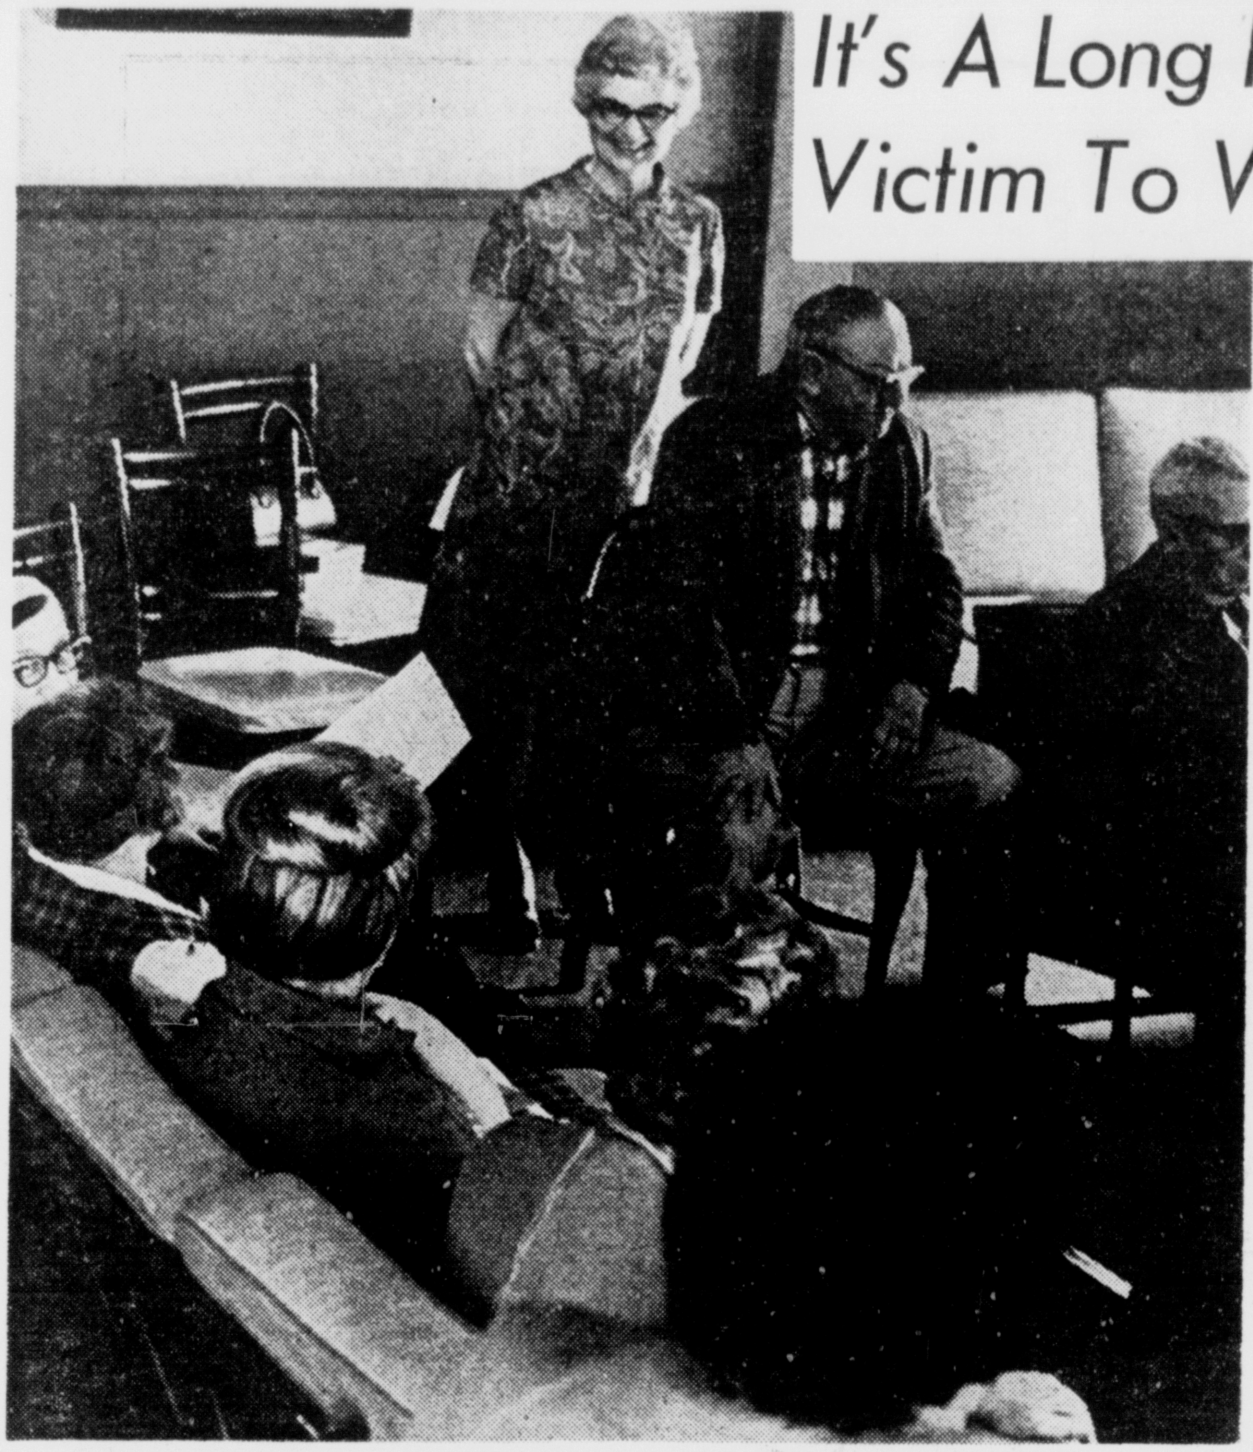
First The Pattern, Then The Dress

It's A Long Road Back For Stroke Victim To World Of Communication

But Easter Seal Program Offers Encouragement And Guidance

By DON KEOWN



HELEN DAGGETT, director of the Easter Seal Society's Tuesday morning group therapy program for adults with communication disorders at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church, smiles at an indication of progress by one of the participants. The group includes both people struggling to regain their powers of speech, and members of their families responsible for their care. (Independent-Journal photos)

We live, Marshall McLuhan has told us, in an age when communication is all-important.

Consider then, the plight of the person who suddenly finds himself stripped of his ability to communicate with his fellow man, by stroke, other illness or injury.

People so stricken might very likely resign themselves to a drab life of silence, cut off from the exchanges of ideas with other humans that once enlivened their existence.

BUT ON THE other hand, if plucky, they might instead fight back, undertaking a long and arduous struggle to recover their powers of speech and communication.

For such an endeavor, they will need encouragement, understanding and professional guidance.

Each Tuesday morning a group of Marin adults gathers in the Fireside Room of the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo for just such an undertaking.

THE SPONSOR, the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin, calls these weekly sessions its "Tuesday morning group therapy program for adults with communication disorders."

And it is all made possible by Easter Seal contributions.

Director of the program is Helen Daggett, who has headed Easter Seal speech and language activities in Marin County for the past 10 years.

Holder of a master's degree in speech and hearing from San Francisco State College, Mrs. Daggett has been a Marinite for 22 years.

OF THE TUESDAY morning program, she says: "It had long been our hope that Easter Seal might make available in Marin a group approach for people with the problem of loss of language as the result of a stroke or a brain damaging accident."

The hope became reality three months ago as therapists and other professionals in the field indicated a belief that there was a growing and urgent need for such a program in the county.

The program began with four and now has eight adults engaged in efforts to regain their powers of speech.

IN ADDITION, the member of the family most immediately responsible for the care of each of the speech-stricken person also attends.

Working with Mrs. Daggett are Easter Seal speech therapist Grace Almon; occupational therapist Sue Williams of Mill Valley, now between her academic training and her apprenticeship work, and social worker Ruth Younce of San Rafael, a newcomer to the area.

The weekly sessions run for approximately two hours.

The gatherings, says Mrs. Daggett, "are actually quite informal and flexible. They may go on as long as the participants feel they are being helped, and the direction they take may be determined by those taking part."

THE AIM, SHE says, is "to improve and to restore as far as possible the communications abilities of the person."

"We work at the level of a person's ability to succeed," she explains. "While it is a group gathering, the part taken by each person in attendance is an individual decision. This may mean a conversation carried on at a fairly high level in which the emphasis is upon greater clarity.

The Lost Gift Of Speech

Easter Seals Help Plucky To Improve

"Others may play dominoes, benefiting from the matching of the numbers. The more able ones will keep score.

"THEN THERE are the word games. A favorite is one in which a brief biography and description of a person is given. The objective is then to guess the name."

Often the major problem, Mrs. Daggett says, is not so much the ability to pronounce the words, as it is to call up the right words. Sometimes there is as much need for help in comprehending what is being said to them as in their own saying.

The relaxed, social atmosphere of the gatherings in itself has a therapeutic value for people who might feel shy because of their handicaps and who might otherwise avoid such relationships. Knowing they are with other people with problems similar to their own, they toss off inhibitions.

MRS. DAGGETT tells of one woman in her late 70s living alone in her apartment who was persuaded by her doctor to join the group. Knowing that her speech was exceedingly difficult to understand, at first she spoke hardly at all. But it wasn't long, the speech pathologist relates, before she was offering her comments. And finally, she was taking part wholeheartedly, "almost shouting out during the games."

Most of the members of the Tuesday morning group are stroke victims. There are also Parkinson Disease and automobile accident victims in the gathering.

Facilities are donated by the San Anselmo church where the meetings are held, and the American Red Corss provides transportation for those in need of it.

MRS. DAGGETT says she hopes the group speech therapy program for adults, which is open to all Marin residents, will be a permanent Easter Seal function in the county.

"I think it is one of the most valuable things we are doing," she says. But she stresses that it is only the newest of a long list of direct service programs being conducted in Marin by the Easter Seal Society.

Services, she adds, that are possible only because Marinites react so generously when the envelopes containing the Easter Seals and contribution envelopes appear in their mail during the Lenten season.

Sculptor-Potter John Dumas Aims For Emotional Impact

He Prefers His Clay Unpolished

By GIL PEARSON

Sculptor-potter John Dumas says:

"While pottery alone does get artistic appreciation, I want my efforts to provoke more visual and emotional impact than crafted objects ordinarily do. I can reach this end by concentrating on the sculpturing of a pot form and not on its functional use.

"FURTHER, I seek eyeball to eyeball honesty with the viewer simply by letting clay be clay in its natural organic texture rather than polishing surfaces with commercial treatments."

His direction thus established, this 25-year-old Marin-based artisan is taking courageous strides in producing his personal venture in three dimensional

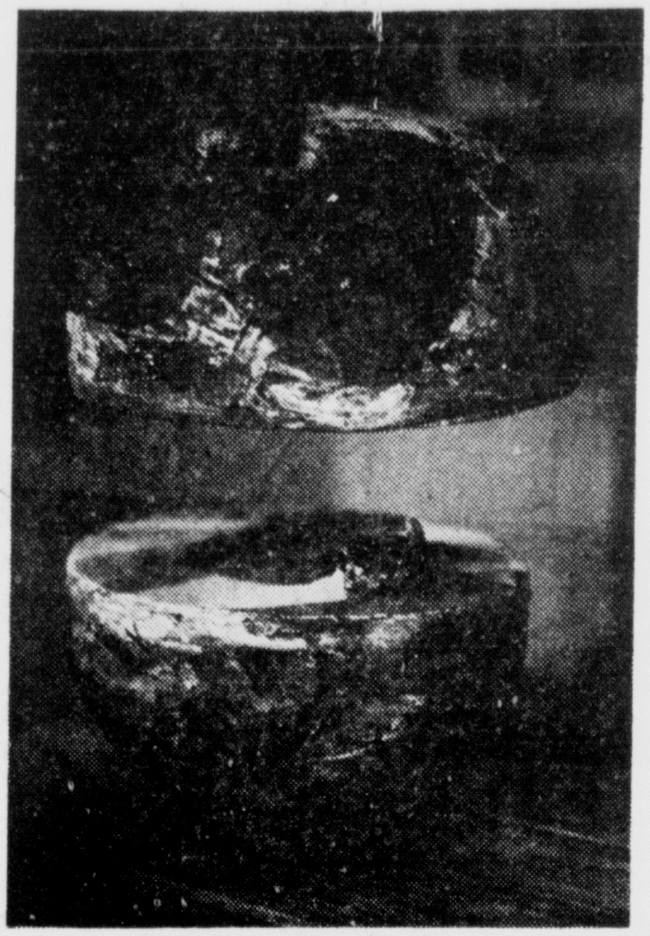
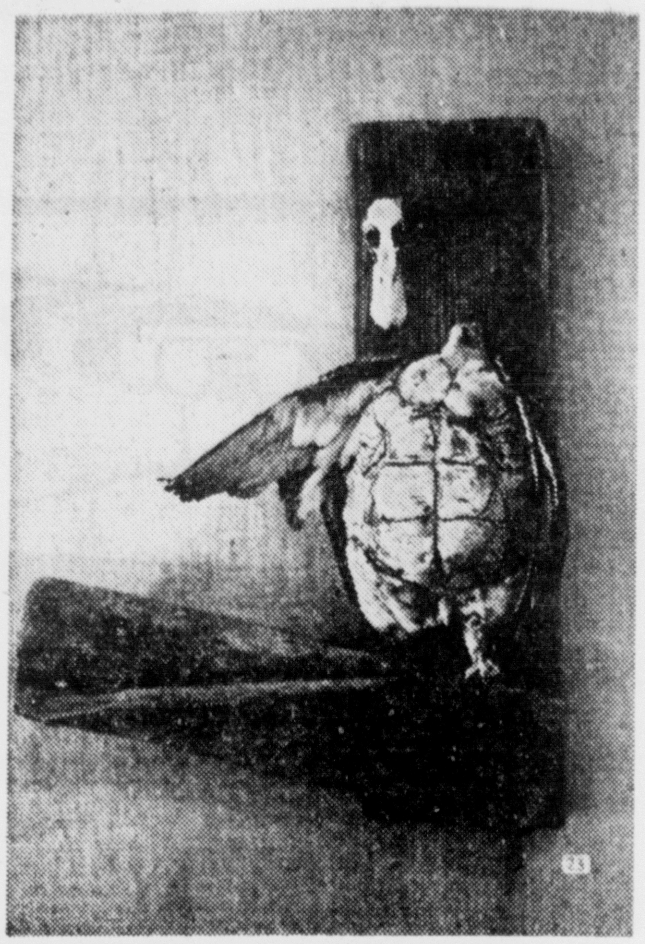
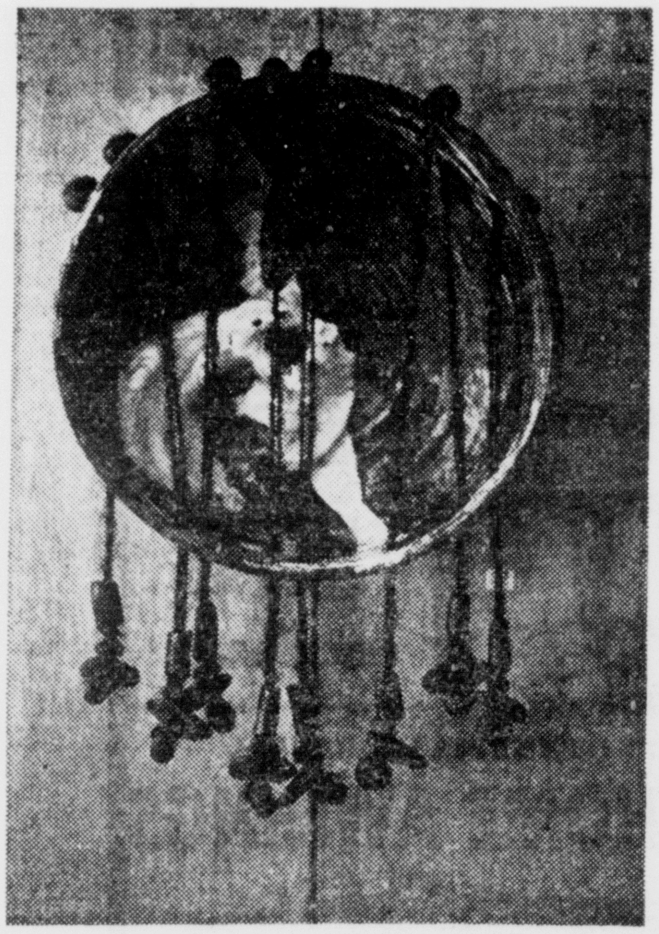
ARTIST John Dumas here has attempted to infuse emotion into high-fired earth, creating this mask with emotional impact.



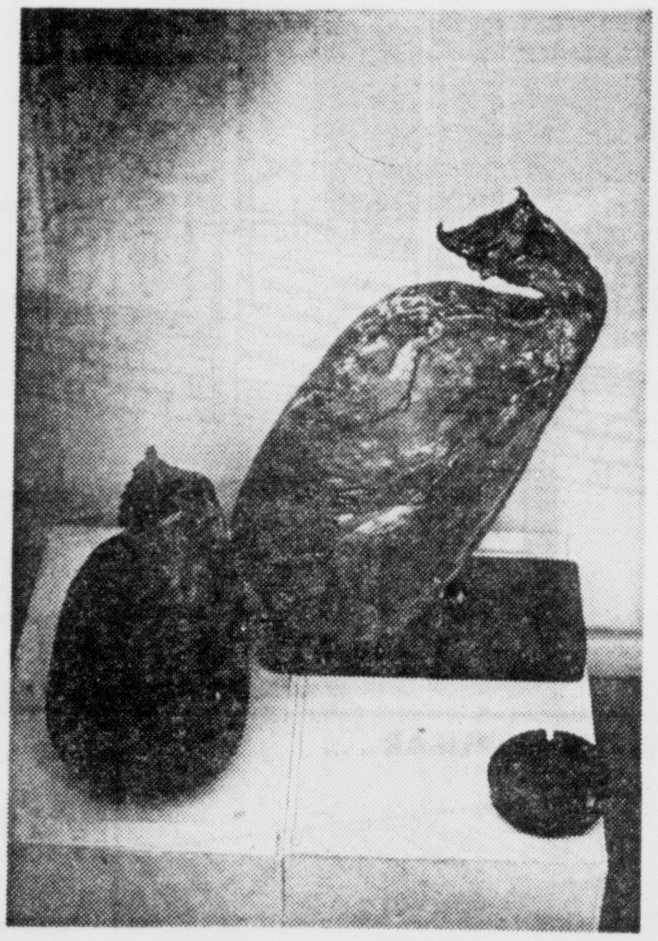
A JOHN DUMAS slip-surfaced clay form with its mobile top half suspended from a single wire floats above its stable base.



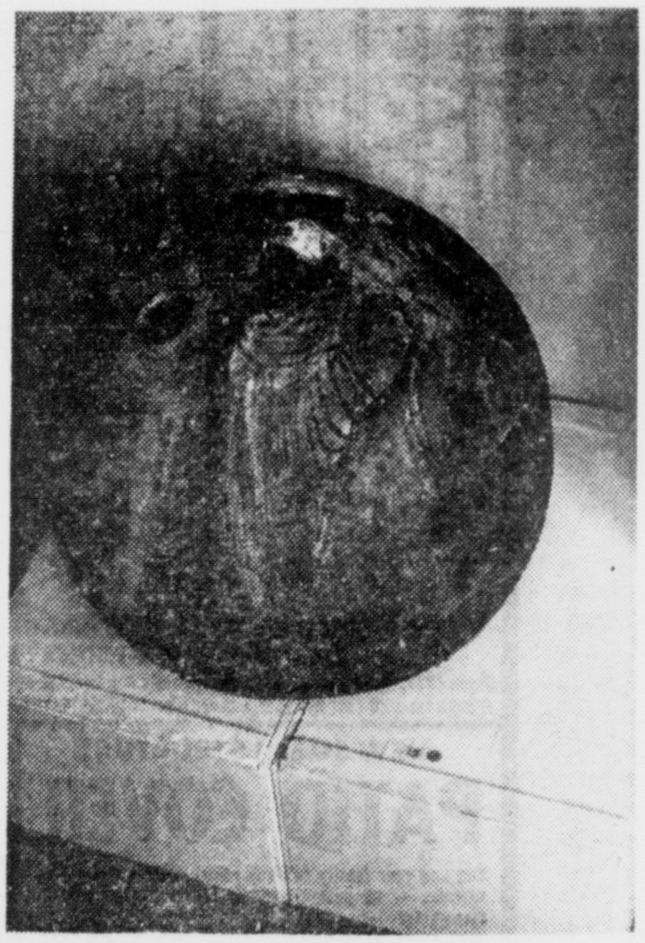
REAL WINGS of birds were clothed in ceramic form and mounted on weathered planks, while a duck's skull returns the viewer's gaze.



A BOWL-SHAPED cage with horsehair yarn and beads as the mesh imprisons the form of a screaming bird.



THESE wheel-thrown pots in bird form were modeled by John Dumas as his creative analogies of despair.



A BIRD FORM emerges into three dimensions from the curved surfaces of a hollow, clay-fired sphere.

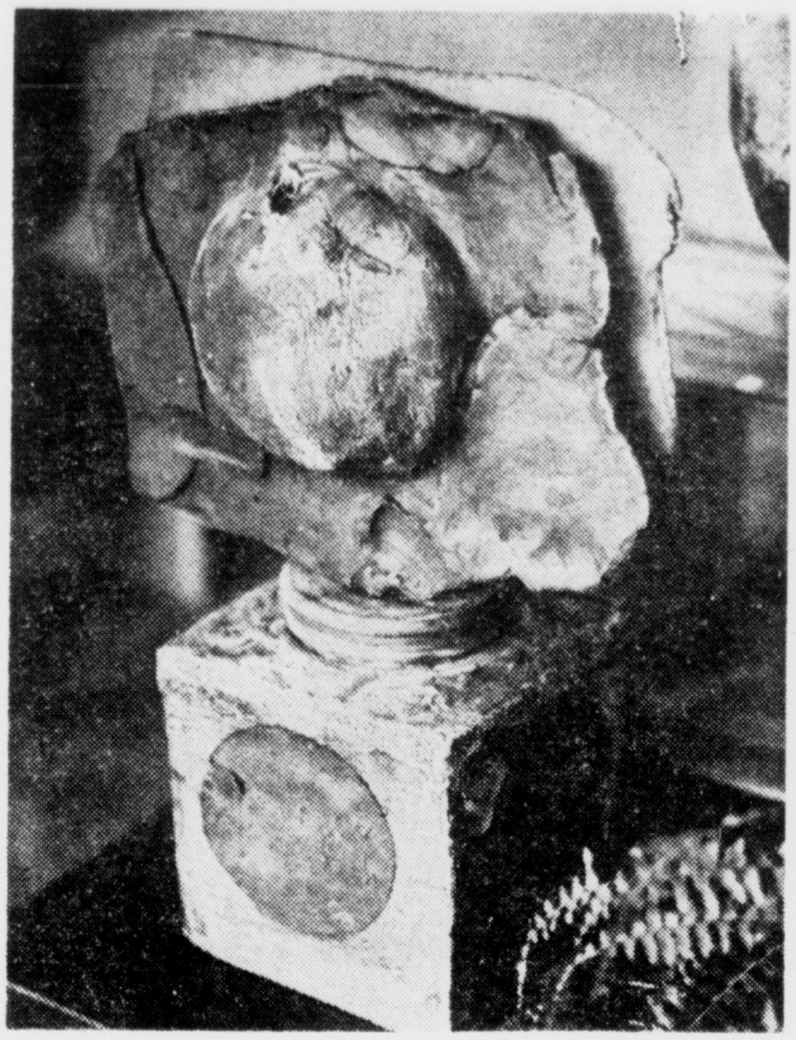
forms taken from nature and imagination.

You don't glance at a John Dumas clay and hurry along — it has enough grip to cause you to linger and ponder.

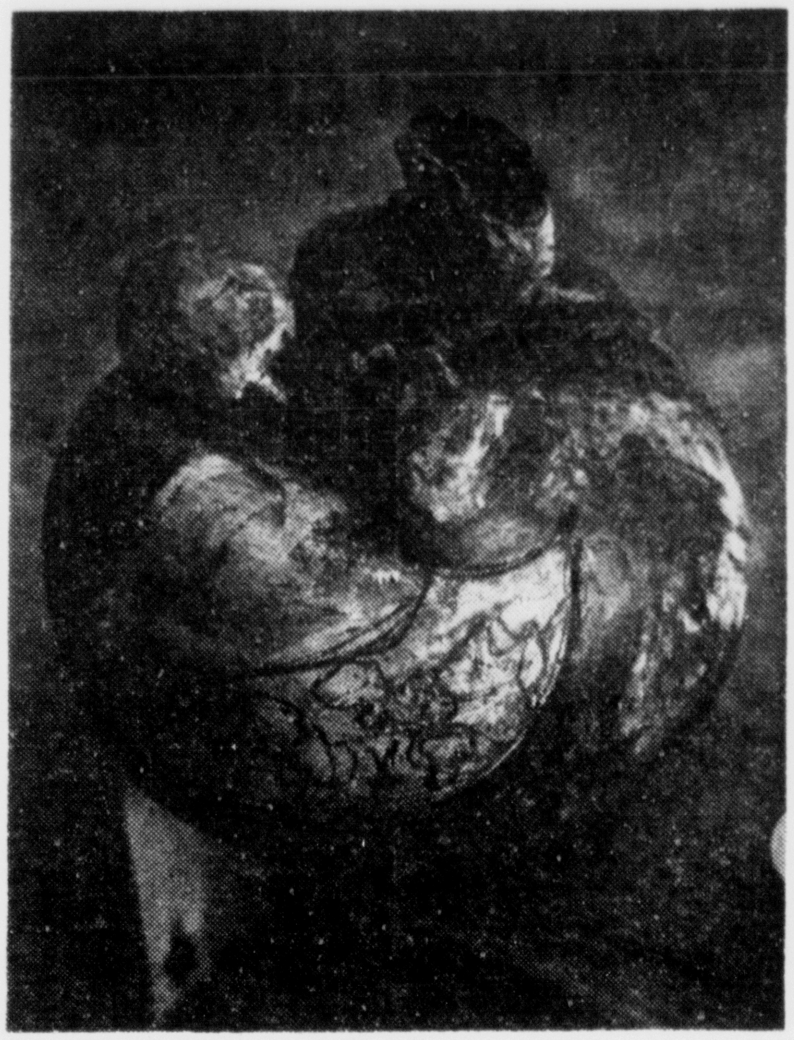
SCHOOLED AT Rhode Island's Brown University, Dumas took a bachelor of arts degree in art history. And he earned a master's degree in ceramics at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland last December. He holds a teacher's certificate.

He gives private lessons in ceramics in Sausalito, Berkeley and at his studio high in the wooded hills of Fairfax.

His masks, wall plaques, hanging pieces, lidded forms, and hollow pots have been exhibited in various quantities at the College of Marin, the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum, the Walnut Creek Civic Art Center, and at the Anima Mundi gallery in Mill Valley.



CIRCULAR BIRDS emerge on back-to-back, irregularly contoured lay slabs that serve as the lid for a squared John Dumas ceramic box.



A SIMPLY contoured 30-pound pot on close inspection can be seen to symbolize the human form struggling to free itself.

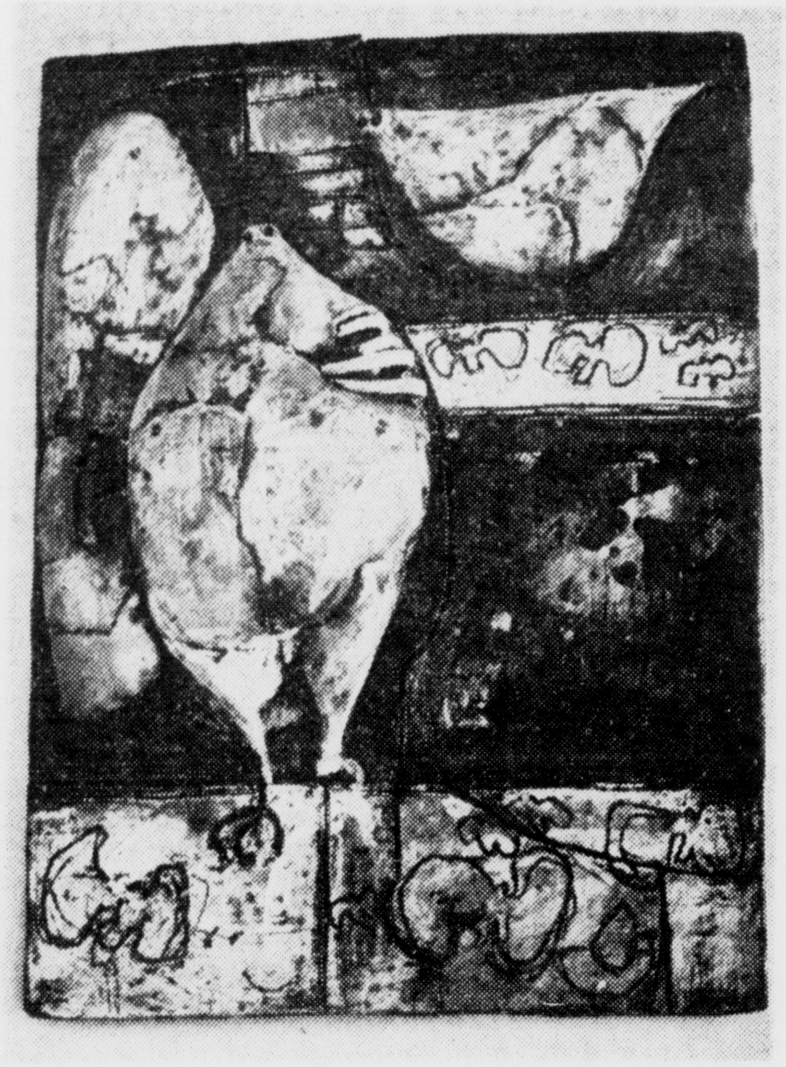
ART CRITIC Helen Rivers writing in the San Francisco Sunday Examiner and Chronicle recently noted:

"Many (of the exhibits at the San Francsico Potters Association Biennial) are contemporarily vigorous and exciting, and a few do nothing more than delight or surprise the viewer.

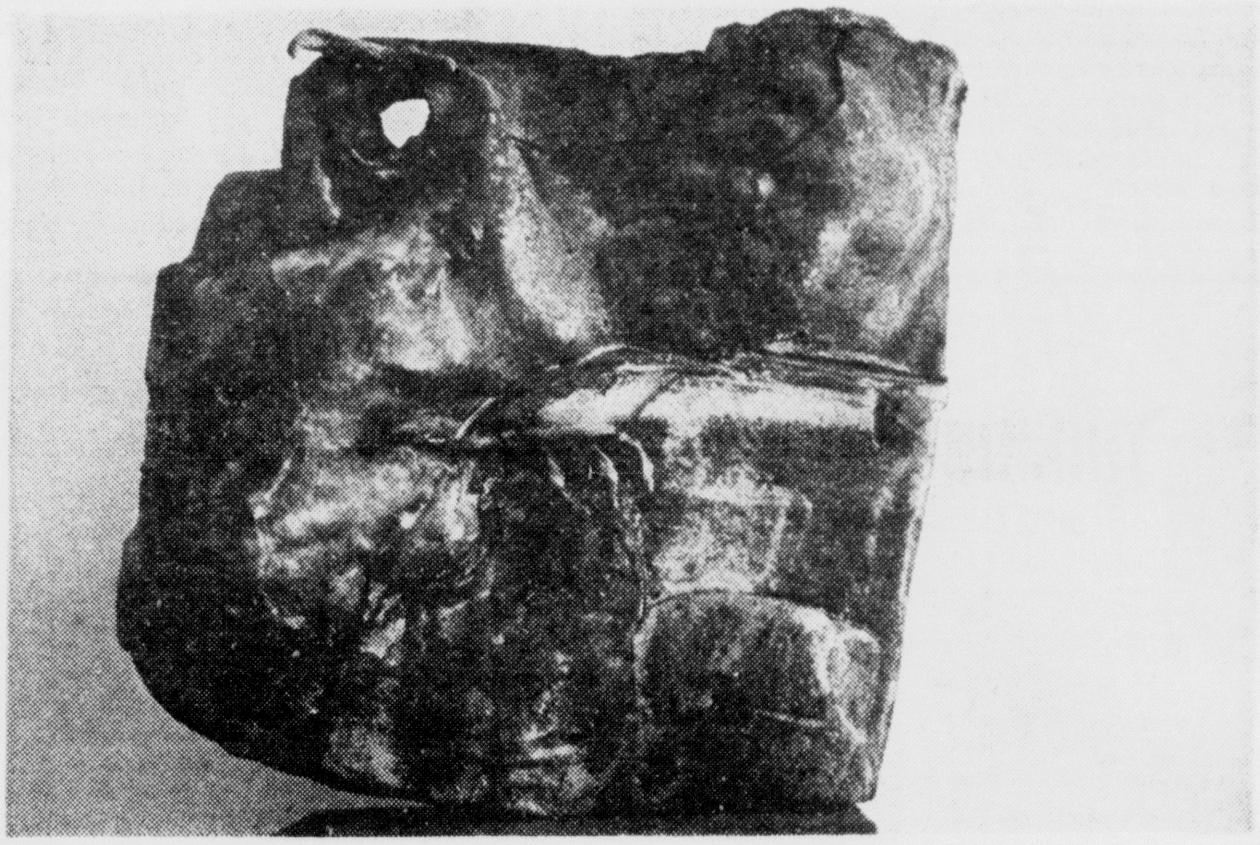
"In one instance, what appears to be from several feet away merely a stone of interesting shape is suddenly upon close inspection John Dumas' striking, angrily clawing stoneware bird, its open beak and eye a jug's spout, and its gripping claws leaping out from a flat sculptured design."

SCULPTURE-POTTER John Dumas has examples of his art available for exhibit and welcomes invitations to show. In addition, he is in production with new material for fall showing.

His address is II Holly Road, Fairfax.



THIS TILED plaque assemblage, conceived as a single two-foot-high unit, employs low sculptural relief with bird motifs.



IN THE POTTERY tradition, John Dumas here has ventured his own personal expansion in the potentialities for expression of clay.

"Where Did The Stain On My Dress Come From?"

You say the stain wasn't there until the dress was cleaned. Examination indicates that the stain was present, but invisible. Such stains can be seen only after heat used in drycleaning is present. Many such invisible stains are caused by beauty preparation chemicals, soft drinks or alcoholic beverages. The sugar in these stains may carmelize when in contact with heat and pop into view. They cannot, then, be removed.

In some instances a fresh stain may be dabbed with water and seem to disappear, but it returns after drycleaning. If you spill anything on a fabric, advise your drycleaner. It will help him to do a better job of removing it.

BEFORE A CLASS at her Wedgwood Academy of Fashion and Dress Design, Mary Golden begins a lesson in pattern-making with a briefing using diagrams upon the blackboard. She has copyrighted her Wedgwood Method of Perfect Pattern Drafting which she says greatly simplifies the process by which the woman can make a basic dress pattern to fit her own measurements.

MARY GOLDEN takes the measurements of one of her Wedgwood Academy students, Marilyn Boggeri. Instruction in pattern-making begins, Mrs. Golden says, with directions on the proper procedures for taking accurate measurements. This is followed by consultation on figure assets and problems, and then by advice on the most flattering style lines, colors, fabrics, etc.

Learning To Make The Perfect Pattern

It's Stressed In Instruction At Marin Dressmaking School

Before the making of the dress must come the pattern.

Indeed, the entire success of a dressmaking project, whether at home, in a garment factory or an elegant haute couture house in Paris, is dependent upon the pattern or design.

Well aware of this, Mary Golden places strong emphasis upon pattern-making at her Wedgwood Academy of Fashion and Dress Design at 1563 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

MRS. GOLDEN, with a rich background in clothing design and making, opened the school a year ago. She now has daytime classes meeting on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, evening classes on Thursdays, and a special "speedy sewing session" for teen-agers on Saturdays. She plans additional evening classes for this fall.

The disappointments the home dressmaker frequently encounters can be most often traced to a faulty or ill suited pattern, Mrs. Golden says.

"Many women who like to sew buy commercial patterns," she relates. Full of enthusiasm and high hopes, they then begin to make something to wear. Very soon, they realize they have problems.

"SOMEHOW somewhere, they and the patterns have lost each other. After hours of frustration in trying to find out where they or the patterns went astray, they abandon the project in despair as a lost cause.

"This is because commercial patterns are cut by the thousands to conform to standard measurements. Women, fortunately, are not so made. No two women are exactly the same."

The solution, she says, is for these women to draft their own patterns to fit their own measurements and design tastes.

THE EASIEST and most effective way to do this, Mrs. Golden believes, is to master the Wedgwood Method of Perfect Pattern Drafting that she has devised and copyrighted, which she teaches at the academy, and which will be the subject of a book that is currently in preparation.

She describes it as a simplified technique utilizing seven fundamental measurements, each numbered and assigned a color, by which the women learn to draft their own basic patterns. These can then be adapted to various styles of dresses.

Instruction begins, Mrs. Golden says, with a lesson on the correct taking of measurements, followed by consultation on figure assets and problems. Advice is provided on the most flattering lines, colors, fabrics, etc.

ON THE blackboard, the procedure in drafting the front bodice is first explained, with diagrams of both the process and the completed project.

Then the preliminary paper pattern is drafted, cut out and transferred to muslin. The muslin can then be tried on to attain a perfect fit, a step, according to Mrs. Golden, that eliminates many a mistake.

Next, from the muslin which has passed the fitting test the final basic pattern — "sloper" it is called in the trade — is cut. From this can come many different style variations as the pattern-maker is finally ready to begin the actual dressmaking process.

"NO ONE CAN learn to sew well in a few quick lessons," says Mrs. Golden flatly.

She says her students are shown special sewing secrets that include the "tricks" of the most famous French designers and dressmakers.

For instance, she says, many women approach the "putting in a sleeve" phase of the dressmaking with special trepidation. "This is one place that gives away an amateurish homemade product," Mrs. Golden says. "But there is a simple way that a sleeve can be inserted by the home sewer that gives a professionally perfect final result."

ONE TEST OF good work, she says, is that "the sewing on the inside of a garment should be as neat as the sewing on the outside."

Mrs. Golden was born in Liverpool, England, a member of one of that country's oldest families, the Wedgwoods. An ancestor, William Wedgwood, was a tailor who lived next door to William Shakespeare in the 1570s. John Wedgwood followed his relative by marriage, John Winthrop, governor of Salem, in crossing the Atlantic to Massachusetts in 1630. Charles Darwin was a Wedgwood on his mother's side.

And the Wedgwoods of Wedgwood chinaware fame are distant relatives, although Mrs. Golden stesses that her academy is in no way connected with the Wedgwood potteries, which, incidentally, are no longer a family-owned concern.

MRS. GOLDEN was reared in Leeds, England, and earned a scholarship to attend Notre Dame Collegiate School there. She recalls that she began sewing at the age of 10, designing and selling doll clothes. Later she designed and made costumes for Shakespearean plays.

She served an apprenticeship in dressmaking, fashion design and tailoring in England and was graduated from two dress designing schools. In America, she was an "A" student in home economics at Contra Costa College, and before coming to Marin County she owned a custom clothes making establishment.

Her husband, Rodney G. Golden, is a supervising counselor at San Quentin Prison.

MRS. GOLDEN says her hobbies are "my family, home and my profession," adding that "when one enjoys something so much, it ceases to be work." Her other interests include music (she plays the piano), art (she dabbles in oils), gardening, reading and cooking.

And she still likes to dress dolls.

In addition to working on her book, she is collecting pictures and slides, especially while traveling abroad, of national and historical costumes of other countries. She plans to make use of them in future course. "The History of Costumes from the Cave Man to Carnaby Street."

OF FASHION today, she says: "Everything is geared to the younger set."

And teen-agers, she adds, have the impatience of youth. A speedy sewing job will fill their needs "as long as no one turns the garment inside out to see how it was put together."

On the other hand, says Mrs. Golden, the more mature women are interested in learning to draft patterns that meet their personal requirements, and in mastering the kind of fine sewing and finishing associated with custom-made clothing.

"I AM FAMILIAR with both the quick factory techniques and the slower and more intricately detailed quality custom design methods," she says, "so I teach everything from 'mad mod' to 'haute couture'."

But in all her classes on design and dressmaking, Mrs. Golden emphasizes pride in good craftsmanship.

"The essence of skillful dress designing," she says, "is to hide one's figure faults by accentuating the good points.

"With clever designing, any woman can look the way she wishes. Lines can create optical illusions.

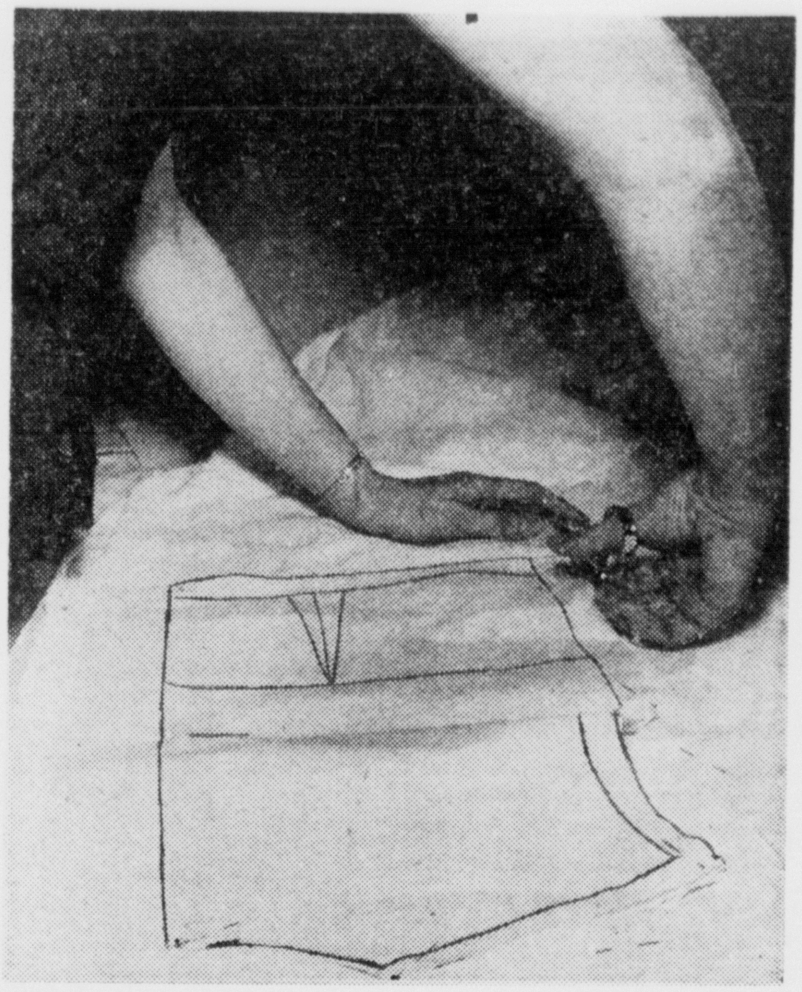
"FOR INSTANCE, if a woman wishes to look slimmer, and/or taller, she should never wear a dress with a horizontal line across the figure that would make her appear still shorter and heavier."

"Every woman," declares Mrs. Golden, "owes it to herself, family and society to dress as attractively as possible."

This, she adds, can be achieved most economically if she can both design and make her own clothes, using the styling and colors that best enhance her personality.

"THERE IS something therapeutic about a dress you have designed and have made yourself, and that has turned out well," she promises. "It gives a sense of achievement, and an opportunity for truly creative expression.

"It's a great morale booster."



HERE THE student, having completed the pattern for the bodice of her dress, is transferring it to muslin and cutting it out, so that it can be test fitted before being used upon more expensive material.

HER SMILE indicates approval as Mary Golden checks the fit of the muslin bodice that student Jannine Akers has made. If it fits perfectly, the pattern can then be applied to dress materials.

Planning A Garden To Fit The Site

The Harold W. Hobbs home at 1823 Lagoon View Drive, Tiburon, demonstrates strikingly how skilled, creative landscaping can turn what might be site problems into assets.

Landscape architects Katy and Paul Steinmetz began with what unquestionably was one major asset — a handsomely designed house in the Oriental motif, planned by architect Gordon A. Phillips and constructed in 1959.

A Japanese garden, the Steinmetzes and Hobbses agreed, would provide the perfect setting for such a home.

But it was a hilltop site that was extremely windy.

To meet this, the Steinmetzes selected plantings that were especially wind resistant or tolerant. Their choices had to be "deer-proof" as well.

For those few protected areas, the landscape architects did specify more exotic plantings to add a touch of color and the unusual. Emphasis was also placed upon attaining a continuous months-long parade of bloom.

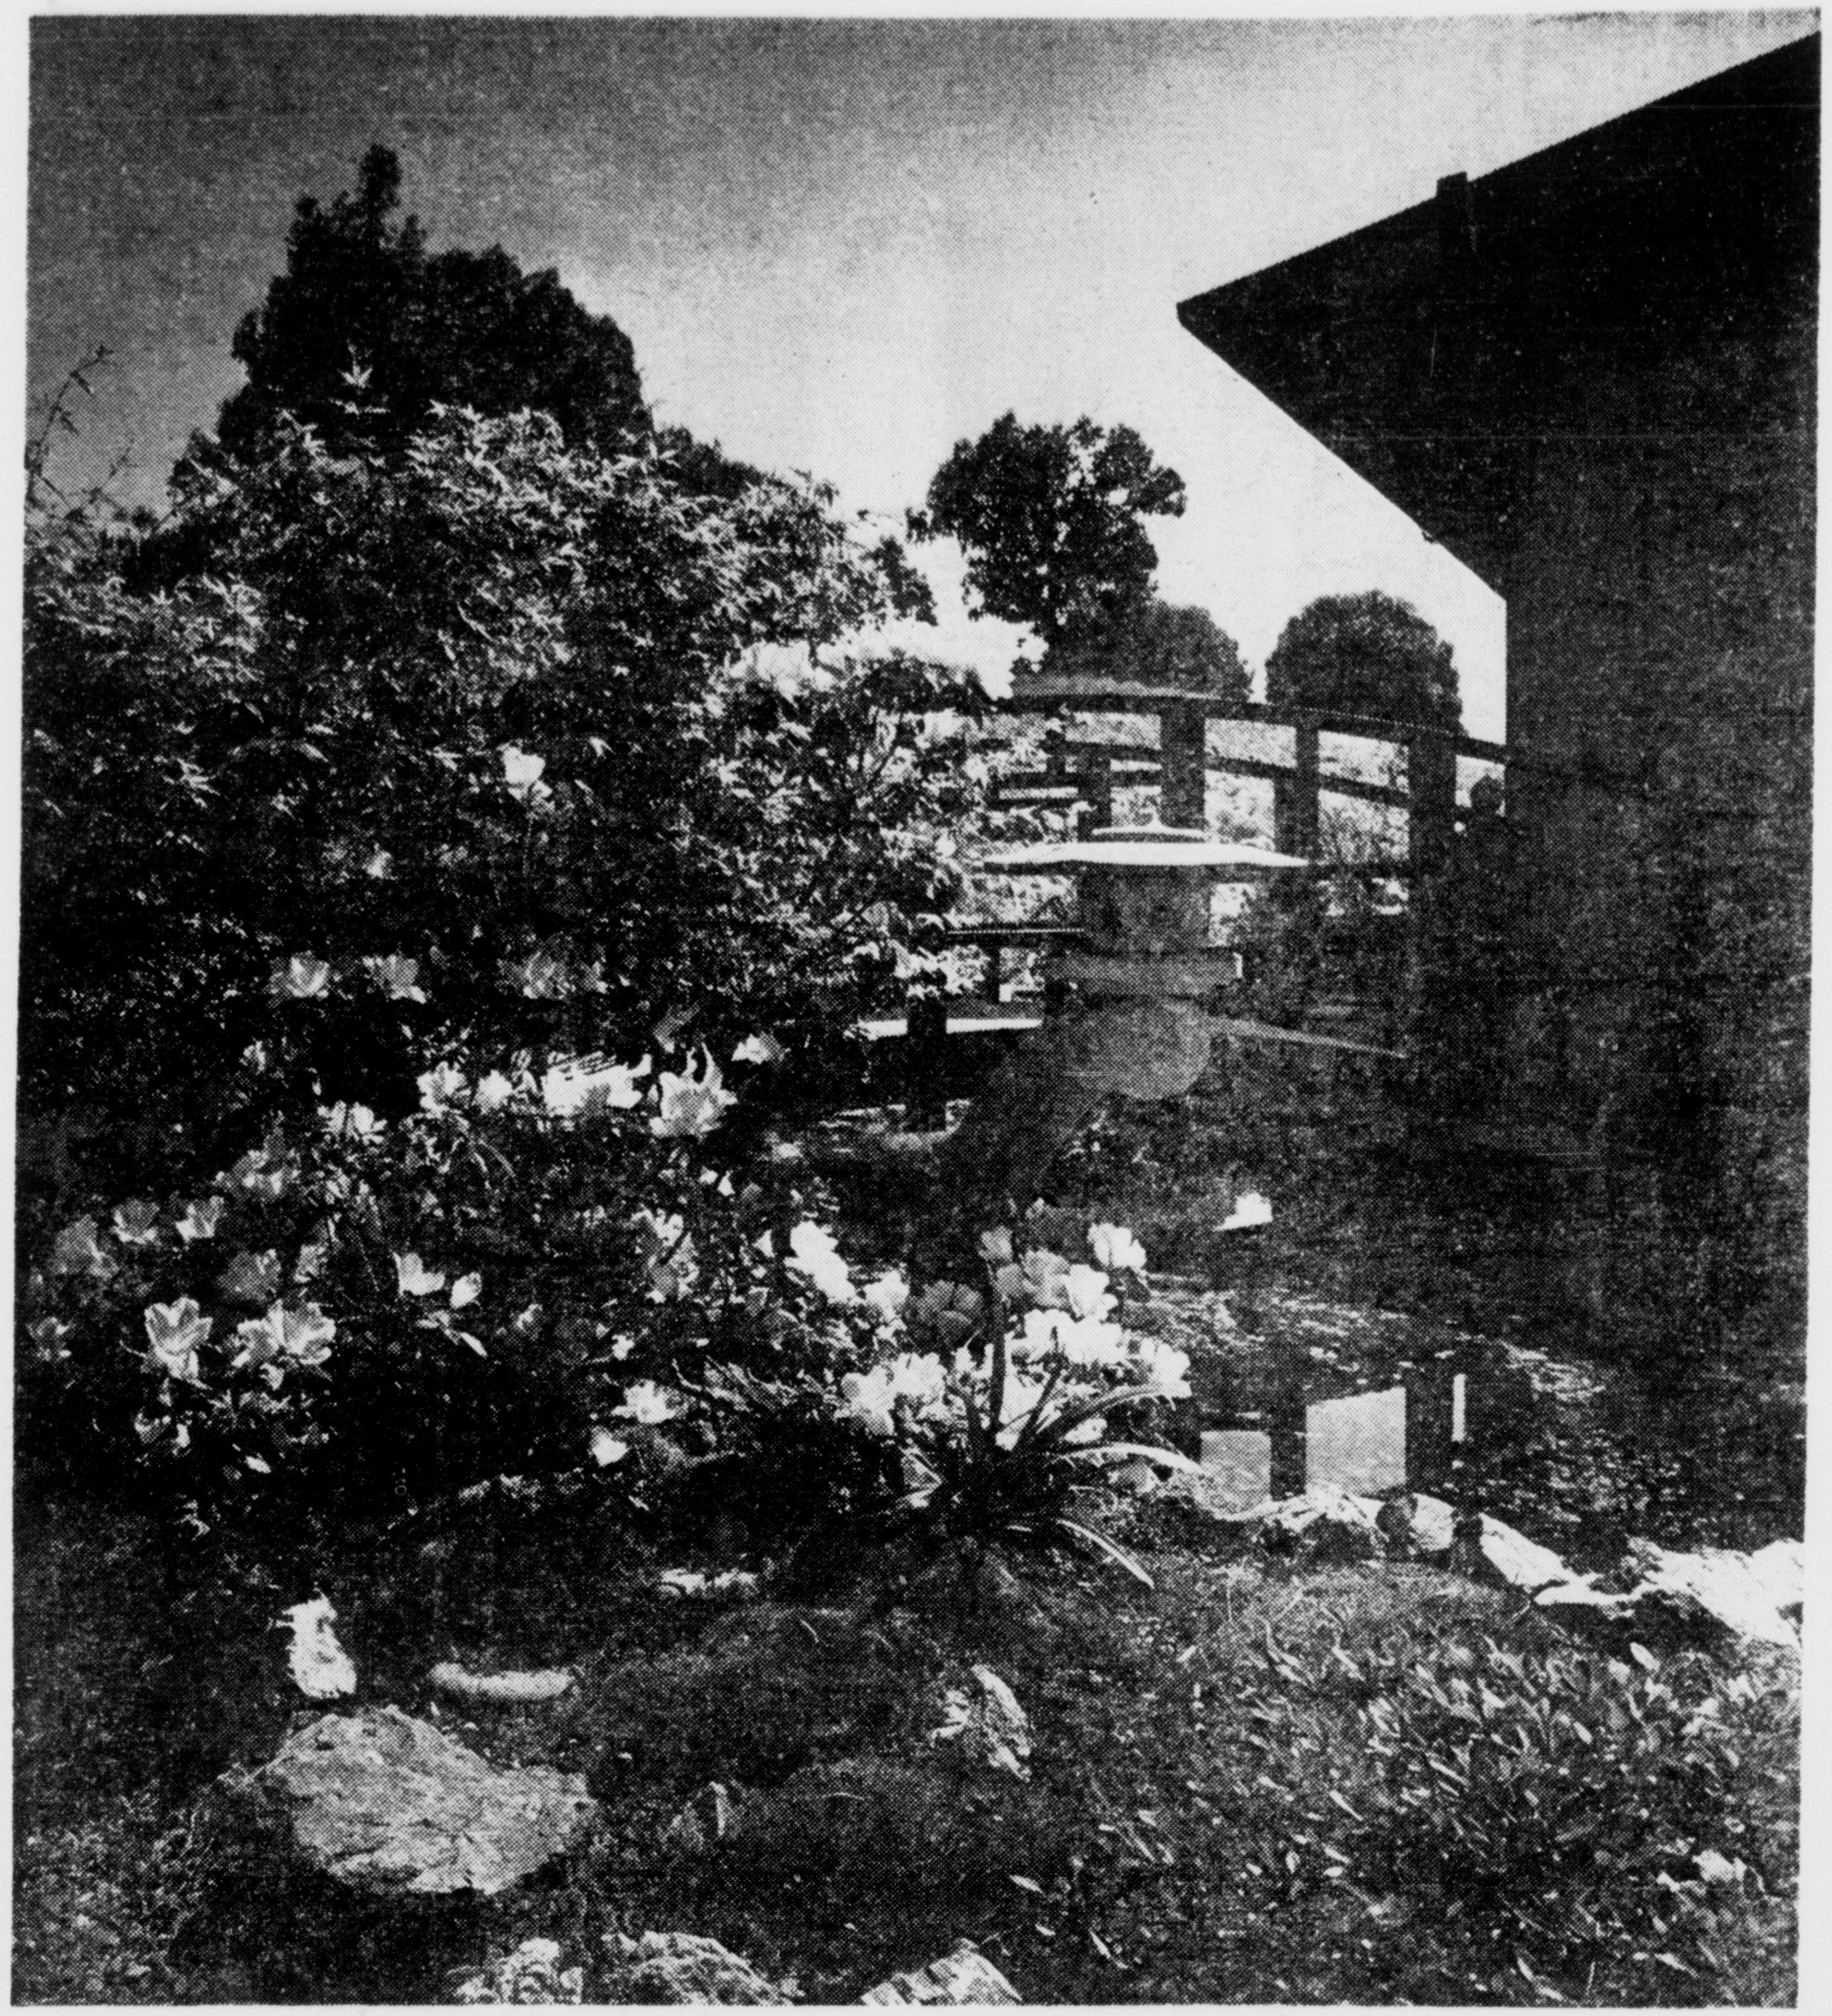
Since Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs both work, he as a mechanical engineer for the Bechtel Corp., she for the city of Tiburon, it had to be a low-maintenance, drought-resistant garden. The Hobbs would be limited in the time they could spare for watering and other care. Again, the Steinmetzes made their plant selections accordingly.

The locale is an extremely rocky and craggy one. The Steinmetzes turned that, too, into an asset. They used the natural rock of the site, rather than hauling in rock, for their Japanese garden. A pool or pond was excavated in the rock. A waterfall and other rockwork were hewn from the natural stone.

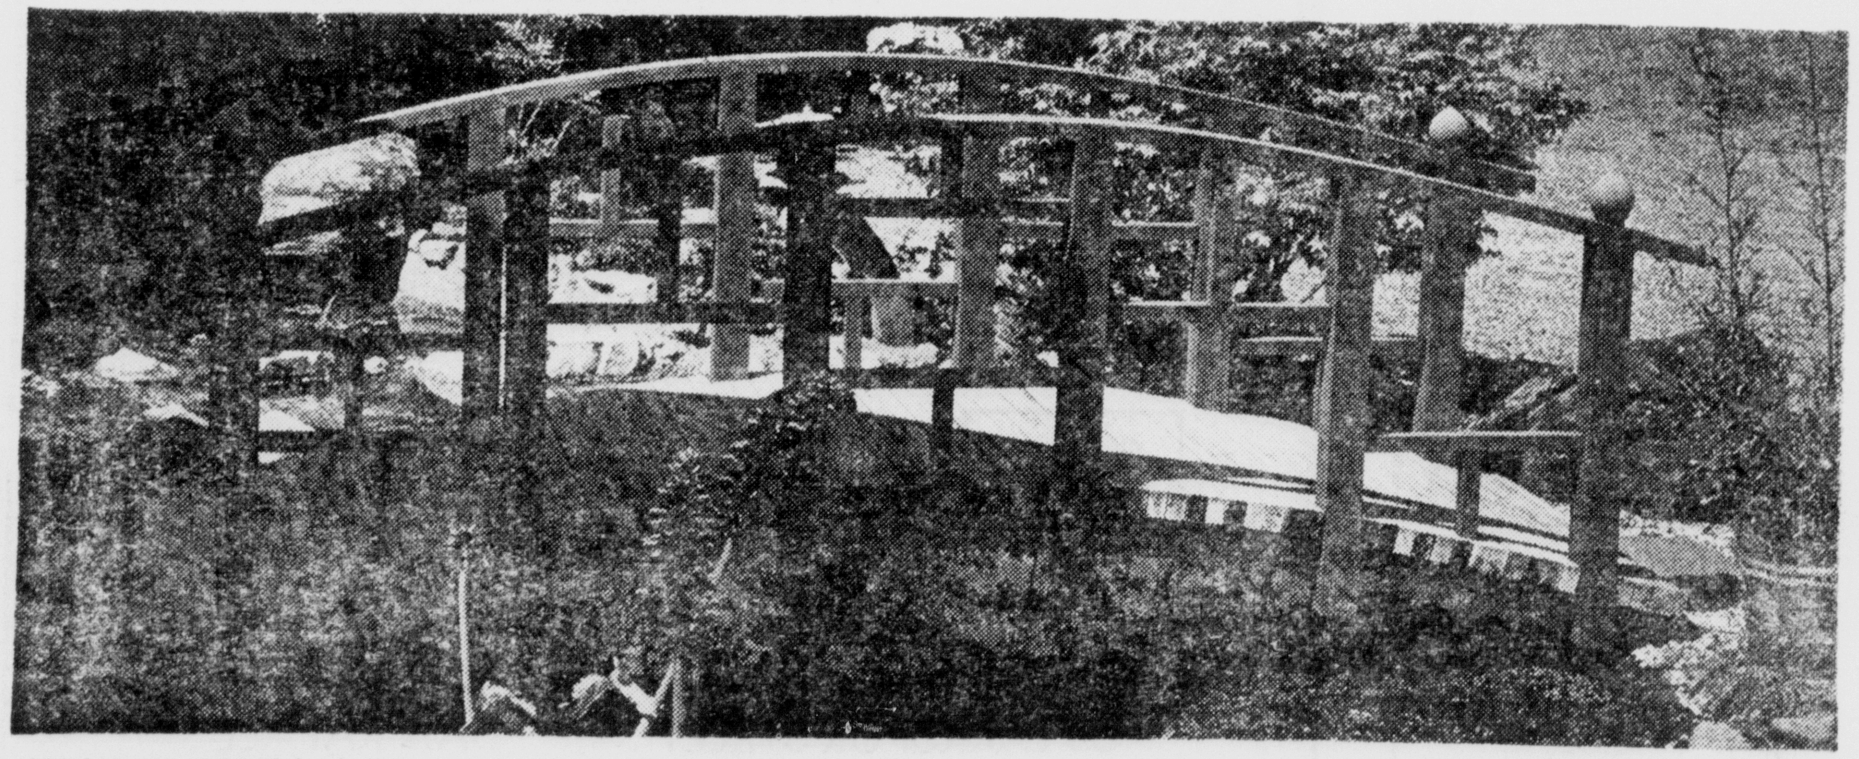
A focal point in the Hobbs landscape is the Japanese-style arched footbridge that crosses the pond and leads to the front entrance of the home. Hobbs built it himself, working from a design by the Steinmetzes.

Along with the bridge, the natural rockwork, the pond, the junipers, the azaleas, the cyclamens, the bonsai evergreens and the cherry trees (which put on a marvelous show of bloom in March), the Steinmetzes and the Hobbses achieved to perfection the Oriental effect which they were seeking. The natural outcroppings of rock and even the exposure to the winds had fitted in ideally with the Japanese motif.

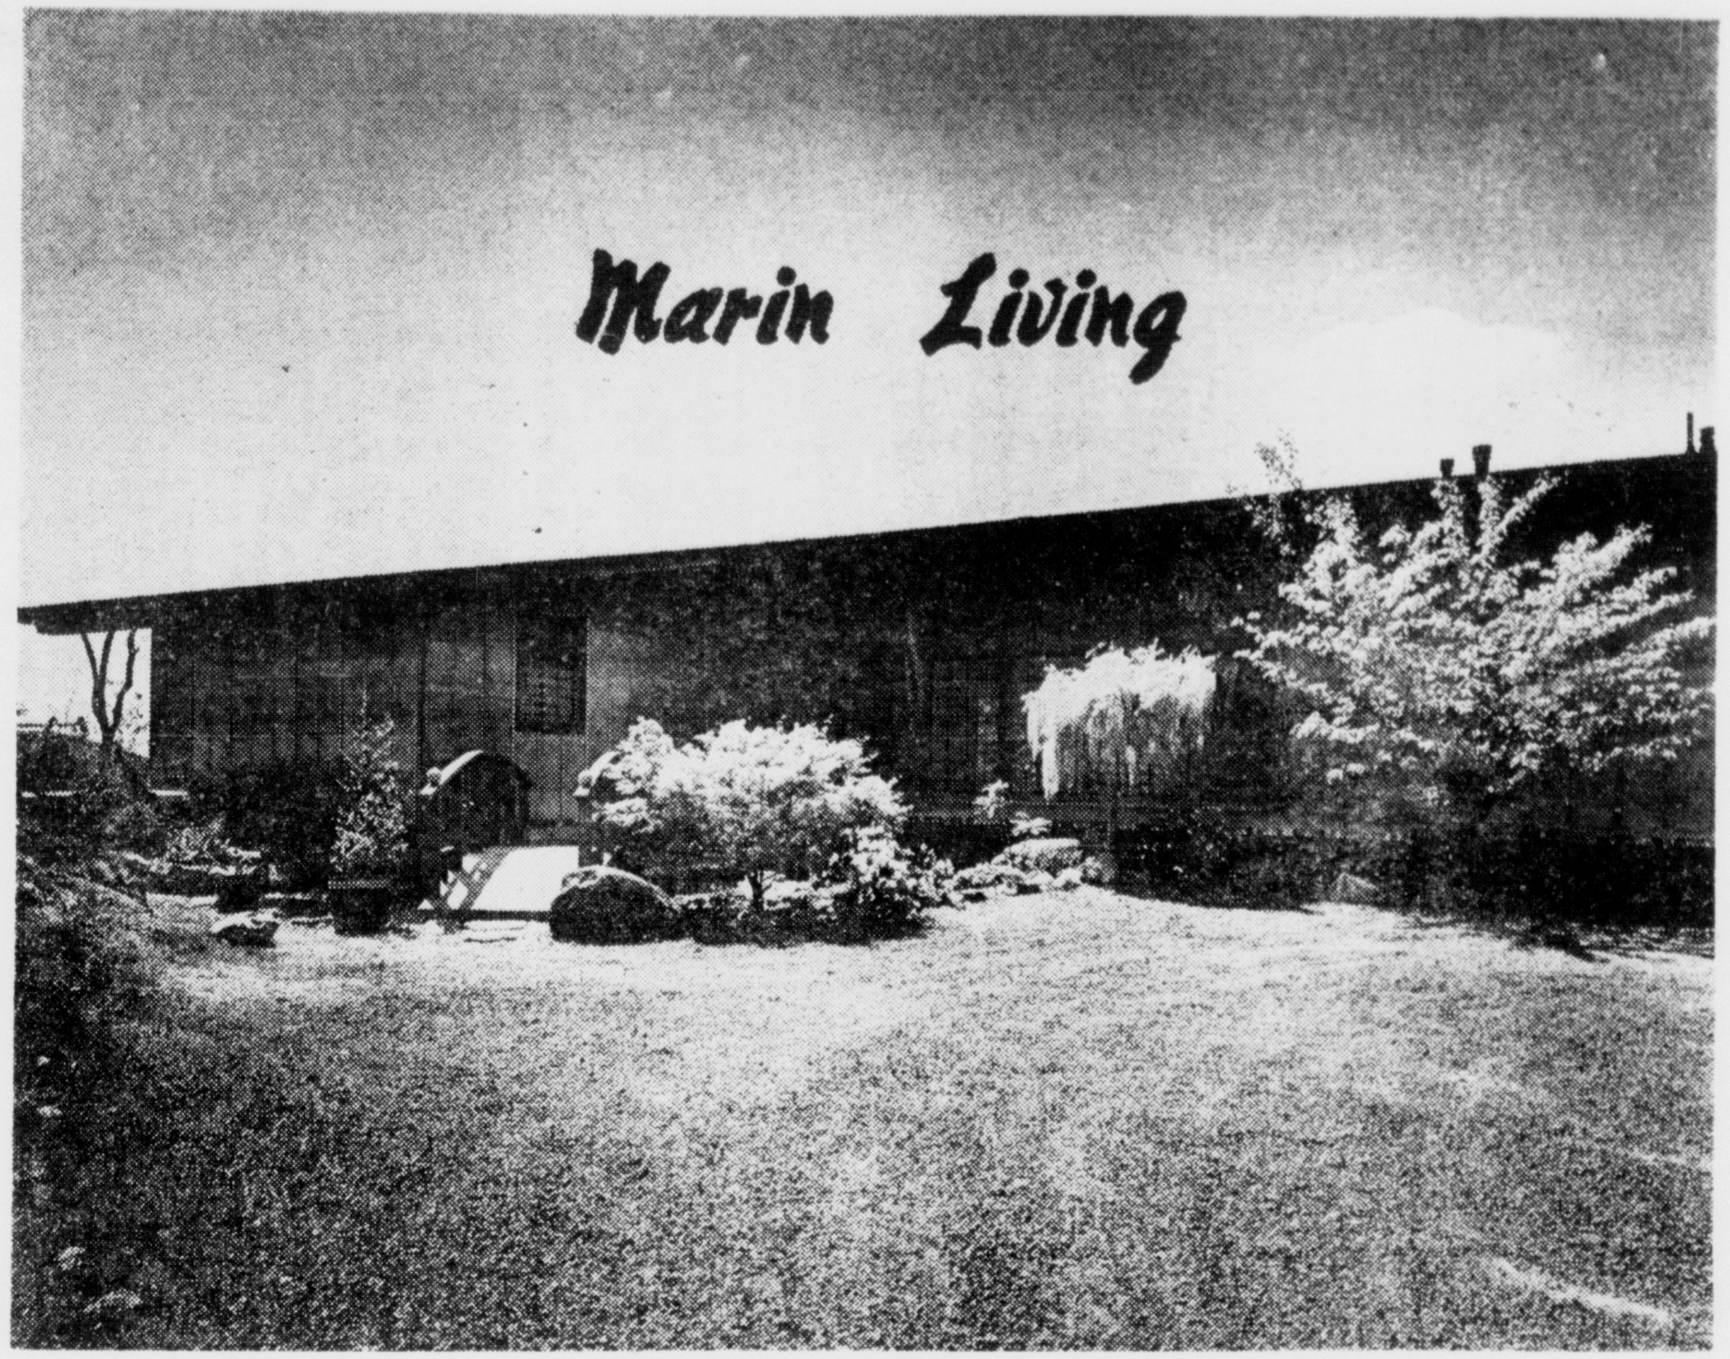
And the hill location provides the occupants with an enviable view of San Francisco and the Marin countryside.



LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTS Katy and Paul Steinmetz, in designing the garden for the Harold W. Hobbs home at 1823 Lagoon View Road, Tiburon, took special care to blend their work with the Oriental motif of the Gordon A. Phillips-designed house. A pool, arched bridge, granite Japanese lantern, pink gumbo azalea and rockwork all contribute to the effect at the front entry to the home.

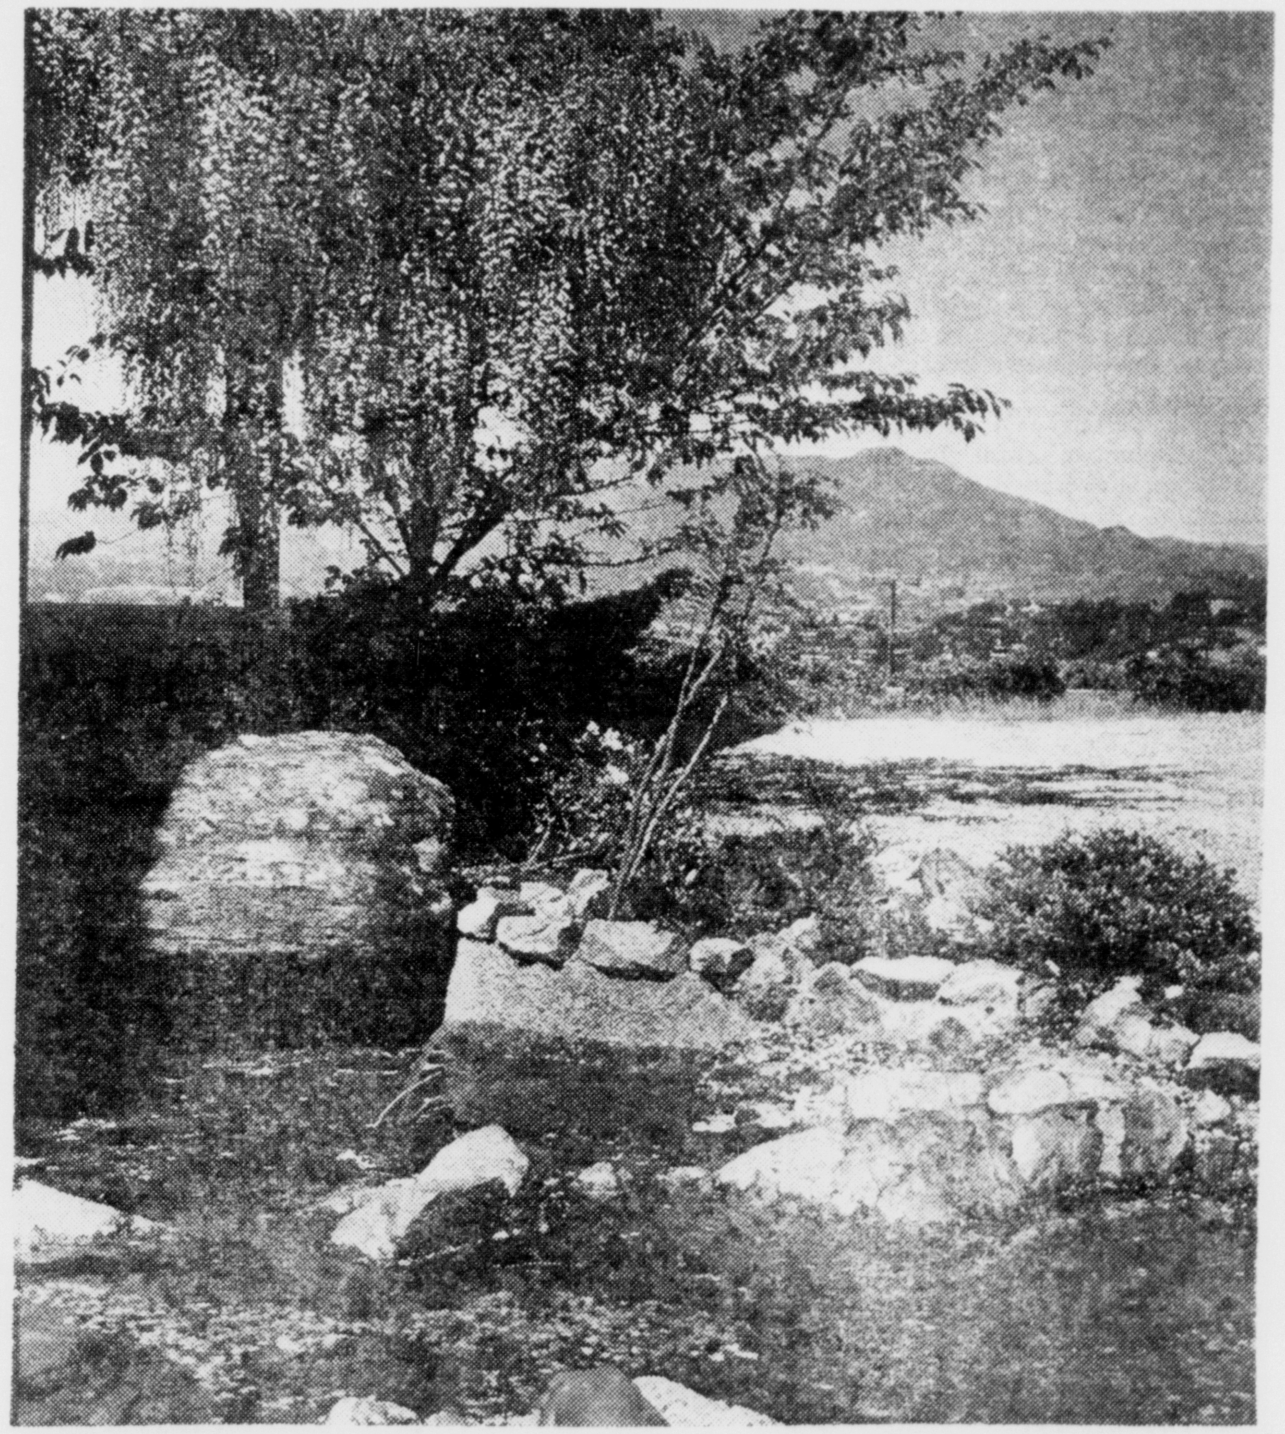


HAROLD W. HOBBS built the arched wooden footbridge over the pond himself, working from a design by Katy and Paul Steinmetz and using laminated one-by-fours. By using board widths considerably larger than those available to the Japanese, the work was greatly simplified.

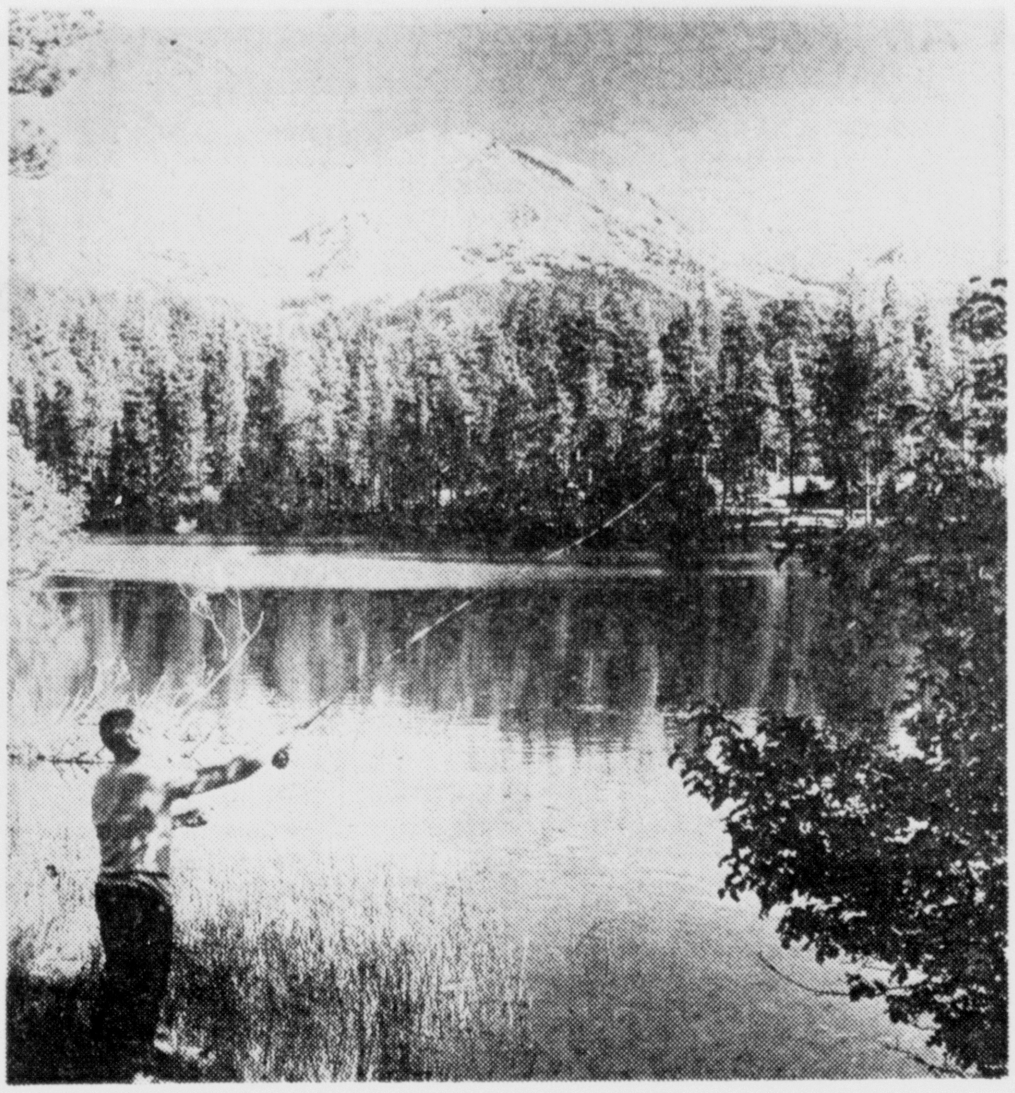


THE HAROLD W. HOBBS residence in the Tiburon hills was built in 1959. Architect Gordon A. Phillips designed the two-bedroom house with a strong Oriental influence, both inside and out. Landscape architects Katy and Paul Steinmetz worked with the feeling and appearance of the home, and with the rocky cragginess of the site, very much in mind.

A CLOSE-UP OF the wisteria tree in bloom with the deck of the Harold Hobbs home as a backdrop shows how much it contributes to the beauty of the homesite. Plantings were selected by the Steinmetzes so as to provide a continuous, months-long progression of blooms. (Photos by Ken Molino)



YOU ARE LOOKING from the house and out across the pond in this picture. Plantings in the photo include a wisteria in bloom, a cherry tree which stages its own blossom show in March, a mahonia and a pink gumbo azalea. The artificial pool and waterfall were hewn from the natural rock of the site.



AT LEFT, a fisherman dapples the water of Reflection Lake in Lassen Volcanic National Park with 10,457-foot Lassen Peak, the only active volcano in continental United States, in the background. At right, Bumpass Hell is 16 acres of furious energy going nowhere. Boiling mud pots toss superheated liquid into the air, and volcanic gases and steam combine to cerate a riot of color.

California's Park Of Contrast And Color

The Travel Pages

A heavenly view from the top of the world one day. A descent into hell the next.

A forested retreat from the superhighway world in summer. In winter, a skier's delight.

Luxury bungalows near a fine dining room for some. Tenting for those who like to camp.

This is all Lassen Volcanic National Park, 160 square miles of contrast and color, that offers visitors the high thrill of climbing 10,457-foot Lassen Peak, the only active volcano in the continental United States; or taking the low road into the bubbling, seething wasteland of Bumpass Hell, a steaming, awful glimpse of the world as it used to be.

ALONG WITH the volcanic marvels there are hundreds of miles of walking and horseback trails, streams, lakes for boating, swimming and fishing and accommodations for everyone from one-day picnic visitors to those who spend a month . . . or all summer.

This fascinating retreat exists less than 250 miles from Marin County and only a stone's throw off Highway 99.

In spite of being so near densely populated areas, Lassen Park never seems overcrowded. Perhaps, because the variety of things to see and do keeps people from gathering at just one or two places.

THE PLACE to begin to understand the ancient and recent history of Lassen, arrange for accommodations, or outfit for camping is Manzanita Lake, just inside the northern boundary. Visitors reach it by turning off U. S. 99 at Redding.

The Manzanita Visitor Center, established by California pioneers and maintained by the National Park Service, displays the geological and human history of the area. Activated exhibits show the Pacific Ring of Fire, a circle of volcanic activity that surrounds the Pacific Ocean. Lassen Peak, which last threw out molten rock and lava during repeated eruptions from 1914 to 1918, is part of this chain.

Oldsters and youngsters alike are fascinated by the working seismograph which records earth tremors all over the globe. Displays and illustrated talks by ranger naturalists at the Manzanita Lake open-air amphitheater acquaint the traveler with the places to see and how to get there.

EVERYONE who comes to Lassen Volcanic National Park during the May-September season, should catch Mrs. Selena LaMarr at the visitor center. A seemingly ageless lady, one of the last of the Hat Creek Tribe of Atsugewi Indians, she narrates the ways of her people with zest and rare humor. Although she looks to be pushing 65, she's known to be past 80, but how far past, no one knows.

Seated on a bench covered with a dressed animal pelt, with a four-foot-in-diameter circle of log as a sounding board, Mrs. LaMarr talks, and displays an ancient art which will be lost when she can no longer practice it. Twice a day she tells the story of her people at the same time she's weaving the articles which were their cooking pots, storage bins, fish nets, hats and children's toys.

She also points out, with a twinkle in her eye, that what is now Lassen Volcanic National Park, a vacation area for Americans, was also a playground and summer home for her tribe. They, too, came to seek relief from the humid valleys, live under the trees and relax.

EVERYONE at the park including the college student employees, wranglers and guides give the visitor a welcomed, make-yourself-at home feeling. The epitome of this attitude is Mrs. Al (Frankie) Donau, who manages the visitor concessions for Lassen Volcanic Park Inc. A five-foot-three-inch dynamo of friendly energy, she wants everyone to be comfortable in her 100,000 acre back yard, and to see all the sights.

This includes the two and a half mile climb to the summit of Lassen Peak, where volcanic eruptions last rumbled from a heart of fire deep in the mountain only 50 years ago. Steam vents connected with the recent craters indicate the heat is still there.

After the high view atop Lassen Peak, the visitor can descend the next day into 16 acres of hell (Bumpass Hell, that is), the still active remnant of prehistoric Mount Tehama, of which Lassen Peak is also an offshoot.

THE VISITOR can smell the sulphureous blast as he follows the path downward. He is gradually aware of heat and dampness, and finally, just before rounding the last bend, noise.

Forces released millions of years ago are still creating a fiendish racket. Bubbling mud pots splash and gurgle. Seething hot water springs are a marvel of furious, roaring energy going nowhere. And for millions of years, yet. Chartreuse, yellow, orange, blue, green, reds, pink, purple and rust are just a few of the colors dyed into the rocks in this microcosm of a cooling planet.

Lassen Peak and Bumpass Hell are easily accessible from the park highway, and other attractions, such as Cinder Cone, Emerald Lake, Drakesbad Guest Ranch (a dude ranch within the park boundaries), Chaos Jumbles and Crystal Cliffs, are within easy walking or riding distance.

MANZANITA LAKE and Drakesbad are the two spots with lodging facilities. Manzanita has economy accommodations for families, complete with cooking utensils. There is a camp store, beauty and barber shops, service station and grill. Or a visitor can rent a bungalow without cooking facilities and enjoy the cuisine at Manzanita Lake Lodge.

Drakesbad offers cabins, a family style dining room, horseback riding and swimming in the natural hot water pool.

There are seven campgrounds in Lassen, most of them by good fishing lakes and all are within a few miles, or steps, of most of the attractions.

The park is still so natural that it's a rare day when deer and ground squirrels don't come around to have a few tasty leftovers from the visitors' meals.

Lassen belongs on everyone's list of things to see.

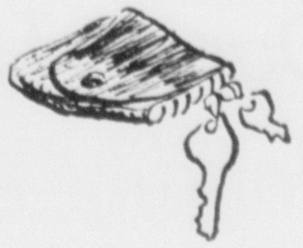
The Tallest One-Room House In All The World



In California's own Redwood Empire stands a massive redwood tree which contains the tallest one-room house in the world.

Some 300 years ago a fire attacked the vitals of this tree which even then was more than 2,000 years old. The fire burned itself out after gutting the interior of the forest giant, which has a base circumference of 27 feet, and is 250 feet high.

Instead of going into a decline after suffering this fiery wound, the tree continued to thrive and is inspected by thousands of tourists every year as they drive through northern Mendocino County on U.S. 101 (the Redwood Highway).

According to Indian lore, powwows were held in the tall tree room when chiefs of various tribes encountered inclement weather. Later the room, resembling in shape an inverted ice cream cone, was used as a dormitory for convicts during early construction of the Redwood Highway. Now it serves as entrance to a unique gift shop.

One may now enter the tree room through a door and look outside through windows. A floor has also been added, but the walls of the tree remain untouched.

'Danny The Red' Reasons Untidily About Student Revolt

Reviews Of New Reading

OBSOLETE COMMUNISM: THE LEFT WING ALTERNATIVE by Daniel and Gabriel Cohn-Bendit; McGraw-Hill, 256 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

In April, 1968, "Danny-the-Red" Cohn-Bendit led student demonstrations at Nanterre, a suburban campus on the Sorbonne. He was disciplined by university authorities and apprehended by the police. This enraged previously apathetic students; thousands joined in demonstrations that fermented into revolt.

French workers joined the uprising by striking factories. In June, DeGaulle's regime came close to toppling.

The first part of "Obsolete Communism" ostensibly describes the revolt. But Cohn-Bendit is skimpy on details. Far from being a primer on revolutionary tactics a la Che Guevara, the narrative is more of a polemic . . . and a fairy tale. Danny the Red serves up an image of pure serene, faceless children who rise to smite the oppressor with beatific smiles. No mention is made of the way tough Paris gendarmes got bloodied heads.

Why did the students revolt? The author claims these reasons: (1) universities must become political; (2) students hate the dead, empty lives of their bourgeoisie parents; (3) society must be overthrown because it oppresses the workers.

A far better intellect than Danny's would stagger attempting to bear the anomalies of that pastiche. He becomes a one-man disaster area of untidy reasoning. Example: "How can a physicist believe his research is beneficial to humanity when an H-bomb is produced?" He means any university physicist doing any research.

Cohn-Bendit's biggest regret is stopping short of destroying government offices after burning the stock exchange . . . "DeGaulle would have caved in." He assumes that the army would have sat by in barracks cleaning its respective fingernails.

Brother Gabriel rescues reader interest somewhat by coauthoring the latter two-thirds of "Obsolete Communism." The brothers hate Communists even more than does J. Edgar Hoover.

They rage at the Communist Party in France and the Communist-controlled GCT labor unions for ruining the revolt. (No mention is made of the 15½ per cent wage increase that almost collapsed the French franc.) Union leaders pay lip service to the workers' cause while selling out to the capitalists. French Communists actually work within the capitalistic system to sustain that system. France is a conspiracy of state, authorities, bourgeoisie, police and unions opposing the workers. The student revolt attempted to unmask the true nature of the state.

Solution? Destroy the system. The workers must take over all factories and operate them through soviets (councils). There must be no leaders and no management apparatus above the workers. ("Fellow workers, what color shall we paint Renaults today!") Cohn-Bendits' understanding of the marketplace is total in its ignorance.

The C-Bs evince a nostalgia for the Russian revolution — until its purity was soiled by the Bolshevik Party. Lenin and Trotsky imposed a hierarchy over the masses that corrupted the revolt. The goal of the next revolution must be a pure democratic society of workers.

Capitalistic cracks in the Kremlin walls are deplored by the C-Bs. Like Miniver Cheevy, they sigh for the days of old—pure, untainted Marxist economic equality.

"Obsolete Communism" often reads more like shopworn polemics than new radicalism. One of several fatal flaws is the inability to cite successful examples of applied Marxist economics. Another flaw is intellectual dishonesty. The Hungarian revolution of 1956 was a "workers revolt," which would surprise most Hungarians.

The Controversial Field Of Graphology

HANDWRITING TELLS by Nadya Olyanova; Bobbs-Merrill, 371 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Miss Olyanova first had this book published in the 1930s, and in the 30 years that have ensued it has become accepted as the classic work in the somewhat controversial science of graphology.

Now, for the second time, she has updated her book.

It contains a basic discussion of what character traits are reflected in handwriting, and how they can be detected and interpreted. It tells, too, how that information can then be put to beneficial use.

There are a large number of examples of handwritings with accompanying diagnoses, and among the more interesting aspects of the book are the analyses of the handwriting specimens of famous persons. Sometimes, however, Miss Olynnova's conclusions sound very much like the palm readings of the fortune teller at the church bazaar, almost always favorable and flattering, except, of course when the subject is an Adolf Hitler or Josef Stalin.

Miss Olyanova has been a consultant to the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kans., and to the psychiatric service of King's County Hospital in New York, and she now serves as a consultant to more than 200 corporations as well as to private clients. Her success would indicate that graphology is something more than a parlor game, and might, indeed, be a scientific technique meriting more serious and wider attention. On that basis, her book deserves a reading with an open mind.

Four By Horovitz

FIRST SEASON by Israel Horovitz, Random House, 195 pages, $1.65. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

Among the score of bright new playwrights to watch is Israel Horovitz, who hit the scene big last year on Off-Broadway.

From his works he won the coveted Obie award and also the Vernon Rice-Drama Desk Award.

In this paperback edition we are given a look at the prize-winning "Line," "The Indian Wants the Bronx," and "It's Called the Sugar Plum," plus "Rats." In all, Horovitz lines are clearly drawn — whether it is a comic or violent situation.

Equally absorbing are Horovitz' personal observations in the preface in which he discusses his "first season," the worry surrounding it and "the horrifyingly obvious: a chance for a second season."

A Mildly Diverting Little Tale

IT HAPPENED IN BOSTON: AN EXTRAORDINARY NOVEL by Russell N. Greenan; Random House, 273 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Unfortunately, the only extraordinary thing about this first novel is the extraordinary distance between the jacket blurb and what is actually at hand.

"A black and poignant joke, a tale of darkness and blinding light . . . a glimpse of the face of God." Now really!

What we have here, in fact, is a rather neat little mystery, having to do with the disillusionment of a young Boston painter. It tends to drag after the clever opening, but ends with another bang, after introducing some mildly diverting habitues of the Boston parks — a dotty old woman who fears the Homicide Club, a somewhat sinister insurance man (who may or may not be the devil), and a Salinger-type child.

The story, turning on a daring art forgery, is told in the first person by the young painter who is often amusing, if totally unconvincing. No artist today — not even one who paints like Leonardo, could possibly sound so much like a pompous Victorian clubman.

Even in Boston, it couldn't happen.

Kindergarten — A Whole New World

YOUR CHILD AND THE FIRST YEAR OF SCHOOL by Bernard Ryan Jr.; World, 149 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The child about to enter kindergarten is also about to enter a whole new world. How he or she will fare there is dependent to a large degree upon how well he has been prepared at home for the experience.

To help the parent with those preparations, Bernard Ryan Jr. has written this book.

He is not a professional educator, but a former advertising agency and television executive and now a professional writer. But he has consulted extensively with authorities in the early child education field.

Part one of the book covers the child's development in his fifth year, and what kindergarten is designed to do for him. Part two is a picture section to be shared by parent and child, showing something generally of what the latter can expect in school. Part three discusses the learning concepts employed in today's kindergartens. And part four suggests how the parent can continue to contribute to his child's education and growth.

Ryan keeps the whole thing low key and adds this advice: "Although it is important for you to be informed and knowledgeable about your child's first year in school, the most important thing you can do is to relax and enjoy it — for then he can go and do likewise."

Ryan has written a book that should be helpful to families with tykes who will be starting to kindergarten next fall — especially if they have not had the advantage of an introductory nursery school attendance. It should ease anxieties of both child and parents.

Soap Opera

A PLACE CALLED SATURDAY by Mary Astor; Delacorte, 239 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Actress Mary Astor has written her sixth novel about a young couple in a tiny Arizona desert town, where a brutal rape of the wife occurs, causing her to find in her conscience the necessity to bear the resulting child. The conflict with her husband and their alienation from the townsfolk form the basis for this single dimension story which lacks the vitality to make it anything more than mildly entertaining.

A Liberal Paints A Bleak Picture

By DON KEOWN

GORE VIDAL, right, author and liberal, squared off with William F. Buckley Jr., columnist and conservative, in some acrimonious exchanges as the two matched wits and insults as television commentators, first at the Republican National Convention last summer, and then later at the Democratic National Convention. A Vidal piece on the GOP convention is included in his newly-published collection of essays, "Reflections Upon a Sinking Ship."

REFLECTIONS UPON A SINKING SHIP by Gore Vidal; Little, Brown, 255 pages, $5.95.

Gore Vidal is one of a very few liberals with sufficient assurance and wit to match malice for malice in exchanges with arch-conservatism's high oracle and hatchet man, William Buckley Jr.

Their verbal encounters on television during the 1968 national political conventions sizzled with venom, amusing some and dismaying others.

But Vidal's natural forte is the written, not the spoken, word. Widely known as a best-selling novelist, he is also an old hand at social, political and cultural criticism and commentary.

His critical essays appear frequently in leading magazines. A collection of these pieces was printed earlier under the title "Rocking the Boat," with the general theme that the American establishment was in trouble. A new collection, "Reflections Upon a Sinking Ship," now finds that situation worsened.

His preface written in June of 1968 reads in part:

"With no melodramatic intent I have selected a title which seems to me altogether apt this bright savage spring with Martin Luther King dead and now Robert Kennedy. The fact that these deaths occurred at a time when the American empire was sustaining a richly deserved defeat in Asia simply makes for added poignancy. But it is not only the American ship which is foundering. Nearly half the human beings ever born are now alive, breeding like bacteria under optimum conditions. As a result, the planet's air, water and earth are being poisoned and used up, and there are those who believe it is already too late to save this ark of fools."

Unlike some critics, Vidal has a suggested course of action:

"Nevertheless, to take the positive view, if war and famine do not soon reduce population (and it is quite likely that the two in tandem will at least make a beginning; famine is now with us and the smell of blood's already upon the air), a world authority must be established in order to limit births, while attempting simultaneously the restoration in our favor of the planet's ecological balance."

Vidal admits that such a global bureaucracy presents great dangers, but argues that hazard must be risked to avoid the greater one of a fatal over-population.

The essays Vidal has chosen for this book were written from 1963 into late 1968 for such periodicals as Esquire, the New York Times Book Review, Encounter, Book Week, Book World, New Statesman and the Reporter, and range widely in their subject matter.

He discusses the decline of the novel generally, and the writings of John Hersey, John O'Hara, Susan Sontag, Edgar Rice Burroughs, E. Nesbit, Henry Miller, J. E. Galbraith, himself and others. He is particularly effective and quite moving in his piece about the almost forgotten John Horne Burns. Except for a dull, obtuse analysis of the new French novelists, he is generally trenchant and provocative.

On the difference between literary and popular writing: "But where Faulkner re-created his society through a gifted imagination, Mr. O'Hara merely reflects that society. . . . O'Hara, for all his faults, is a reliable witness to our self-regard, boredom and terror of not being."

Vidal, however, does not restrict himself to the literary field. His book contains the famous — or infamous — attack upon the Kennedys written for Esquire in April, 1967. He disclaims any personal animosity, describing it as actually an attack upon our political system that favors the rich. But the article reads verv much like the work of a man acting out of pique or envy.

He is correct in stating that John F. Kennedy's presidency was more one of show and statements than of action and accomplishment. But he overlooks the very real contribution these inspirational qualities in JFK made in lifting the sagging morale of a bored and sluggish American public. His comments upon Robert F. Kennedy were badly outdated by the dramatic developments in the closing months of that individual's tragically short life.

Also in the book are Vidal's observations at the 1968 Republican National Convention (a piece on the Democratic debacle would have been more entertaining), a travel report from Egypt, a celebration of the loosening of the lid on pornography, a good piece on "the liberal's dilemma," a discussion of public television (somewhat overblown), and his closing manifesto setting forth his proposal for a planned society to hold off mankind's self-destruction.

Since almost all of them have appeared previously in periodicals, the essays are likely to have a familiar ring. Perhaps, in fairness to prospective buyers, such packages should be plainly labeled on their covers "Reprints from Magazines." But then, precious few essays or short stories are being written these days specifically for book publication. And fortunately, Vidal's observations, even when warmed over, are more worthy of a repeat reading than most, being the products of a keen and unorthodox mind plus an articulate and pungent pen.

DOVER PUBLICATIONS has issued a $2.50 paperback reprint of the late George Rapall Noyes' "Tolstoy" that first appeared in 1918 and has been out of print for a number of years.

It is offered as a "succinct, perceptive treatment of the master's life" that captures and preserves the essence of the Russian intellectual without weighing the reader down with ponderous details.

"Tolstoy" originally appeared as part of Duffield & Co.'s Master Spirits of Literature Series, edited by Professor Noyes and W. M. Hart.

Sleuths & Suspense

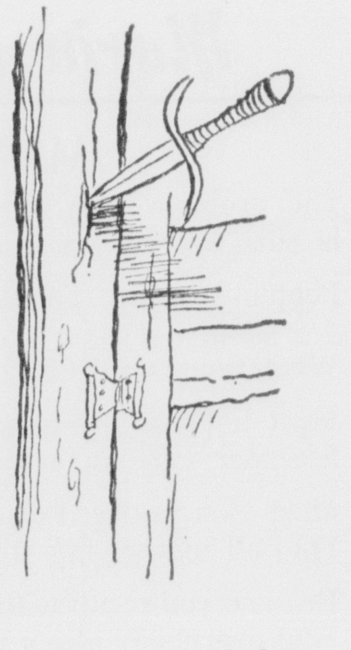
THE ASCENT OF D-13 by Andrew Garve; Harper & Row, 187 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The remarkable thing about Andrew Garve is the astonishing versatility he demonstrates, along with outstanding ability. No two of his suspense novels are alike.

This newest one is heavily flavored with adventure — the action and the dangers of mountain-climbing.

A famous British climber, Bill Royce, is passing through Turkey when there is a crisis call for his talents. An American plane carrying top secret paraphernalia has crashed atop an almost inaccessible mountain peak on the Turkish-Russian border. The Soviets are certain to attempt to recover the device. Royce and an American climbing partner must try to beat them to the scene.

Garve's realistic descriptions of the climbing are so brilliantly done that the reader shares the hazards and the stresses. And Garve has even worked some nice romance into his plot.



If there is a weakness in this splendid yarn, it is in the perhaps too-pat conclusion. But any reader will forgive Garve that, in the exhilaration of what has gone on before.

POWER RATINGS — Until recently there have been three power standards in common use. Now a fourth one has been added which makes the existing confusion even greater.

The standard that has been used for rating many of the components is the IHF (Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers) continuous power rating. For this specification of an amplifier's output power, the manufacturer must specify the distortion which will be called rated distortion then specify the power at 1000 Hz (cycles, a middle range tone) that can be continuously generated without exceeding the rated distortion. If the amplifier is a stereo one, both sections of the amplifier must be generating this specified power simultaneously. Since component manufacturers use rated distortion figures of less than 1%, this is an excellent rating of the amplifiers real power capability.

Another standard in use is the Music Power Rating or sometimes called Dynamic Power rating. Based on the theory that music is not a single continuous tone but made up of bursts of tones, the power available for the instantaneous tone bursts at rated distortion is used. This rating may range from 10 to 20% higher than the continuous rating of the same amplifier; thus, it would seem that this amplifier is more powerful than one with a lesser power output based on IHF standards.

The appliance manufacturers that make radios and commercial consoles use their own power standard. This is called the EIA (Electronic Industries Association) standard. Power measurements are made at 1000 Hz with 5% distortion and in most cases this figure is doubled and called peak power. Obviously this power rating uses a large figure but in reality is 4 or 5 times higher than the actual undistorted useable power of the amplifier.

The newest rating is the IHF Power plus or minus 1 dB. This allows the manufacturer to add plus 1 dB of power to his continuous power rating and still be within the +1 dB rating. This 1 dB adds about 26% to the IHF Continuous Power rating; thus, an amplifier rated at 50 watts could be rated at 80 watts under this new rating.

When comparing amplifiers or receivers, just reading the power output figures can be misleading. Our sound specialists can talk intelligently to you about power when making your selection.

IMPRESSIONS

The problem with our land
Is that everyone wants the upper hand.

People rushing, people pushing . . . never time to stop.
What time is it? Can't be late for work, you know.

Must impress the boss for that next raise—
Scamper mice in a maze.

Must look pretty. Put on that face, slap on that smile.
Fool all unknowing strangers . . . if only for a while.

Be sure you're up with the news,
And everybody else's views.

People ask, "How are you, today?"
"Fine," you say.
Even though a loved one passed away the other day.

Why are people made of clay?

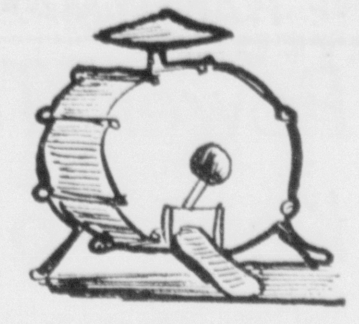
The Stereo Scene With Sunier



By JOHN SUNIER

Here are a few really fine discs that have been out for a while but which just arrived for review:

THE PAPAS & THE MAMAS — Dunhill DS-50031:

The group's last LP has a somewhat different sound from their earlier work. The close harmony is spreading apart in many tunes and sometimes it is stretched fairly far out. The old appeal is still there, though. Mama Cass' solos are standouts, as usual, as are the wonderful instrumental accompaniments. Their big hit "Twelve Thirty" is here, as well as Cass' "Dream a Little Dream of Me."

MAMA CASS — "Dream a Little Dream" — Dunhill DS-50040:

In Cass' solo LP, the exact same track from the album reviewed above is used as the title tune. The ricky-tick yet contemporary sound of this and many of the other tunes is a delight. "California Earthquake" is a weirdly compelling number that might be West Marin County's theme song: ". . . The fault line runs right through here." Cass leans toward some new sounds now: a bit of yelling, growling, etc., but still not to be confused with Janis Joplin. "Sweet Believer" was my favorite.

ROLLING STONES — "Beggars Banquet" — London PS-539:

The Stones' latest shows a return to more down-to-earth pop themes and treatments and is certainly a contrast to the far-out 3-D predecessor. "Street Fighting Man" is one of the hits on the album, and the other 11 tracks are in typical raw but controlled Stones style. The assimilation of the blues into an original style is much more imaginative than that by the dozens of British blues bands now hitting LP grooves.

STEPPENWOLF — "Born to be Wild" — Dunhill DS-50029; "Steppenwolf the Second " — Dunhill DS-50037:

Taking their name from the loner hero of Herman Hesse's novel, this Berkeley-based rock group has put together a singular composite of a lot of good things in the rock movement today. They are versatile and don't stress any one element to the detraction of others. The vocals are good, the tunes (mostly originals by John Kay) are interesting, the use of electronic feedback and other effects not overdone, and the reproduction top level. The title tune of the first album is exciting, and the blues classic "Hootchie Kootchie Man" is so authentic-sounding that it just doesn't seem possible to correlate any of the five fresh young Caucasian faces on the cover with the sound one is hearing.

On the second and equally fine album, "Magic Carpet Ride" became a hit and "Hodge, Podge, Strained Through a Leslie" refers to the trick a number of groups use now of putting the vocals through the whirling speakers of the Leslie electric organ.

Power Tools Are Keys To Success

A good home handyman needs a base of operations (a workbench and a private section of the basement or garage) and enough power (tools, that is) to get the job done.

Even for the beginner, power tools are a sensible investment. With a little practice, they enable him to turn out better work with less time and effort.

Start with a few basic items, depending on your skill and the type of work you plan.

Building Supply News, trade journal for the building supply industry, considers the following power tools a good beginning for a budding home workshop:

A quarter-inch drill. Extremely versatile, since the chuck can be fitted with expansion bits that drill holes up to several inches in diameter, and with attachments that do several other jobs (grinding, honing, polishing, shaping, sanding, wire brushing and paint stirring.)

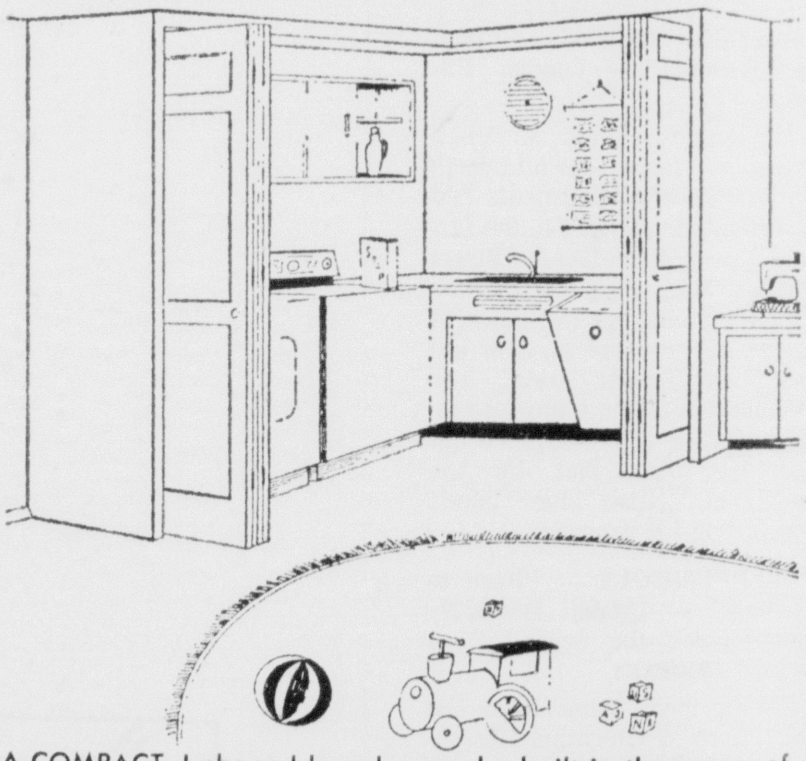
A portable saw. The circular type is best for straight cutting of lumber and large boards. The sabre type is preferred for cutting curves or thin panels of hardboard or plywood.

A sander. The oscillating or reciprocating type uses standard sandpaper and is best for fine finishing jobs. The rotary disc type is used to remove paint and smooth rough lumber.

The more sophisticated do-it-yourselfer will want more advanced power tools. These include: a bench saw, either tilt table or tilt arbor, which cuts, rips, mitres, dadoes, and handles almost any type of cutting job; a radial saw (also stationary) which does all the jobs of a bench saw, and also accepts attachments for sanding, grinding, shaping, drilling, molding, and planing; a lathe, which holds and revolves materials for shaping; a jig saw to cut irregular figures; a jointer — a large plane for smoothing board edges; and a professional belt-type sander which uses an adhesive belt to do heavy sanding jobs quickly.

THE ADDITION in his bedroom of a simple floor-to-ceiling divider, faced on both sides with patterned perforated hardboard, has given this boy a snug study and hobby area plus privacy for his single bed. There's space for hanging clothes at bedside, and lots of room on countertop and divider for books, pictures, art objects, etc. The area was paneled in a walnut-finish, durable hardboard.

CONCEALED LAUNDRY



A COMPACT, L-shaped laundry can be built in the corner of a family room or playroom, concealed by a closet formed of two side walls and bi-fold closet doors. Fir and hemlock panel doors, available in many styles, are handsome and make a good sound barrier.

Some Trees Of Special Distinction

Garden Page

It's spring, and planting time for gardeners.

Things of all sizes, all shapes and all varieties are going into the ground.

And there is nothing better for planting in Marin this time of the year than an ornamental tree.

You could plant an oak, a birch, an elm or one of the other well-established favorites. But you can also display originality by choosing, instead, one of those trees with special qualities or attributes that lend a distinctive touch to the garden or outdoor living area.

THE JAPANESE maple is an excellent example in this category.

What makes it outstanding is its delicately-cut leaves. And you can demonstrate even greater originality by picking a red-leaf variety which will contribute a glorious blaze of red-purple color to the garden from the time it ends its winter rest until it drops its leaves in the late fall.

The Japanese maple is a modest grower that submits to dwarfing, and is well-suited to planting in a tub for use as a patio tree.

ANOTHER GROUP of trees nurserymen consider extraordinary is the locusts.

The honeylocust, a yellow dazzler in its own right, has to take a back seat to the recently-introduced hybrids. These, as exemplified by the sunburst locust's golden bronze foliage, have special characteristics that set them apart from other trees. The unusual colorations of the spreading branches are highlights, but the symmetry of the trees is the most outstanding landscape feature.

Hybridization has introduced newcomers to the ginkgo tree clan.

THE MAIDENHAIR tree is the forerunner to the group — having fernlike foliage that has chartreuse shadings. The hybrid ginkgo trees take on more vivid hues and are a gardener's delight. These are not standard items in all nurseries, but are worth shopping for.

THE LACY FOLIAGE of the Japanese maple makes it truly a tree of distinction. You can select from among a number of green and red-leaf varieties, and you can plant your choice either in the ground or in a container. The one shown above is the Burgundy Lane, featuring finely-cut red leaves against bright green branches. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Now is the time to be putting in that flowering border. And don't overlook the effectiveness of combining annuals and perennials, such as dwarf marigold with delphinium and red hot poker. Marguerites and birds of paradise are other superb border plantings.
- Gardeners will find a number of their favorite shrubs in bloom at the nurseries now, enabling them to select their new plantings while they are at their peak appearance. Rhododendrons, azaleas, camellias, spirea, weigela, viburums, India hawthorne and some forsythia fall in this category.
- Plant carnations now.
- Prune wisteria heavily after their spring bloom.
- March is an ideal month for planting hedges. Consider myrtus, pittosporum, boxwood and privet.
- Ceanothus and other California natives that make easy-to-care-for garden shrubs are in bloom now in nurseries.
- Potted shrubs and trees enhance outdoor living areas, and tubbed marguerites are colorful companions.
- Now's the time to consider planting dahlias, gladiolus, tuberous begonias, and a host of other summer-blooming bulbs. Nurseries have a wide selection.
- Here are a few items you can plant in the food garden: Seeds of beets, carrots, lettuce, endive, onion, turnips and radishes; plants of cabbage, cauliflower, Swiss chard and Brussels sprouts; and roots of rhubarb, artichokes and asparagus.
- Plant citrus and avocado trees.
- Check now with your nurseryman on crabgrass control.
- Established roses may be fed this month. New roses should be permitted to become established before you feed them.
- If you haven't done so yet, prune your fuchsias.

HERE'S HELP FROM NATURE IN WINNING WAR ON BUGS

A gardener reports using nasturtiums instead of chemical dusts and sprays to help produce healthy cucumber vines.

He sowed nasturtium seeds in the hills along with the cukes. The pretty annual flowers, he says, repel cucumber beetles and squash bugs. There is something about the fragrance of nasturtiums that discourages the insects, he says.

He adds that the tender young leaves, flowers and juicy stems of nasturtiums add zest to salads and sandwiches. They have a spicy, peppery taste.

Other gardeners sow marigolds and radishes in the hills of cucumbers to help check pests.

Gets to a Major Cause of Hemorrhoids

Now! Most complete 3-way relief!

Important development: unlike every other hemorrhoid product, Counternoid™ works in 3 ways:
1. Lessens pain fast.
2. Coats, soothes and protects injured tissue.
3. Gets to a major cause of hemorrhoids: painful hard constipation.

In hospital X-ray tests, doctors have demonstrated that the exclusive Counternoid formulation with DSS_{30}™ penetrates in minutes to the top of the rectal area to soften the stool and ease the bowel movement, to make natural healing possible.
Remember: Counternoid. For temporary relief of minor hemorrhoid troubles. The most complete 3-way relief you can get without a prescription or without surgery. At all drug counters.
